CITY PLANNING.

By JOHN E. LOTHROP, Director of Exhibits, American City Bureau, New York.

City planning should result first in stirring public opinion to demand a broad comprehensive plan for our metropolitan cities; and second in the establishment of a city plan commission as a means towards that end. However, a city plan commission without some measure of definite power would be only another useless appendage; it must have "teeth."

The best illustration I know is the experience of the nation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which for twenty years accomplished nothing, because Congress was jealous of its power, but after the national Legislature delegated definite authority to the commission there was immediate progress towards solution of our colossal transportation problems.

Our American cities are growing without any definite plan; most of the cities of the world have grown that way, but some years ago the idea was conceived in Europe of applying to a municipality, the most complex social organism which we have, the principle of efficiency in building the physical city. Especially in Germany the idea was developed to a wonderful degree. We should learn from these European cities.

The city planning exhibition is not a merely technical presentation of the problems relating to city building. It is an intensely human proposition, it is an aid towards the making over of a city for the people, to give them a better as well as more economic place in which to live and work and play. City planning is not a device merely to beautify. It is not for the rich, although the rich will gain immense benefits.

City planning is for the average man and we must build our city for the average man. City planning is based on the keeping of the social ledger as it should be kept; it deals in the coin of humanity as the first consideration.

But it will not cost our metropolitan cities dollars, it will save dollars in the long run. For instance: Every day congestion on the streets here costs thousands of dollars in delay and delay is waste. Every time a truck or delivery wagon is delayed in a too-crowded street unnecessary cost is added to the price of goods. And these unnecessary costs are burdensome to the families of average means.

These practical considerations are fundamental in city planning, but city planning means more; it teaches the new theory of social efficiency; it believes that the boy raised amid dirt and wretchedness and squalor, and playing all his young years in the street, must inevitably in most instances produce a bad citizen, and nothing is more expensive in dollars than a bad citizen, while in terms of humanity a bad citizen is the tragedy of civilization. And so city planning would apply to the city the same principle of the influence of environment which all intelligent persons apply in the building of their own homes. As we counsel good housekeeping in the home so we counsel good housekeeping in the municipal home. No modern housewife can do a good job of housekeeping unless she has a modern kitchen with modern tools with which to work, likewise our municipal housekeepers are unable to keep the city home as it should be kept because they have not an efficiently planned city upon which to operate.

I believe city planning intelligently pursued will aid greatly in hastening that day. If the city plan exhibition shall have assisted towards this consummation it will have accomplished its end. It is only a starter; the real work must follow.

I believe that if it is not to be merely a flash in the pan there must be a city plan commission invested with definite powers, and there must be time enough to determine what is the proper plan for the building of the future city; and such a plan, once adopted, should be followed, changing it as a live, growing thing as conditions change as needs increase.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT.

Mayor Curley issued the following statement upon April 28:

"In approving the order of the City Council, as passed April 22, 1914, providing for an extension from May 1 to July 1, of the adoption of chapter 4 of the Ordinances of 1913, as amended by chapter 1 of the Ordinances of 1914, establishing building limits in the City of Boston, I desire to say that a veto of the order would in all probability work hardship to many men whose money is invested in buildings already in course of construction.

"I am of the opinion, however, that as long as the impression obtains that an extension of time can be had merely for the agitating and the asking, a vacillating policy will be pursued, which can serve no general good purpose so far as the public is concerned. I have approved the bill this day, but with the distinct understanding that the bill becomes operative and effective on July 1, 1914, and that under no condition will I approve of an extension after that date."

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

BOSTON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD.

The opening of the Cape Cod and New Bedford Steamship Company, which will run three boats between Boston and New Bedford, by way of the Cape Cod Canal, is one of the first projects which the Boston Industrial Development Board has brought to the city. Following a series of conferences with Chairman John N. Cole of the Board, John P. Fitts, treasurer and manager of the line, announced that they would come. The company is capitalized at $400,000.

Summer residents along the South shore were greatly pleased when the announcement was made. It will bring the cape towns in much closer proximity to Boston and will open the way for wonderful development of the district.

As the question of tolls will play an important part, Chairman Cole had a conference with August Belmont, President of the Cape Cod Canal Company, at a dinner given at the American House, Thursday, by the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Belmont assured Chairman Cole that he would cooperate with the Board in every way, and that the toll prices through the Canal would be such that every vessel owner would not hesitate in adopting the Canal course in sailing to Southern ports. This will mean a difference of fully two days in one trip.

At the dinner Mr. Belmont said that it was not the intention of the company to keep all the profits realized from tolls, but that with increased traffic, improvements would be made from time to time, and the Canal would be made a thing of beauty and a great maritime attraction.

At present two dredgers are at work in both ends of the Canal, dredging to a depth of 20 feet. It is expected that they will meet some time the first of July, when vessels of 12-foot draft will be able to go through. "After we have reached this depth," he said, "we will begin again to dredge the shallow places and make a uniform depth from one side to the other of 25 feet."

Mr. Fitts of the steamship company said that he had made arrangements with an electric road company on the Cape to deliver freight to several of the towns. EXPOSITION IN BOSTON.

Mayor Curley has formally approved the holding of a domestic science and pure food exposition in Boston, at Mechanics Hall, October 5-31, inclusive, 1914.

The exposition will be directed by The Boston Retail Grocers' Association, with the active aid and cooperation of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, embracing 57,000 members, and the Massachusetts State Grocers' Association and Provision Dealers' Association.

In setting forth the plans for the exposition the directors advise Mayor Curley, as follows:

"This exposition has also been endorsed by the Old Colony Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association, the Boston Retail Provision Dealers' Association, and the South Boston Retail Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association.

"No exhibit will be allowed that does not come up to the Westfield Standard for pure foods. In addition to that of pure food and domestic science we hope to have many exhibits of an educational nature by the United States Government, the State of Massachusetts and our city.

"This will be the largest exposition and we believe the most beneficial one in its results to the citizens of our Commonwealth that has ever been held, and will carry out largely your administration ideas of pure food, honest weights and cleanliness in the selling and handling of food products.

"At large expositions like this it is advisable to invite some foreign government to make an exhibit, both as a special feature that will interest our visitors and at the same time be educational and beneficial.

"To this end we are arranging to invite the Republic of Cuba to make an exhibit of their manufactures, arts and especially the products of their soil, which will be most interesting and instructive.

"The selection of Cuba to be invited was largely influenced by the feeling of our members in their desire to back up your administration for the betterment of Boston in securing direct steamship lines for passenger and freight service between Boston and other foreign ports, especially so when we are informed that the United Fruit Company has agreed to put into service April 30 three of the finest and most modern steamships of their line to ply between Boston and Havana weekly.

"The increased trade between this port and Cuba expected to result from this action of the United Fruit Company has led to the appointment of a Cuban Consul, for the first time, in Boston. The total business between this port and Cuba for some time past has averaged about two million a year, though nearly all of the shipments both ways have been through the port of New York.

"The results of such an exhibit as Cuba can prepare and install we believe will largely increase the volume of business between the port of Boston and Cuba. Not only will it increase our imports but through the advertising the exposition will receive in Cuba should largely increase our exports to Cuba to the big advantage of our merchants.

"The balcony of Grand Hall in Mechanics Building containing over seven thousand square feet has been allotted for this exhibit and there will be no charge made to the Republic of Cuba for the space.

"We also intend to extend an invitation to the Republic of Cuba to send to the exposition, as they have done to other expositions, their Municipal Band of Havana.

"We are sending in a few days a commissioner to the Republic of Cuba to personally extend this invitation and are very desirous of his taking with him a letter of welcome from the Mayor of our city, commending this proposed exhibit by Cuba, and extending the cordial welcome of our city to those commissioners whom the President of the Republic of Cuba may send in charge of their exhibit.

"We should like the letter to express the great interest the merchants of Boston would take in such an educational exhibit of the resources of Cuba, as this would be, in the assurance that it will be very helpful in increasing the trade between the port of Boston and those of Cuba now made available by the increased direct shipping facilities; also the satisfaction it gives our merchants in the announcement of the appointment of a Cuban Consul to Boston in the person of so experienced a diplomat as Senor Rafael Cervino.

"Senor Rafael Cervino is enthusiastic in the suggestion of his country exhibiting and has pledged himself to assist in every way possible to secure a notable exhibit for the exposition, and says that he believes it will be the means of increasing largely the trade between our port and Cuba. He further has informed us that he will use all of his influences to bring to the exposition a large excursion of Cuban merchants sailing direct to Boston."

ESTIMATES OF POPULATION.

The United States is now a country of 109,000,000 people, according to the bulletin containing the estimates of population for the years subsequent to the Thirteenth Census, by Director William J. Harris of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce.

As stated, the estimated population of the United States for July 1, 1914, will be 109,021,992. The population of the United States and its possessions in 1910 was 101,748,269; so there will have been an estimated gain of over 7,000,000 persons in a little more than four years. The corresponding estimated population of Continental United States for July 1, 1914, is 98,781,324, as compared with the population of 91,972,266, as returned by enumerators April 15, 1910. This bulletin also presents the estimates of population in 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914 for the states and territories, and for cities which had 8,000 or more inhabitants in 1910.

Estimates of population are required primarily for use in the Census Bureau in calculating death rates and per capita averages for years other than the census year. The so-called arithmetical method was adopted for computing these estimates. It is the simplest and it has been shown by experience to come nearer in accuracy in the majority of cases than any other formula. It rests on the assumption that the increase in population each year since the enumeration is equal to the annual increase from 1900 to 1910.

The bulletin presents in its several tables population data for the United States and its outlying possessions in 1910 and 1900, with estimates of the population July 1, 1914, 1913, 1912, 1911 and 1910. Similar data is also presented for the different states in the Union. There is also presented a statement of the white and colored population on April 15, 1910, together with estimates of the white and colored population as of July 1 for each of the years 1914, 1913, 1912, 1911 and 1910. These estimates, however, have been confined to the states having a considerable proportion of colored population, no estimate being presented for any state that did not have 50,000 or more colored inhabitants on April 15, 1910, or at least ten per cent of its population colored.

The estimates of population for July 1,

BILL FOR NEW BUILDING LAWS.

Mayor Curley presented to the Legislature, upon the 29th ultimo, a bill providing for new building laws and for further protecting life and property in the City of Boston. In this measure have been incorporated all the methods of prevention of fire, especially in apartment and tenement houses, that have been presented by the leading builders and underwriters in recent years in Boston.

The establishment of a district of first-class construction is provided for, and beginning at the Charles River will extend to Arlington street, to Park square, to Eliot street, to Atlantic avenue, to Summer street, to the Harbor and Land Commissioner's channel line, along the whole water front, and back to the point of starting.

Provisions incorporated in the measure make it mandatory that all hotels and lodging houses shall maintain, in addition to fire escapes, systems of sprinklers and bell alarms upon each floor, indoor fire escapes of the tower style and constructed of fireproof material. The elevator wells shall be of similar construction.

The full text of the measure is as follows:

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

The following contracts for work, materials and supplies have been awarded with the approval of the Mayor. Those awarded without public advertisement are specially indicated. Week ending May 7, 1914:

PENAL INSTITUTIONS DEPARTMENT.

Upon May 5 the Mayor approved a contract with Edward W. Dixon for furnishing a steamer to replace the steamer "Monitor," while the latter is undergoing repairs. The steamer is to transport passengers, prisoners and freight. Bids for the supply steamer opened April 15 were as follows:

Boston, Nahant and Pines Steamboat Company, steamer "Griswold," $50 per day; Edward W. Dixon, steamer "King Philip," $70 per day; Boston, Nahant and Pines Steamboat Company, steamer "General Lincoln," $75 per day.

Incident to the award of this contract, Penal Commissioner Gore declares:

"I have awarded the contract to Edward W. Dixon, steamer 'King Philip,' as he being the lowest for steamer suitable for doing our work.

"The bid for the steamer 'Griswold' was rejected, even though lower in price, because after investigation, it was found inadequate to do the work which we would require."

PUBLIC BUILDINGS DEPARTMENT.

Upon May 4 the Mayor approved a contract with the E. Howard Clock Company, for supplying the electric clock system for the new City Hall Annex. The bid of the E. Howard Clock Company was $3,778 as against a bid of $3,500 by the Hixon Electric Company. The reason for the award is that the E. Howard Clock Company is a Boston concern and the cost of necessary repairs from time to time will prove much less than if the contract was awarded to a concern outside the city.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

Upon May 7 the Mayor approved a contract with Coleman Brothers, for laying and relaying water pipe, building sewerage works, laying high pressure fire pipe, and furnishing and laying bitulithic pavement in Avery street, between Washington and Tremont streets, Washington and Mason streets, at the northwesterly corner of Avery street. Daddario & Di Pietro, $803.05; Martino De Matteo, $923.25; James J. Conway, $929.05; Thomas F. Broderick, $953.35; Alberta & Balboni, $1,031.50; William L. Dolan, $1,100.50; John Guarino, $1,140.55.

Incident to this contract, Commissioner Rourke declares that the contract was awarded to Martino De Matteo as the lowest bidder, Daddario & Di Pietro, failed to have their check certified.

Upon May 6 the Mayor approved a contract with Michael De Sisto for sewerage works in Washington and Foster streets, Hyde Park District. Bids for the work, opened April 27, were as follows:

LETTER TO FINANCE COMMISSION.

Mayor Curley, upon May 7, addressed the following communication to Hon. John R. Murphy, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, relative to the annual sale of real estate by the City Collector, for unpaid taxes:

May 7, 1914.

HON. JOHN R. MURPHY, Chairman,
Boston Finance Commission:

MY DEAR SIR,— It is customary for the City Collector to annually conduct a sale of real estate upon which taxes have remained unpaid for a period of two years.

A profitable business enterprise upon the part of real estate men has been developed in the purchasing of titles to properties upon which taxes have remained unpaid.

I am of the opinion that if it is profitable for real estate holders to speculate successfully in such titles, and in the manner named, it should also be both possible and profitable for the municipality to devise a method whereby these titles might vest in the city, and a reasonable rate of interest be charged for a certified period of three or more years. The property then to be sold and the amount received, less interest and other charges, to be turned over to the former owner.

It would appear that by the introduction of the method named the rights of unfortunate persons unable to pay taxes would be conserved and in addition a reasonable revenue be made possible for the city in what is at present an unproductive field.

Faithfully yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

THE MAYOR WILL BE GUEST.

Mayor Curley received an invitation to attend the ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the statue of Commodore John Barry of the United States Navy, to be held at Franklin square, Fourteenth street, between I and K street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., upon Saturday, May 16.

The invitation to Mayor Curley is extended by the members of the Barry Statue Commission, and includes Hon. Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War; Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy; Hon. Luke Lea of Tennessee, Chairman of the Committee on Library of the United States Senate; Hon. James L. Slayden of Texas, Chairman of the Committee on Library of the United States House of Representatives.

Edward L. Cogan of the Adjutant General's Office, Department of War, Washington, also extended Mayor Curley a cordial invitation to attend the outdoor memorial mass in honor of the memory of Commodore Barry, which will be held upon the White lot, adjoining the Washington Monument, upon Sunday, May 17, at 10.30 a. m. Cardinal Gibbons and Very Reverend Monsignor William T. Russell of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Washington, will officiate.

It is expected that 40,000 persons will attend the memorial mass in honor of Commodore Barry, and exceeding the number of persons present at the Christopher Columbus memorial mass in 1912, when 34,000 communicants attended.

Mayor Curley hopes to attend.

ASSESSMENTS AGAINST UNITED STATES PROPERTY.

Hon. William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury Department, Washington, sends the following Bulletin to the City Record relative to assessments against United States property:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, May, 1914.

To Custodians of Federal Buildings and Sites, Municipal Officers, and others who may be concerned:

PURPOSE.

(1) This department receives from time to time numerous notices of taxes or assessments against property of the United States under its control for such municipal improvements as sewers, sidewalks, street paving (roadway), gutters, curbing, street lighting, etc., and for sprinkling streets, removing snow and ice from sidewalks, caring for trees outside the United States lot, etc., for the payment of which assessments or charges no appropriation is made by Congress. The following information is published in an endeavor to forestall such notices and the resulting correspondence and occasional legal proceedings for the eventually necessary cancellation of such assessments, taxes, etc.

CONSENT—CESSION OF JURISDICTION—EXEMPTION.

(2) Article 1, section 8, clause 17 of the Constitution of the United States vests in Congress the power . . . "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever . . . over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for . . . needful public buildings;" and section 355 of the Revised Statutes of the United States requires the cession of state jurisdiction over such sites before expenditures for Federal buildings can be made. In conformity with these provisions each of the several states has enacted general laws ceding to the United States jurisdiction over Federal building sites by virtue of which said sites are exempt from all taxation, assessment, or other charges levied or imposed by any state, county or municipality. The principle of the non-liability of the government for reimbursement for improvements made by states or municipalities inuring to the benefit of the government is not a new one, but is sustained by a long and unbroken line of precedents and authorities, both national and state. (See 2 Comptroller's Decisions 375, and authorities therein cited.) Also see 4 Comptroller's Decisions 116, wherein the statement is made:

"The United States are not liable for an assessment levied by local state authorities, even though the improvement may be a direct benefit to the property."

Doubtless, for these reasons Congress has provided no appropriation for the payment by the government of any part of the cost of municipal improvements. (McCullough v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton, 316; Fagan v. Chicago, 84 Ill. Repts., 227; Coe v. Aaron, 116 U. S. 517; Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U. S. 151; People v. Austin, 47 Calif. Repts., 353; People v. McCreery, 34 Calif. Repts., 431; and United States v. Southern Oregon Co., 196 Fed. Rep., 423.)

POLICY OF CONGRESS.

(3) In former years numerous estimates for appropriations to reimburse cities for the cost of municipal improvements adjacent to Federal building sites were submitted to Congress by this department without favorable action being taken thereon, and the department has ceased to submit such estimates, it appearing to be the settled policy of Congress not to make appropriations therefor. The department cannot, therefore, give favorable consideration to claims of municipalities on account of street improvements, etc.

CITY SEWERS—PRIVATE SEWERS.

(4) For the above stated reasons this department cannot join in the cost of the construction or repair of any public sewer, but does in certain cases construct private sewers at its expense, after having secured irrevocable licenses or easements (in the form of ordinances) giving the United States the right in perpetuity to the exclusive use of such sewer. Unless such permission to the United States be in perpetuity the appropriations under this department's control would not be available for the expenditure. Such sewers are in all cases designed to be only adequate for the necessities of the Federal building, and experience demonstrates that harassing complications frequently arise when permission is given for additional connections thereto. The department, therefore, uniformly refuses permission for private parties to connect with sewers owned and maintained by the government for its exclusive use.

SIDEWALKS.

(5) Under a practice of long standing, now sanctioned by the accounting officers of the department, sidewalks and curbing are constructed about Federal buildings and kept in repair as part of the approaches to such buildings. This is the only character of expenditure in the nature of street improvements which the department is permitted to make. There is no authority, however, to construct sidewalks in connection with Federal building sites, but when the work on the Federal building is sufficiently advanced so that the sidewalks are not likely to be subject to injury from the building operations, they are laid to conform to municipal requirements. Where a municipality prefers to provide or repair sidewalks, curbing, etc., adjacent to a Federal building site, rather than to wait until the practical completion of the Federal building, the department interposes no objection to such action, but cannot in any way reimburse the city for any expense incurred.

REMOVING SNOW AND ICE, CUTTING WEEDS, ETC.

(6) While it could not recognize any such assessment, etc., against the United States property for the cost of the removal of snow and ice from the abutting sidewalks or of overgrown weeds, grass, etc., from the site itself, the department does make provision for the accomplishment of these results. Generally a Federal building site not yet improved by the government is in the custody of the vendor or other tenant, and the rental contract requires the tenant to keep the sidewalks clear of snow and ice and the grass and weeds cut. Where an unimproved site is, in the actual possession of the government's representative, or where the Federal building has been constructed, the custodian of the site or of the building is required to see that the removal of the snow and ice from the sidewalks and of weeds, grass, etc., from the site are attended to.

UNITED STATES PROPERTY OMITTED WHEN MAKING UP ASSESSMENTS.

(7) In view of the foregoing the department desires that this information be communicated to all municipalities in which Federal buildings are authorized or contemplated, and to such private parties as may be concerned; and those to whom this circular is sent are accordingly requested to apprise the proper municipal officials of the facts herein contained, in order that United States property may be omitted when making up taxes or assessments for any purpose whatsoever.

CANCELLATION OF ASSESSMENTS.

(8) A United States official who receives this circular in response to a notice of any assessment of the character referred to sent by him to this department is requested to apply to the proper municipal authorities for the cancellation of such assessment so far as the property of the United States is concerned, and to inform the department of the result of his application, in order that necessary steps for the cancellation of such assessment by legal proceedings may be taken should that course become necessary. While the assessments, taxes, etc., could not be collected from the United States, the department is not willing to have assessments, etc., levied against the property under its control remain as an apparent cloud upon the title thereto, because this would doubtless reduce the selling price of the property should the department at some future date be authorized to dispose of it.

W. G. McADOO,

NEW YORK SUBWAY CONTRACTS.

Plans and specifications have been issued by the Public Service Commission, New York, for the construction of two important sections of double track, cast-iron tube tunnels, and bids will be opened on or after May 22. Section 3, route 48 extends from Pearl street, Manhattan, under the East river to a point near Clinton street, Brooklyn, and involves estimated quantities of about 108,000 yards of tunnel excavation, 45,000 yards of other excavation, and 36,150 tons of cast-iron tunnel lining. Section 2, route 33 extends from Whitehall and South streets, Manhattan, under the East river to Montague and Clinton streets, Brooklyn, and involves estimated quantities of about 163,000 yards tunnel excavation, 10,000 yards of other excavation, and 37,200 tons of cast-iron tunnel lining. Both sections have shafts with structural steel framework sunk by pneumatic caisson process, and the use of compressed air and driving shields for the submarine portions is contemplated.

BOSTON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD.

The New Cape Cod and New Bedford Steamship Company, capitalized for $400,000, which is coming to Boston through the efforts of the Boston Industrial Development Board, will make two trips daily through the Canal to New Bedford. Stops will be made at Sagamore, Sandwich, Bourne and Buzzards Bay. Arrangements have been made with electric express companies to handle freight for Onset, Wareham, Middleboro and Taunton, and other inland towns.

Boats will leave Boston at 9 a. m., returning at 8 p. m. The boats will connect with the Cape trains, the last of which arrives at Provincetown at 8 p. m. There is about $1,750,000 worth of fish shipped from the Cape towns during the year. Besides there are nearly 500,000 barrels of cranberries picked yearly. Both of these products the new line will carry for the Boston market.

With the thousands of visitors who visit Cape Cod every year, it is believed the boats will be taxed to their capacity.

Beginning with the opening of the new line in July, plans are being made to erect factories along the line of the Canal. Mr.

J. P. Fitts, manager and treasurer of the Company, says that he has already received promises from a large number of merchants who will use the line in carrying freight.

Beside the line to New Bedford there will be another steamer which will make daily trips to Provincetown. The three steamers will be first class in every respect. Two of them will be equipped with twin screws, capable of making an average speed of twelve knots.

From present indications the line will be one of the most prosperous opened in recent years, and Mr. Fitts says that as soon as the business increases to such an extent that the present steamers are too small, he is prepared to substitute newer and larger ones.

The first trip through the ditch will be made early in July when members of the Canal Commission, the Mayor and members of the City Council, and Industrial Board will be the guests of the Company.

IS BEACON HILL SCUTTLING THE MAYOR?

(Boston Herald.)

In his inaugural address Mr. Curley pledged himself to an honest and economical administration. Many persons who heard him, and a larger number who read the remarks, received the promise cynically, regarding it as the customary political palaver incident to such occasions. They expected that a payroll already inflated would be blown to still larger dimensions; that a contract system tainted with favoritism would be further corrupted; that the purchases of materials and supplies would be distributed among political henchmen; and in short that the whole structure of city government would be permeated with pernicious political practices.

When the first month of Mr. Curley's administration had ended some of the cynical began to believe in the Mayor's sincerity; others, and these constituted the great majority, were still from Missouri. After the second month there were more believers and fewer doubters. To-day, at the close of the first three months of the Mayor's administration, most of the open-minded citizens of Boston have begun to believe that a new and better era has dawned, and that the city's business will be transacted with a far greater degree of efficiency than in the recent past, if he can have his way about it.

The Mayor found the city's pay rolls so inflated by increases made in the latter part of his predecessor's administration that they could not be maintained for the whole of the present year without the aid of an increase in the statutory limit of taxation. He could have urged the passage of the bill providing for an increase of 45 cents in each $1,000 of the city's valuation, but feeling that what Boston needed was business, and that a low tax rate would help to keep the business that is already here and attract new business, he notified the Legislature that he opposed any increase in the tax limit, and thereupon bent his energies toward the reduction of the pay rolls. This course offended many of his supporters, but he faced the situation with courage.

The business man, the property owners large and small, the rent payers, the myriad consumers who pay taxes in advanced prices of every-day articles of life, appreciate his action. They always do that of a man with enough common sense and courage to protect the people against raids upon the public treasury. Mr. Curley has not only stopped the pay roll raids, but he has begun to effect wholesome economies in the city's purchases of materials and supplies. He has rejected bids whenever the prices seemed excessive, procuring new proposals at lower prices. He has begun to standardize the city's purchase of stationery and has declared that his next step will be the standardization of all kinds of city supplies.

The Mayor is contracting for a full year's needs of coal, milk, oil and other commodities at lower prices than could be obtained for smaller quantities. He has taken steps to lessen the debt by applying the proceeds of land sales toward this reduction, with the object of reducing the heavy interest charges which the city has had to pay. In fine, he has so far done what every competent business man would do in the transaction of his private affairs. This is a record which augurs well for the future.

But Mr. Curley is facing a serious menace to the success of his plan in the action of the members of his own party in the Legislature. If they could have their way the city would be forced by new legislation to spend two new dollars for every old one that he saves by his economies. For example, they are trying to force upon him an enlarged City Council, elected by districts. Judged by the city's experience with large councils thus elected this body would needlessly squander $500,000 a year. The same men are trying to saddle a two-platoon fire system upon the city. This would waste another half million a year, while reducing the efficiency of the Fire Department.

Well may the Mayor exclaim "Save me from my friends!" This process of blasting the prospects of the city should be stopped by the self-respecting members of the Legislature. Many of the Republican and Progressive members, and a few of the Democrats, are trying to protect the city by defeating these measures against which the Mayor has so vigorously protested. But the line-up is numerically weak.

Nor should it be too much to expect that the Governor, a member of the Mayor's own political party, would assist in this respect. Although the referendum is attached to these measures, he knows how little this means. No referendum, as an abstract principle, should blind him to the concrete effects of bad measures, such as the enlarged council and the two-platoon bills. Both spell extravagance and inefficiency and he knows it.

Boston, as the capital and the principal city of the Commonwealth, ought to have honest and efficient government. The Mayor is manfully striving to do his part. The citizens have a right to expect that the Legislature and the Governor will do their part as well. If Beacon Hill will not assist in maintaining in Boston decent government, the people are likely to make themselves heard in November in no uncertain sounds.

RECENT ENGLISH HOUSING SCHEMES.

The Whitehaven Town Council has adopted a housing scheme, the estimated cost of which is $78,825. They plan to build 34 self-contained houses, expecting to rent them at $1.31 a week; 34 three-room flats, in two stories, with independent front and back doors and sanitary arrangements, at a weekly rental of $1.06, and 12 two-room flats, arranged like the others, which they plan to rent for 81 cents a week.

The housing committee of the London County Council has prepared a scheme for building a garden suburb on part of the land owned by it at Tottenham, at an estimated cost of $2,442,500. The scheme provides for the erection of workmen's dwellings on 62 acres, and for the sale or lease of 43 acres for better class houses, the remaining 19½ acres being devoted to public buildings and open spaces. Two main avenues, each 100 feet in width, are included in the plan.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor:

SIR,—The Finance Commission respectfully submits the following report as a result of its investigation into the concessions granted by the City of Boston to individuals to occupy portions of lands and buildings belonging to the city.

I. PARK AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT.

1. Frank J. Gethro, Marine Park Boat Service Between Mainland and Castle Island and Squantum.

This concession permits boats to run from the Park Department landing at City Point to Castle Island and Squantum and return, for which fees of five and ten cents respectively are charged. The landings and wharves are provided by the city, but the floats and boats are furnished by the lessee. The concession was granted for five years from December 31, 1911, and will expire on December 31, 1916. The annual rental is $500. During the past two years the lessee's total receipts, according to his own statement, including those from private contractors and from passengers to and from Castle Island, have amounted to $19,212.08. He admits that his profits above all expenses are between $4,000 and $5,000 a year.

During the summer he runs four boats, two capable of carrying 100 passengers each, and two with a capacity varying from 300 to 350 passengers. The lessee in 1913 was paid by the department $1,025, or twice the amount which he paid the city, for transporting laborers of the department from the mainland to Governor's Island, notwithstanding that in the lease there is a provision that the lessee "shall, without charges therefor, allow the members of the Board and such persons as the Board may from time to time specify, to enter upon and use or to be transported on his boats."

The lessee and the deputy commissioner construe this clause as giving the Park Commissioners only the right to inspect the boats. The deputy commissioner, however, stated that he did not know of this provision of the lease when he approved the bill for $1,025.

The present lessee is now using his boats for a general contracting business in addition to the original purpose of carrying passengers to Castle Island and to Squantum. In the past two years he has had contracts with the Boston Development and Sanitary Company and with W. F. Kearns & Co., and with other contractors. These contracts have paid him a large return. While he denied that the Park Department wharves at City Point were used for his mercantile business, he admitted that he had on occasions taken materials from this landing to the islands in the harbor for private customers and that he had no other headquarters for his business.

The Finance Commission is convinced that the business of the lessee has developed far beyond the purpose of the concession originally granted him. It also is of the opinion that, under the condition in the contract quoted above, the Park Department is entitled to have its laborers carried by the lessee free of charge.

The possession of this valuable concession by the present lessee was apparently obtained without sufficient competition. The Finance Commission is of the opinion that, in awarding any concession, the widest opportunity for genuine competition should be given.

The Finance Commission recommends that on the expiration of the present lease the concession be open to public competition by advertising, not only in the City Record, but also by sending copies of the advertisement to persons engaged in the steamboat business, that the concession be awarded to the highest responsible bidder, at a minimum fee of $1,000 a year, with the right to use the wharf for business purposes from October to May. (See chapter 365, Acts of 1897.)

2. Gabriel Farrell, Charlesbank Boat Service.

The concession is held under a lease which will expire on or about March 27, 1917, at an annual rental of $100. The present holder has had the privilege for the last fifteen or sixteen years and has paid therefor an annual rental of from $50 to $150. In addition to the payment of $100 a year rental, Mr. Farrell constructed and maintains a floating boat-house in accordance with plans approved by the Park Department.

The Finance Commission recommends that at the expiration of the present lease the concession should be open to public competition and be awarded to the highest responsible bidder.

3. Charles Bova, Head House, Marine Park.

This concession is held under a lease which will expire December 31, 1915, at an annual rental of $2,500, and allows the holder to conduct a restaurant and lunch business and to let bathing suits at the Park Department Building at Marine Park. Under the terms of the lease it is provided that, in addition to an annual rental of $2,500, the lessee shall make all interior repairs to the building occupied, including renewals and repairs to fixtures and equipment; shall heat, light and provide watchmen for the building, and shall supply salt water and hot water for bathing. Mr. Bova, the lessee, does not pay for the water used on the premises.

Mr. Bova stated that while his average annual receipts vary from $12,000 to $19,000 (the latter figure being the amount of money taken in during the year 1913), his net receipts amount to about $2,500. The business is increasing. Mr. Bova stated, and in a few years the receipts should approximate $25,000, with a net profit of $5,000 to $6,000.

The Finance Commission recommends:

1. That there be public competition for the leasing of the head house at the expiration of the present lease.

2. That the terms of the present lease be strictly enforced by the department.

3. That the water used at the head house be charged to the lessee at meter rates.

4. That the money consideration paid for the lease be fixed at a minimum of $3,500.

4. Thomas O'Brien, L Street Pavilion.

Mr. O'Brien has an oral lease which will expire December 31, 1914, at an annual rental of $125. In addition to the yearly cash payments, Mr. O'Brien does whatever repairs are necessary to the station which he occupies in the pavilion opposite the L Street Bath House in South Boston.

The Finance Commission recommends that a renewal of this privilege be granted by inviting public competition.

5. Antonio Gregori, Castle Island Booths.

This concession consists of four booths on Castle Island, and although granted to Antonio Gregori the business is carried on by his son. No money is paid to the city. Mr. Gregori is required to cut the grass on Marine Park and employ caretakers for the women's and men's sanitariums on Castle Island, and have general care of both the park and the island. The lease is oral and renewed each year. Mr. Gregori has exclusive control of the sale of candy, soda, cigars, etc., on Castle Island and that part of Marine Park which is contiguous to the approaches to Castle Island Bridge. He employs a man with a horse and mowing machine for cutting the grass on certain parts of Marine Park, and hires a woman and a man to care for the sanitariums on Castle Island. He also cuts the grass on Castle Island and keeps both park and island free from litter and papers. In addition, Mr. Gregori the younger has been authorized to act as special policeman by the Boston Police Department, to preserve order on the island. After the closing of the summer season he acts as custodian of the island, being furnished with living and sleeping quarters within the fort. With the exception of one policeman furnished by the City of Boston, the whole supervision of the island during the summer months, when thousands of people visit there on week days and Sundays, is under Mr. Gregori's charge and that of the persons employed by him.

The Finance Commission recommends, because of the large increase in the number of visitors compared with former years, that the City of Boston, through the properly constituted departments, should not only exercise police control, but should also be directly responsible for the general care of Castle Island and Marine Park. In future no concession should be granted upon the consideration that the care of a part of the park system should be undertaken by private individuals. The commission further recommends that this privilege should be open to public competition, a minimum figure a year be fixed for which the privilege should be leased, and the concession awarded to the highest responsible bidder.

6. Autosales Gum and Chocolate Company; Weighing Machine Privileges at L Street, Dover Street, North Bennet Street and Cabot Street Bath Houses.

The company pays for the privilege 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ per cent of its gross receipts. Mr. Edward E. Adams, agent for the Autosales Gum and Chocolate Company, has stated that he is willing to pay 50 per cent of the gross receipts.

The Finance Commission recommends that the rates paid by Mr. Adams be raised from 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ per cent to 50 per cent of the receipts, and that he be allowed to install his machines not only in the bath houses, but in the municipal buildings, the Aquarium, the Aviary and such other places as may seem advisable, on the same terms. If, however, it is possible to obtain competition for this concession, the commission recommends that it be done.

7. Coin Collecting Lock Company.

Under this concession the company is allowed to install a prepayment lock on the Boston Common and Public Garden sanitariums. As there is no expense for upkeep or attendants, the Finance Commission recommends that the charge for this concession be set at 50 per cent of the receipts. If competition can be obtained for this concession, the Finance Commission recommends that it be done.

8. Mrs. R. L. Graves; Refreshment Station and Boat Landing, and Skating Concession, Jamaica Pond.

Mrs. Graves was given the concession in July, 1913. The refectory building and bandstand cost over $20,000 to build. The refectory building contains toilets for men and women on the second floor and a refreshment room on the ground floor. The privileges granted Mrs. Graves consist of the refreshment room, where soda, candy and cigars are sold, and also the right to lease for hire row boats on Jamaica Pond; and in the winter the privilege of letting out skates. The City of Boston provides the light, heat and water in the refectory building and a large number of boats on the pond. In return for this concession the refectory building, the women's and men's toilets and the bandstand are to be kept clean. Mrs. Graves stated that she employs on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays an attendant for the toilets, but the Park Department pay roll shows that a matron is employed therein by the city and paid $10 a week.

The Finance Commission recommends that this concession be opened to public competition, a minimum fee established, a charge made for water and light, and the stand awarded to the highest responsible bidder.

9. The Massachusetts Training Ship.

The ship "Ranger", belonging to the Massachusetts Naval Training School, occupies a berth at the North End Park, from November to May, and pays therefor the sum of $800. During the summer months, when the park is extensively used, the ship is away on cruises and consequently does not interfere with the proper use of the park. The Park Department officials stated that they consider the rental paid is a very good consideration for the privilege and in this opinion the Finance Commission concurs.

10. Charles Fottler.

Mr. Fottler has maintained a small station on Franklin Field and in the locker building for a great many years, for sharpening and letting skates, at an annual lease of 10 per cent of his gross receipts. These payments to the city have varied and are computed from the receipts of the cash register which Mr. Fottler maintains at the stand and which is read by a city employee.

11. Thomas Hollingsworth.

Mr. Hollingsworth occupies a blacksmith's shop as tenant-at-will upon the Conder Street Wharf, at a rental of $5 a month. He has occupied it for the last five years.

12. S. J. Hudgens.

Mr. Hudgens of Ipswich, under this concession, has been allowed to maintain a station at Marine Park where children can obtain rides on burros and donkeys, and has paid no fee therefor, because he claimed that the business could not be maintained by him if any fee were charged for the privilege.

13. Thomas J. Higgins.

Mr. Higgins has a permit to anchor a float at Wood Island Park and to let boats upon an oral agreement. For this concession he pays no fee.

14. T. P. Dixon.

Mr. Dixon pays $8.50 a year as compensation for the occupation of a small part of the Charlestown playground.

Mr. Dixon has a blacksmith shop, extending 1½ feet over the city line, which does not interfere with the use of the playground, as the Park Department officials have not developed that portion of the playground. The rental seems to be adequate.

II. STREET LAYING-OUT DEPARTMENT.

15. Mr. Karalekas; Bootblack Stand. Angel Street and Blue Hill Avenue, Rental $50 a Year.

This stand is occupied as a bootblackening establishment and is leased to Mr. Karalekas by the Street Commissioners.

On account of the small amount involved, the Finance Commission recommends no changes in the terms of the leases or concessions granted to Charles Fottler, Thomas Hollingsworth, S. J. Hudgens, Thomas J. Higgins, T. P. Dixon, and Mr. Karalekas.

III. MAYOR'S OFFICE.

16. John J. Paget, Swan Boats and Row Boats on Public Garden, Annual Rental $300.

On account of the removal of nearly all the office records of the former Mayor before he left office in 1914, it has been impossible for the commission to examine the correspondence between the Mayor's office and the Paget family regarding this concession. Mr. Paget stated that his average annual receipts vary from $4,000 to $5,000 and his net profits from $2,000 to $2,500. The concession has been held by the Paget family for thirty-five years. It allows the holder to operate the swan boats and row boats on the pond in the Public Garden. The granting of the privilege is under the control of the Mayor's office and not under the Park and Recreation Department. In addition to the payment of $300 the lessee is required to build the wooden landings and runways and to maintain them in good condition.

The Finance Commission recommends:

1. That this concession be open to public competition and be awarded to the highest responsible bidder at a minimum fee of $500.

2. That a request be made upon the exmayor for correspondence, reports and papers of the Mayor's office, as city property should have been left in the office.

3. That the authority to grant this concession be transferred to the Park and Recreation Department, which has jurisdiction over the Public Garden.

IV. PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

The Finance Commission investigated the concessions granted by the Public Works Department for newspaper stations at the north and south ferries. It finds upon examination of the lessees that adequate compensation is being paid to the city for the privileges granted to them, and therefore makes no recommendation for changes.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor:

SIR,—The Finance Commission desires to call your attention to certain facts concerning the cost to the City of Boston of the house occupied by deputy commissioner of the Park and Recreation Department, James B. Shea.

On January 28, 1913, the Park and Recreation Department was established by ordinance and it was provided therein that there should be created two divisions within said department, namely, a Park Division and a Recreation Division. It was specified that each division should be in charge of a deputy commissioner who should devote his whole time to the work and who should receive an annual salary of not more than $4,200. (Section 9, chapter 10, Ordinances of 1912.) In conformity with this direction the commissioners of the department appointed, on March 22, 1913, James B. Shea to be deputy commissioner of the Park Division. On August 8, 1913, the Park Commissioners, in direct violation of the ordinance quoted above, passed a vote granting to Mr. Shea the free use of a thirteen room house, owned by the city and located in Franklin Park. The vote was as follows: "Voted,—That the use of the Peters' house, so called, in Franklin Park be given to Mr. Shea, as part compensation for his services as deputy commissioner of the Park Department."

Mr. Shea had already been in actual occupancy of the house since the fall of 1912 after Mr. Pettigrew's death, and while he was acting as superintendent of the old Park Department.

Not only was the use of the house itself granted him but he was also allowed to make extensive repairs and renovations to it, at the expense of the city, shortly before the ordinance was passed and after it took effect. For example: In the fall of 1912 there was paid $62 for new window shades and $223.78 for painting and papering, and $695.53 was paid for electric light wiring and fixtures. In 1913 a new furnace and laundry stove was installed at a cost of $328.25, making a total charged to the city of $1,309.56.

In addition to the work done by outside firms there was a great deal of work done by the department employees at the direct order of Mr. Shea, such as painting and varnishing, cleaning, superintending the installation of the electric lights, the installing of two bath tubs and a shower bath and new toilet facilities in two rooms of the house, one for the use of the family and one for the use of a maid.

Not only did the department officials approve bills for the improvement of the house but they also approved electric light bills, for lighting the house, and coal bills for heating; the electric light bills from February 1, 1913, to March 31, 1914, amounted to $227.60, in some months (notably January and February, 1914) showing a charge of $45.70 and $45.90, respectively; while the cost of coal from December 18, 1912, to March 2, 1914, amounted to $335.69, making a total payment of $563.29 by the city for heat and light for approximately one year.

The present chairman and secretary of the Park and Recreation Department are of the opinion that the former Board exceeded its powers not only in granting to Mr. Shea the free use of the Franklin Park house but also in allowing payments for its renovation and maintenance.

The commission recommends that your Honor call the attention of the Commissioners of the Park and Recreation Department to the provisions of the ordinance establishing the maximum compensation of the deputy commissioner of the Park and Recreation Department.

Respectfully submitted,
THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor:

SIR,—The Finance Commission desires to call your attention to the fact that it finds on the books of the Water Service of the Sewer and Water Division of the Public Works Department a bill for water for the third quarter of 1911 (July 1 to September 23), amounting to $3,466 unpaid by Henry Siegel & Co.

At the time of the presentation of the bill Henry Siegel & Co., made a protest to the Mayor's office, claiming that it was twice as large as previous bills which had been rendered to the Siegel Company. At the request of the Mayor the claim for abatement on the part of the Siegel Company was investigated by the Meter Division and it reported that this large amount of water had been used by the company and was due to a change in its methods of using water. The engineer in charge of the Water Service also reported that he saw no reason for an abatement, and both the report of the Meter Division and of the engineer were transmitted to the Mayor's office on November 21, 1911. The bill remains unpaid at the present time, although Henry Siegel & Co., were furnished with water in 1912, 1913 and 1914, and paid the bills for the use thereof.

The Finance Commission recommends that the bill be referred to the Law Department immediately for collection.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,

Chairman.

COST OF FOOTBRIDGE, DALTON STREET.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 4, 1914.

To the City Council:
I transmit herewith communication from the Commissioner of Public Works submitting report as to the estimated cost of a footbridge from Dalton street over the Boston & Albany Railroad to Boylston street, in compliance with the vote of your honorable body on April 13, 1914.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Public Works Department, April 23, 1914.

To the Honorable the Mayor:
Sir,—In compliance with the attached order of the Honorable City Council, I beg to report as follows:

The estimated cost of a footbridge from Dalton street over the Boston & Albany Railroad to Boylston street, which will meet the conditions imposed by the railroad company, is approximately $19,500, exclusive of damages to the railroad company.

In 1909 an appropriation of $10,000 was made for a footbridge at this point, and under ordinary conditions the bridge could have been built within that appropriation. When negotiations were opened with the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, however, that company imposed certain conditions with reference to location of bridge, length of span, and use to support the signals of the railroad, which practically doubled the cost of the bridge, making it impossible to build it within the original appropriation.

An additional appropriation of $10,000, added to the funds now in hand, will build the bridge, provided the Boston & Albany Railroad Company will waive damages and make no claim for extra expenses, such as shifting signals, etc.

I would recommend that a definite agreement be entered into between the city and the company, fixing the damages, before any additional appropriation for this work is made.

Respectfully,
L. K. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

EXECUTION OF COURT.

I transmit herewith a communication from the City Auditor relative to payment in excess of the balance of appropriation for damages for taking of real estate for Tyler Street Playground and charged to the appropriation for Playground, Ward 7.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Auditing Department, April 29, 1914.

Hon. James M. Curley,
Mayor of Boston:

Sir,—An execution of court amounting to $3,833.89 was paid to-day as damages for taking of real estate for Tyler Street Playground and charged to the appropriation for Playground, Ward 7.

This payment is in excess of the balance in the appropriation and leaves $289.18 to be provided for.

Respectfully,
J. ALFRED MITCHELL, City Auditor.
Referred to Committee on Finance.

TARGET PRACTICE, MILITIA.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 4, 1914.

To the City Council:
I transmit herewith communication from the Superintendent of Public Buildings relative to providing necessary facilities for target practice for the militia stationed within the city limits during the season for such practice. I recommend the passage of the accompanying order making provision for an appropriation of $5,000 for this purpose to be charged to the appropriation for the Public Buildings Department.

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Public Buildings Department,
April 25, 1914.

Hon. James M. Curley,

Mayor of Boston:

Dear Sir,—Section 130 of the Acts of 1908 specifies, in part, that the Mayor and Aldermen shall provide the necessary facilities for target practice for the militia stationed within the city's limits, and as the usual season for such target practice begins about May 1, I submit herewith an order covering the same for the consideration of the City Council.

It has been customary to present a similar order each year to the City Council. This total amount of $5,000 is to be charged to the appropriation of this department when made.

Yours respectfully,
M. J. FISH,
Superintendent of Public Buildings.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Public Buildings be hereby authorized to furnish the necessary facilities for target practice for the troops of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia stationed in Boston during the present season, on the approval of their respective commanding officers, not exceeding the following amounts to each organization:

To the Corps Coast Artillery.....	$1,015 00

To the First Corps Cadets.....	655 00

BRIDGE, SAVIN HILL AVENUE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 4, 1914.

To the City Council:
I transmit herewith two copies of an agreement to be executed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and the Old Colony Railroad Company, and the Mayor of the city, providing for alterations intended to strengthen the bridge over the railroad tracks at the Savin Hill Avenue Station. The agreements are in the form required by the statute, and the city's interests are protected by the provision that the railroad shall bear all of the expense, including land damages.

I transmit also an order drafted by the Corporation Counsel authorizing the Mayor to execute these agreements in behalf of the city. I recommend the adoption thereof.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.
(Annexed was agreement referred to.)

Resolved, That it is necessary for the security and convenience of the public that alterations be made in the bridge at the crossing of Savin Hill avenue and the tracks of the Old Colony Railroad Company, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company lessee;

Ordered, That the Mayor be and he hereby is authorized to sign in behalf of the city an instrument in writing in agreement with the Old Colony Railroad Company, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company lessee, a copy of which is hereto annexed, specifying the manner and limits within which these alterations shall be made, by which party the work shall be done, the general method of construction, and the obligation of the railroad company to bear the total cost of the alterations, all subject to the approval of the Board of Public Service Commissioners.

Referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

PURCHASE OF OFFICE SUPPLIES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 4, 1914.

To the City Council:
The present system of purchasing indiscriminately at retail prices such office supplies as may be necessary, for the various departments of the municipality, which represents approximately $30,000 annually, should, in my opinion, be abolished.

The centralization of the purchase of office supplies in the Department of Printing, with contracts covering such quantities as may be required throughout the year, should result in a saving to the city of approximately 40 per cent.

I, therefore, recommend the adoption of the accompanying ordinance, making provision for such centralization and making it possible to effect this saving.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston.

REPORTS ON STREET LIGHTING.

The following was received:

United Improvement Association.

8 Beacon Street, May 1, 1914.

To the City Council.

Daniel J. McDonald, President:

Gentlemen,—I am instructed by the Executive Committee to send to the City Council the inclosed report on the proposed new lighting contracts, in compliance with the Council's order of April 6, requesting the United Improvement Association to investigate the matter of street lighting and report to the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

Very truly yours,

HOWARD WHITEMORE,
Executive Secretary.

United Improvement Association Report of the Committee on Streets on the Proposed New Street Lighting Contracts.

April 29, 1914.

To the Executive Committee:

The Committee on Streets, to which was referred the order of the Boston City Council of April 6 requesting the United Improvement Association to investigate the matter of street lighting and report to the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, has given this matter careful attention to the extent of the time available.

Your committee is of the opinion that it is not practicable to attempt to determine the merits of the rates proposed to be charged for the various grades of street lighting, as such an undertaking, to be of any value, should include a thorough investigation of details by experts familiar with all the technical and commercial features.

It seems reasonable to assume that the Commissioner of Public Works is better posted to pass on the technical and practical features connected with this matter than your committee would be, unless it were possible to carry out such an extended investigation as suggested above.

From its investigation your committee believes:

1. That the proposed new rates will produce a marked saving to the city.

2. That, owing to conditions at the present time, the city can be better served at a less cost by entering into a contract or contracts with public service corporations than by maintaining a municipal plant.

3. That it seems probable that improvements and developments in apparatus and manufacture will cause a reduction in market values. And that, for this reason, the city's interests would be safeguarded better by a five year than by a ten year contract.

4. That any improved methods of lighting should reduce the cost to the city rather than simply furnish an unnecessary increase in illumination.

5. That the contracts under consideration are not properly drawn to protect the best interests of the city and should be redrafted before being accepted by the City Council. For example:

a. Both contracts should conform as far as consistent.

b. Specifications should be more clearly stated so as to avoid possible difference of interpretation.

c. There should be an equal division of any expense necessary to settle points in dispute.

Your committee further believes that the rates should be determined by a disinterested and well qualified board, and therefore suggests that the city and the companies should mutually agree to submit the matter of rates to the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, and to incorporate that Board's findings in contracts which shall date as of April 1, 1914. If the city and the companies cannot agree as above suggested, or if the said Board declines to act upon the mutual request of the parties, then, in the opinion of your committee, his Honor the Mayor should submit this matter of street lighting to the said Board under the provisions of section 34 of chapter 121 of the Revised Laws. The committee also thinks that it may be desirable to have the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners designated in the arbitration clauses of the contracts as the arbitrators to determine any reasonable claims for lower price of service.

Respectfully submitted,

EPHRAIM HARRINGTON,
Chairman Committee on Streets.

The above report was approved and adopted by the Executive Committee on behalf of the association on April 30, 1914, and the executive secretary was instructed to transmit copies thereof to his Honor the Mayor, the City Council, and the Finance Commission.

HOWARD WHITEMORE,
Executive Secretary.

The following was received:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON MUNICIPAL AND METROPOLITAN AFFAIRS CONCERNING THE PROPOSED NEW CONTRACTS FOR LIGHTING THE STREETS OF BOSTON WITH GAS AND ELECTRICITY.

April 17, 1914.

To the Executive Committee and Board of Directors:
At its meeting on March 28 the Boston City Council adopted the following order:

"That the Chamber of Commerce be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to investigate the matter of city lighting and advise the city government as to a proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company."

In compliance with this request the Committee on Municipal and Metropolitan Affairs has made a careful study of the proposed contracts for public lighting both by gas and by electricity in the City of Boston. In the course of its investigation the committee has conferred with Commissioner Louis K. Rourke of the Public Works Department, Mr. Charles L. Edgar, president of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, Mr. E. N. Wrightington vice-president of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company and Mr. P. J. Fitzgerald, president of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company. The committee also had expert advice and assistance from Prof. D. C. Jackson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The committee's conclusions as the result of this careful inquiry may be set forth briefly as follows:

As Regards Both the Electric and Gas Contracts.

1. The committee begs to call the City Council's attention to the fact that, contrary to the usual custom in such matters, neither the electric nor the gas contract has been approved as to form by the City's Law Department. The committee believes the custom of submitting all contracts to the Law Department to be essential to the protection of the city's interest, and suggests that the views of the Corporation Counsel of the city be obtained as to the proposed contracts, and that any contract made be subject to his approval as to form.

2. The committee believes that neither of the lighting contracts now before the City Council ought to be approved until they have been redrafted and made more nearly uniform. As at present framed, the contracts for gas and electric lighting, respectively, contain dissimilar provisions on various points where the city's interests are seriously concerned. The committee believes that there is no good reason for any such difference and that the two contracts, so far as they deal with the same thing, should be worded alike. A list of these various discrepancies in these two contracts is given in the latter part of this report. (See page 4.)

3. Both contracts are for ten-year terms. The committee is of the opinion that, generally speaking, ten-year contracts are too long when no considerable investment of new capital is called for from the contractors, and in view of the fact that the previous contract for electric lighting has been for five years only. Both of the proposed contracts contain arbitration provisions for the protection of the city which might perhaps be eliminated if the contracts are made for five-year terms only. If, however, the contracts are made for ten-year terms, the arbitration clauses should be retained as a means of securing reduction in price during the contract term.

The Electric Lighting Contract.

1. In the case of the proposed electric lighting contract, the committee has concluded, from its study of lighting costs in other cities, that a fair price for 6.6 ampere incandescent arc lamps on a basis of 3,828 light hours per annum (taking into consideration the fact that wires are almost wholly placed underground and only wooden poles used) would be from $80 to $90 per year. The evidence upon which the committee has reached this conclusion is summarized below (page 90), and has been substantiated by Prof. D. C. Jackson of the Institute of Technology. Whether the price proposed in the pending contract with the Edison Company, namely, $87.53, is precisely the lowest figure which the city can fairly hope to obtain would involve a more detailed and more technical investigation than this committee has felt qualified to make. The committee can assure the City Council, however, that the proposed price is not substantially more than other cities are now required to pay for the same lighting service under approximately similar conditions. Our investigation has shown that those cities (such as Detroit and Chicago) which claim to have cheaper lighting arrangements than those proposed in Boston, are obtaining current from municipal plants at estimated costs which include no adequate allowance for interest, depreciation and loss of taxes, etc., or are using lamps of greatly inferior illuminating power. The Edison Company last year paid in taxes to Boston $375,001, to suburban cities and towns in the metropolitan district, $73,653, to the state, $321,649, and to the Federal Government, $20,443—a total of $790,746.

It should be clearly understood that while the contract price mentioned in the preceding paragraph ($87.53) is for a 6.6 ampere magnetite arc lamp, the pending contract with the city gives the company the right to substitute "incandescent lamps of large candle power" for the magnetite arc lamps. We presume that this provision has in view the substitution of a newly invented nitrogen incandescent lamp, capable of producing the same candle power as the magnetite arc, but with a considerably smaller consumption of current. While $87.53 seems to the committee to be a not unreasonable price for magnetite arc lamps, the committee is not in a position to offer an opinion as to a fair price for these nitrogen incandescent lamps, in case they should be substituted, but it desires to point out the fact that under the present contract the city would get no benefit from the saving resulting from the substitution, but would continue to pay the price specified for magnetite lamps.

The committee also suggests that if this contract is to be made for a ten-year term it should clearly provide for a reduction, to be fixed by arbitration, through the substitution from time to time of improved types of lamps, as well as through decreases in the cost of producing and distributing current.

2. The committee begs to call the attention of the Mayor and the City Council to the fact that the present practice of requiring all lamps to be mounted on wooden poles involves a large actual expense to the Edison Company and consequently enhances the price at which light can be supplied to the city. The requirement of wooden poles has its basis in chapter 228 of the Acts of 1895, which provides that "all poles and posts used for the transmission of electricity shall be insulated in such manner as to protect employees and other persons from accidents." This statute likewise gives to the Commissioner of Wires entire discretion as to what constituted a proper insulation, and in the exercise of this discretion the commissioner in charge of the Boston Wire Department has insisted on the use of wooden poles. The president of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company estimates that this requirement involves an added cost of about five dollars per lamp per annum, owing to the rapid deterioration and necessity of replacing the wooden poles at intervals of ten years.

In view of the fact that poles made partly of wood and partly of iron are permitted in many other cities, the committee makes the suggestion that his Honor the Mayor request the Commissioner of Wires to confer with the officials of the Edison Company with a view to ascertaining whether some new type of pole involving a smaller replacement cost might not be approved for future use. In such event, the contract should make proper arrangements for a revision in price per lamp as the new posts are installed.

The Gas Contracts.

1. The committee believes that the gas and electric lighting contracts have so many features in common that one ought not to be considered apart from the other. A fundamental difference between these two contracts as they now stand is that the whole work of electric lighting is covered by a single contract, while the matter of providing gas light is divided into two contracts, one of which is for supplying the gas and the other for the care of the lamps, including the work of lighting and extinguishing. The committee understands that it is the intention of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company to retain only the contract for supplying the gas and that it will sublet the other contract to the Welsbach Company. The committee sees no vital objection to this division of the work into two contracts or to the subletting as proposed. We suggest, however, that, as a matter of sound policy, all such contracts should contain a clause providing that the contractor shall not assign or sublet any portion of his contract without the consent of the Mayor or the City Council.

2. Two years ago the Chamber of Commerce submitted to the City Council a report recommending that the city should purchase and own its gas lamp equipment just as it now owns the poles, and should place the care and maintenance of the lamps in the hands of its own employees. The committee still believes that this policy, while it probably would involve a higher cost per lamp, would in the long run place the city in a much better position as regards the making of future lighting contracts. If, however, his Honor the Mayor and the City Council believe that it is not now feasible to undertake the expenditure involved in the purchase of lamp equipment, the committee is of the opinion that the terms offered by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company in the pending contract are reasonably fair, provided the committee's suggestions as to specifications (see page 91) are adopted. The figures upon which the committee has based this conclusion are summarized in the latter part of this report. (See page 91.)

In conclusion, the committee begs to make clear that it has merely endeavored to be sure that these contracts, both as regards their general terms and as regards the prices charged, are within reasonable distance of what the city can fairly expect. The committee has not felt qualified to make the detailed and technical analysis of costs which would be necessary in order to render a definite opinion on the matter of prices charged for lighting.

Differences between the Proposed New Electric and Gas Lighting Contracts as at Present Drawn.

The committee begs to call attention to a lack of uniformity in the wording of these contracts even where they deal with exactly the same points, as for example:

1. The provisions relating to the method of appointing experts in the case of arbitration proceedings and as regards the cost of arbitration are different in the two contracts. In the gas lighting contract, for instance (section 14), it is provided that the city shall pay the cost; in the electric lighting contract no provision is made as to payment. The committee suggests that all matters relating to arbitration should be made alike in both contracts and that each should provide either for an equal division of the cost between the city and company or for such division of costs as the arbiters may adjudge, if arbitration proceedings should be undertaken. Technical arbitrations involving the employment of experts are always expensive and due provision for taking care of such things ought to be made in advance.

2. There is also a difference in the two contracts as regards the provisions for extension when the original ten-year term expires. In the case of the gas lighting contract the city may at its option extend the contract term for six months at a time on due notice (section 12); but the electric lighting contract does not terminate at the end of ten years unless the city gives a year's notice in advance. One contract expires by limitation, the other continues by default. The committee strongly believes that the extension provision in the gas lighting contract is the more favorable to the city and should be substituted for that which now appears in the electric lighting contract.

3. It will be noticed that the electric lighting company's contract includes a bond in the sum of $100,000; while no bond is required from the gas company or from its subcontractor. A bond should be required from both or from neither. As both the Edison Electric Illuminating Company and the Boston Consolidated Gas Company are corporations of unquestionable responsibility, the committee sees no good reason why a bond should be required from either. The requirement merely adds to the cost of providing the service and gives no added security to the city.

4. In various other points, such as the powers of arbitrators and the basis of reductions in price as well as the dates on which payments are to be made by the city to the company, the two contracts are not uniform but ought to be made so wherever practicable. The committee is well aware that in matters relating to details of service contracts for the supply of gas and electricity must differ in their provisions; but in general conditions (such as the arbitration, extension and penalty clauses) there should be uniformity.

The Cost of Electric Lighting in Other Cities.

The committee has gathered from the annual reports of other cities, as well as by means of special circular inquiries, a great deal of data concerning the cost of lighting the larger municipalities all over the United States. A careful study of this data with the aid of experts, has led us unanimously to the following preliminary conclusions:

1. That a mere tabulated comparison of the prices charged in various cities, without taking into careful account many features connected with the quality of the service, is of no value whatever and serves little purpose except to mislead. A moment's consideration must make clear to any one that such things as the illuminating efficiency of the lamps used, the percentage of the wires carried in underground conduits, the amount of taxes exacted from the contracting companies, and the local conditions under which the contract is performed, such as cost of coal, cost of labor, including the laws relating to hours of labor and workmen's compensation, availability of water power, etc., that all these things must be taken into account in comparing the real cost to the city.

Likewise the committee is convinced that comparisons based on cost per mile of streets, or cost per capita of population, or other tabulations of such general nature are of no real value. Different cities pursue very dissimilar policies as regards the spacing of lamps, their elevation from the ground, their distribution in various parts of the city, and even as regards methods of measurement. There can be no greater absurdity than to draw conclusions from tables of figures each of which has been compiled on a different basis.

Actual Costs in Other Cities.

The actual cost of electric lighting in other cities can only be computed accurately when one investigates the quality of the service rendered and the conditions under which the current is supplied. In Detroit, for example, it is usually given out that the price per arc lamp per year is $46.81. But the committee has found that this is an average figure for lights of different illuminating efficiency, the best of which is a 4.4 ampere arc of 467 candle power and that the price is for service by a municipal plant which makes no adequate allowance for depreciation and loss of taxes. Practically all wires, moreover, are carried overhead. The committee estimates that, when these things are reckoned, Detroit is paying approximately $60 per year for a 4.4 ampere lamp, and that this is the figure which should be compared with the proposed Boston contract price of $87.53 for 6.6 ampere lamps of nearly double the candle power.

In Chicago the cost for electric lights operated from the municipal plant is given as $60.32, but this figure does not contain a due allowance for depreciation or lost taxes, and it is an average for the cost of all lamps, whatever their candle power. The best lamp is a 465 watt A. C. flame giving about 900 candle power with an Alba Globe which is below the Boston standard. Chicago likewise has a contract for the supply of 1,000 lights of the same quality by a private company and for these the city pays $75 per year with practically all the wires carried overhead. With due allowance for the additional cost of underground circuits, for the requirement as to wooden poles, and for the heavier taxes on public service corporations in Massachusetts, this figure affords a proper basis for comparison with Boston.

In Philadelphia the annual cost for lamps somewhat inferior to those used in Boston is $97.64 where wires are underground and $81.22 where they are strung overhead.

In New York the annual cost of the highest-powered lamp (A. C. and D. C. 450 watt enclosed arc), which is inferior to that proposed in Boston, is $90 per year, with wires largely underground.

Among the larger cities of the United States only two have been found by the committee to have lamps of equal or greater efficiency at lower prices than that proposed in the pending Boston contract. These cities are Pittsburgh and St. Louis. In Pittsburgh the 6.6 ampere magnetite lamp of 1,150 candle power with wires underground (substantially similar to that proposed in Boston) costs the city $72.50 per year. The proximity of Pittsburgh to the coal fields accounts in part for this low price and there are doubtless other features which the committee has not been able to study in detail.

In St. Louis the price charged for the same lamp as in Pittsburgh (6.6 or 6.8 ampere arc of 1,150 candle power) is about $50 per year, but the current is supplied largely by a water-power plant; the wires are nearly all overhead, and the taxes imposed on the company are much lower than in Boston. Nevertheless, with due allowance for all these advantages the real cost to the city seems to be distinctly lower in St. Louis than that proposed in the pending Boston contract.

What is a Fair Cost for a 6.6 Ampere Arc Lamp Under Boston Conditions?

The best analytical study of the actual cost of providing electric light in any city under ordinary conditions is that made a short time ago by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission at the request of the City of Milwaukee. From an investigation of all the factors, including allowances for depreciation, the cost of putting part of the wires in underground circuits, etc., the commission concluded that to provide 4.4 ampere lamps at $65.50 per year would allow the contracting company a profit of 6 per cent. The conditions in Milwaukee as regards cost of coal, cost of labor, taxes, etc., are not so far as the committee can ascertain, markedly different from those in Boston. On the basis of $65.50 for standard 4.4 ampere lamps, the committee has concluded from the figures which it has obtained from an electrical expert, that a fair price for a 6.6 ampere lamp of the Boston type would be about 30 per cent additional, or from $80 to $90. This estimate is made for the committee by Prof. D. C. Jackson of the Institute of Technology in a written opinion which reads in part as follows: "It seems to me that a reasonable price for 6.6 ampere magnetite arc lamps operating 3,828 hours per annum, largely on underground circuits, as in Boston, is between $80 and $90 per year, when allowing 6 per cent interest."

The figure offered by the Edison Company in its pending contract is between the above amounts. Whether it ought to come nearer the lower limit the committee cannot undertake to say. It is possible that a further negotiation between the city and the company might result in securing a somewhat more favorable bargain. But it should be borne in mind, in conducting such negotiation, that even should the city manage to get a price lower than that which pays the company a fair return, the private users of electricity in the city will, in all probability, have to make good the difference. The Massachusetts Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, which has jurisdiction in the matter of rates, will, of course, allow the Edison Company a fair return on its total investment and if public lighting is conducted without any profit to the company, the profit will have to be supplied entirely by private users of light and power.

The following table gives the cost and quality of service in some of the cities investigated by the committee:

The Cost of Gas Lighting.

A year or so ago, while the making of a contract between the city and the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was under consideration, specifications relating to service and inspection were drawn with great care by the Finance Commission. The committee calls attention to the fact that the proposed agreement with this company does not follow these specifications. The provisions in the contract now proposed seem to it less favorable to the city and not to safeguard the city's interests equally well.

By the terms of the proposed contract for supplying gas the Boston Consolidated Gas Company would receive $9 per year for each of approximately 10,000 single flame lamps. The committee has estimated that, with due allowance for waste through lack of punctuality in extinguishing the lamps, a fair time reckoning is 4,000 light hours per lamp per year. A single flame gas lamp of the vertical type, as operated in Boston, is estimated to burn about 3½ feet of gas per hour, or about 14,000 cubic feet of gas per year. At $9 per lamp per year this would yield the contracting company about 64 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas supplied to the city under its contract. It should be borne in mind, moreover, that the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, by the terms of its proposed contract, will take upon itself the cost of relocating the city's lamp-posts wherever the city desires, together with the repair and painting of posts—a responsibility which means an expense estimated at about 40 cents per post per year. When this is taken into account it will be found that the gas company would net, under the proposed arrangement with the city, about 61 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas supplied. With gas sold to private consumers at 80 cents per thousand cubic feet this price of 61 cents seems to the committee to propose a very reasonable concession to the city as a large customer.

The Contract for the Care and Maintenance of Gas Lamps.

For the maintenance and care of approximately 10,000 gas lamps, including lighting, extinguishing, replacement of mantles, cleaning and replacement of globes and domes, the pending contract proposes that the city shall pay $12 per lamp per year. This work now takes the time of 112 lamp-lighters and one inspector employed by the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company. At the present rate of wages the cost for labor alone is $8.12 per lamp per year, leaving $3.88 per lamp for repairs and for replacements. Out of this amount the contractor pays to the city $100 per month for rent of storage space and repair shop in the Albany Street Yards. Whether this amount ($3.88 per lamp per year) is the lowest possible price which will cover repairs and replacements, as well as to permit the payment of $100 per month in rental to the city, the committee is unable to say. It feels convinced, however, from an estimate of the number of new mantles, chimneys, globes, domes, and repair and replacement of lanterns during each year as a result of use or breakage, that the sum of $3.88 per lamp per year for these repairs and replacement is not an exorbitant charge. Neither the amount estimated as the cost of labor ($8.12 per lamp per year) nor the cost of repair and replacement ($3.88 per lamp per year), a total of $12 per lamp per year, seems to your committee to be more than is fairly due to the contracting company for the service rendered.

In New York City the price paid for gas-lamp maintenance, under very similar conditions but with over 45,000 lamps in operation, is from $11.75 to $12.25 according to the districts in which the lamps are located. For gas New York pays $10.37 per lamp per annum, making a total cost per lamp of from $22.12 to $22.62. In Philadelphia the gas supply costs $11.20 per lamp and the cost of maintenance is $12, a total of $23.20. These figures have been specially compiled and furnished to the Boston Chamber of Commerce by the chief engineer of the Bureau of Gas and Electricity in New York, and by the chief of the Municipal Bureau of Gas in Philadelphia. The price offered to Boston under the proposed contract ($21) is distinctly better than that obtained by either of these two cities, although Philadelphia is in a particularly favorable position to get a low price through the city's ownership of its gas plant.

Summary.

In conclusion the committee begs to reiterate its opinion that the question whether a proposed price is the lowest which the city ought to expect is a highly technical question which can be settled only after a detailed study and analysis of all local conditions. It cannot be settled by reference to tabulations of costs in other cities where the quality and conditions of service are altogether different and where the general laws make totally different demands concerning such matters as hours of labor and regulation of rates by state authorities. The committee has become fully satisfied that published tables of lighting costs are sure to be misleading unless every condition of service is set forth in detail as a qualification to the figures given.

The general question submitted to the chamber, and the only one which this committee feel qualified to answer, is whether the city is sufficiently protected by the various provisions of these contracts and whether the prices proposed for electric and gas lighting are substantially above those paid by other cities for lights of equal quality provided under similar conditions. On these points the committee has had no great difficulty in reaching a decision. Its conclusion is that the protection afforded to the city's interests will be increased and made adequate by reframing the contracts along the lines indicated earlier in this report. In the second place, it believes that the prices named in the pending contracts, both as regards electric and gas lighting, are not distinctly higher than those which represent the real cost under present conditions in other large American cities, with two exceptions. These exceptions are Pittsburgh and St. Louis, in each of which, through the greater cheapness of power, electric current can be provided at a considerably lower cost than in Boston. Whether this accounts for the entire difference in cost the committee has not been able to determine.

The Committee on Municipal and Metropolitan Affairs recommends that this report be adopted and copies transmitted to his Honor the Mayor and to the members of the City Council.

SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS, ETC.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Law Department, May 4, 1914.
To the Honorable the City Council:

Gentlemen,—In reply to your question whether there are any statutes or ordinances in conflict with the ordinance recently passed requiring that the proceeds of the sales of public lands and buildings other than school lands be applied to the reduction of the public debt, I respectfully submit the following:

I have been unable to find any statute which renders the ordinance in question invalid. If any statute requires that the proceeds of the sale of any particular lands or buildings owned by the city should be applied to any purpose other than the reduction of the city's debt, the statute should be followed and the ordinance disregarded. The same would be true of the sales of land held in trust by the city or by any department thereof, or municipal board therein. The proceeds would have to be applied according to the terms of the trust, even though the terms of the trust were in conflict with the terms of the ordinance. In all other cases, and such would be practically all of the cases arising hereafter, the ordinance would apply and be valid. The ordinance repeals all previous ordinances inconsistent therewith and will stand until it is repealed by a subsequent ordinance or rendered void by the passage of a conflicting statute.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Corporation Counsel.

BOSTON SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS.

The Boston savings bank had 717,830 depositors according to their last statements filed with the Massachusetts Bank Commissioner. The average deposit was $392. It cost the banks in salaries alone $500,684 to handle the accounts of this army of depositors ranging from $1.22 to $3.20 per $1,000 of assets, the larger banks of course having the smallest proportional cost.

It would naturally be inferred that banks having the largest amount of deposits would have the largest number of depositors, but such is not the fact. For illustration, the Provident Institution for Savings, New England's largest savings bank, with over $50,000,000 of deposits, has 93,687 less depositors than the Boston Five Cents Savings.

Presented below is an interesting comparison of the number of depositors in Boston savings banks, the average deposit, and salaries paid per annum with percentage of salaries to $1,000 of assets:

The duties of this position will consist of the examination of the reports of disbursements of Government funds by land grant colleges, and the collection of information and preparation of reports on the work of these institutions, and on the progress of agricultural work in general.

The commission announces an open competitive examination June 8, 1914, for examiner of accounts, for men only. From the register of eligibles resulting from this examination certification will be made to fill vacancies as they may occur in this position in the Division of Valuation and in the Division of Carriers' Accounts, Interstate Commerce Commission, unless it is found to be in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer or promotion.

This examination will be held for grade 1 positions only, the salaries ranging from $2,220 to $3,000 per annum, with necessary expenses when absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties.

Appointments to these positions will be principally for duty in the field, but some appointments may be made for duty in Washington, D. C.

Applicants will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated upon the evidence adduced as to their general and technical education and training and their practical experience and fitness.

It must be shown in connection with his application that each applicant is a person of good moral character and temperate habits, active, intelligent and discreet, of good speech and manner, qualified to address and confer with railroad and other officials as occasion may require.

It is desired to secure eligibles of large experience, with special qualifications for work in connection with the valuation of common carriers and in the Division of Carriers' Accounts. Registers of eligibles will be established of persons qualifying in one or more of the following branches of accounting:

(1) Steam railroads:

(a) General accounts. (b) Disbursement accounts. (c) Freight accounts. (d) Passenger accounts. (e) Claims. (f) Construction and maintenance accounts in Engineering and Operating Departments. (g) Accounting and statistical work in Valuation Departments.

(2) Electric railroads.

(3) Express service.

(4) Steamship service.

(5) Other common-carrier service (including pipe-line, sleeping-car, and telegraph and telephone service).

(6) Public accounting practice (as a certified public accountant or in the office of a certified public accountant).

Applicants must show in their applications that they have had at least seven years' satisfactory practical experience in railroad or other common-carrier accounting service; in public accounting practice (as certified public accountant or in the office of a certified public accountant); in accounting work of the Interstate Commerce Commission, or with State commissions engaged in the effectual regulation of the affairs of common carriers or other public utilities, or that they have had seven years' combined experience in the several services indicated. The degree of certified public accountant when obtained as a result of the regular examination in the state conferring the degree will be accepted in lieu of three of the seven years' experience required of applicants. Credit for degrees obtained otherwise than through examination will not be allowed. Accounting experience of a merely routine or nonresponsible character or along commercial lines will not be considered. No exception can be made to these requirements.

Persons who meet the requirements and desire to compete in these examinations should at once apply for application blanks and full information relative thereto, to the secretary of the United States Civil Service Board, 141 Post Office Building, Boston.

UNITED STATES COMMISSION ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS.

Proposals for national legislation to wipe out chronically chaotic conditions in the country's labor market and thus strike a blow at the annually recurring evils of unemployment have been made public by the United States Commission on Industrial Relations.

In a letter transmitting copies of the proposals to prospective witnesses before the commission, Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the commission, says that the proposals are tentative and invites criticism and suggestions.

The proposed legislation would establish a National Bureau of Labor exchange in connection with the Department of Labor, with a central office in Washington, and branch offices in other cities, and with a clearing house for each of several districts into which the country would be divided. The bureau would have power to establish and conduct free public employment offices.

The National Bureau would have jurisdiction over all private employment offices doing an interstate business or accepting workmen for shipment to other states. State, municipal and private employment offices would be urged to co-operate with the National Bureau and to adopt uniform methods and regulations.

The bureau's most important service would be to gather and distribute accurate information regarding the labor market in various localities. This information would be published in the form of bulletins, to be issued at frequent intervals and to be circulated in such a way that it would be available to every person in search of work and every employer seeking workmen. The duties, powers and authority of the bureau would be to collect and furnish information regarding employers seeking employees and working people seeking employment; to license, supervise, regulate and inspect private employment offices operating among the states; to establish and conduct free public employment offices and also clearing houses for both public and private offices; to improve the efficiency of public employment offices, municipal, state and federal; to make investigations of the work of local and state employment offices; and to make rules and regulations for the management of public employment offices and urge their adoption by local and state authorities.

The proposals include rules and regulations to be enacted into law prohibiting false representations, requiring notice of strikes, prohibiting fees before service is rendered, and otherwise safeguarding the patron of the employment office against exploitation.

Copies of the proposals have been sent to persons who will be summoned to testify before the commission at the series of public hearings that began Monday last, in New York, and that will include hearings at many large industrial centers. This part of the commission's work is being directed by W. M. Leiserson, state superintendent of employment offices in Wisconsin.

INAUGURAL ADDRESSES.

REPRINTS OF ADDRESSES DELIVERED BY THE MAYORS OF BOSTON AT THEIR INAUGURATION FROM THE INCORPORATION OF THE CITY.

William H. Whitmore, formerly City Registrar, and a man who delighted especially in the preservation of historical data relating to the city, started in 1890 a compilation of the inaugural addresses of the mayors of Boston. Up to that time they were available only in odd and scattered municipal documents, kept with indifferent care, or in some instances in privately printed documents.

In 1894 he produced the first volume, which contained the addresses from Phillips to Bigelow. In 1896 he published a second volume, with the addresses from Chapman to Norcross. The two volumes make not only substantial but interesting reading for all citizens. Because of the fact that the volumes in question are out of print, it is proposed to reprint the addresses in occasional installments in the City Record.

No. 30.

Mayor Quincy delivered the following address to the City Council on January 3, 1848:

Gentlemen of the City Council:

We have been chosen by the free suffrages of our fellow citizens to manage the affairs of a great metropolis. This position is at all times one of vast responsibility, but in the present state of this city it is peculiarly important. For nearly two hundred years this peninsula was the center of a small population, with little or no internal communication, and distinguished chiefly for the patriotism, the energy, and the love of liberty of its inhabitants.

But railroads have changed the character and destiny of Boston — our narrow streets are thronged with a population that was never anticipated, and our marts with men of all nations and languages.

The population of Boston is supposed to be 120,000, but in estimating our numbers in order to provide the facilities for business, it is but just to add those persons who daily resort to our city, who spend here most of their waking hours, and occupy our streets and warehouses in the same way that they would do if, as in other cities, their families resided within our territorial limits. In this view, adding to those resident here, those and their families who come daily from our three sister adjoining cities by various conveyances, and from greater distances by railroad, I think that we may say, that, during business hours, Boston represents a population of from two to three hundred thousand souls, and this is daily increasing.

Placed at such a time in the direction of such a city, we should strive to appreciate our position — and remember that we are acting not only for those who are now here, but for those who for centuries to come will dwell in the pleasant city of our fathers.

On inquiring what are our duties, the first in importance is to provide for the moral and intellectual advancement of the people. The education of every child has been provided for, by those who have gone before us, to an extent almost unexampled. The expenditure for schools, exclusive of schoolhouses, amounts this year to $191,000. This sum is placed in a great degree, in the hands of the School Committee; and I most cheerfully testify to the zeal and fidelity with which they discharge their arduous duties. The individual schools are well directed by the respective sub-committees. But it does appear to me that there should be a more general superintendence of the system, as a whole, than can be given by individuals in the short time they can snatch from their daily pursuits. I therefore recommend to your consideration, the expediency of applying again to the Legislature for the power of appointing a Superintendent of Public Schools, to act with, and as the organ of, the School Committee.

I would also, at the request of the School Committee of the last year, call your attention to the expediency of providing means for enabling our several schools to take advantage of the State provision for the establishment of school libraries, for the use of the young, and also to the reference of the last City Council, as to the advisability of asking the Legislature for power of aiding public spirited citizens in the formation of a library under as few restrictions as is consistent with the preservation of the property.

Universal education, both of the moral and intellectual nature, being the only solid basis on which our institutions can rest, I hold that the State has a right to compel parents to take advantage of the means of educating their children. If it can punish them for crime, it surely should have the power of preventing them from committing it, by giving them the habits and the education that are the surest safeguards. There are, daily, hundreds of children of both sexes who are kept from school to support their parents, often in idleness and drunkenness, by pilfering about our wharves, or any other profitable form of vice and who are regularly educated for the brothel and the dram shop, for the poorhouse and the jail. Their position calls loudly for public and individual exertion, and I recommend that application be made to the Legislature for such power as shall enable the city to be in loco parentis to such children, and that some asylum be provided, where such as are morally too weak to be at large, may receive the peculiar training that their habits and associations may make necessary.

This naturally leads me to speak of the police, the public safeguard against the consequences of neglected youth.

Boston is no longer a small city. Its intercourse with Europe, and with the cities on this continent, makes it the resort of felons of the most consummate skill and adroitness. To protect the community, an efficient police is required. Our system comprehends —

1. Constables, whose duties are principally with the courts, in serving civil processes.

2. The watch, consisting of 180 men, under a captain, who patrol the city by night, one-half at this season being on duty from 7 to 12, and the other from 12 to an hour before sunrise.

3. The Police. This department consists of twenty-four day and ten night policemen; under the direction of the City Marshal. At the commencement of the year a police office was established in the City Hall, where officers paid by the city are in attendance at all hours of the day and night, to assist or protect the citizens. The day police receive $2 a day — are on duty twelve hours, and are not permitted to receive witness fees, which are paid in to the City Treasury. No person connected with the department is allowed to receive any gratuity or reward for services rendered, and the violation of this rule is considered a sufficient reason for the discharge of any member.

During the year, the City Marshal has received $330 to pay for the recovery of, or for information that led to the recovery of, lost or stolen property. In every case, except one (when the amount was only $5), he was made the special agent of the parties interested; and after a careful examination of each case, I feel it my duty to him to state that I am satisfied that all the money was used for the purpose intended, and never used until all other means in the power of the police to recover the property had failed.

The whole amount of property reported at the police office as lost or stolen during the last nine months, amounted to $49,110
The amount recovered and restored 35,430

The efficiency of the police has, I believe, given satisfaction to the public. The theaters and public conveyances have received particular attention. In the former, the police are employed and paid by the city, and the proprietors pay an equivalent for their licenses. This gives the city a control which has enabled it to abolish the open resorts of intemperance and profligacy with which the theaters were formerly disgraced.

The public conveyances have, during the past year, been licensed and numbered, the larger proprietors of this species of property assenting to an arrangement, which, by making the drivers known and responsible, and excluding those of infamous character, has given great respectability to the employment, and security and convenience to the citizens.

The police is, in my opinion, in a satisfactory state. I think, however, from my own experience and the best information I can obtain from other cities, it would be more efficient if the whole police and watch departments were placed under one head, and I recommend that such alteration be made in the law as may be necessary for this purpose.

In this connection I would call your attention to the state of the courts. The business of the police court has increased from 1855 cases in 1830, to 4,219 in 1847; and the number of cases in the Municipal Court from 580 in 1842 to 1,295 the last year. With the present number of judges, this court can rarely be held for more than two weeks in a month, and as I am convinced that no efficiency on the part of the police can put a stop to the great source of poverty and crime among us, without a longer term in this county, I recommend that an application be made to the Legislature for an additional judge of the Court of Common Pleas, or such a system of courts as may give one to the County of Suffolk for the whole of the time, if needed.

In connection with this department I would call your attention to the state of the jail. A new one is evidently wanted. It should be, if possible, more in the vicinity of the courts, but at all events should contain the improvements that modern science and humanity have devised for the reformation of the guilty and the comfort of those who are detained before their guilt is proved.

The Fire Department is efficient and well disciplined, and, as I have had no complaints made to me for many months, is in a state, I believe, satisfactory to the citizens at large. During the year the total loss of property has been $156,055, of which $82,000 was covered by insurance. The department consists, including officers, of 713 members, who have charge of 18 engines. The character of those composing the department is of great importance to the order and security of the city, and all proper means should be adopted to induce the best men to enter the department. The great objection to the service is the frequency of false alarms. Of 274 alarms during the past year, 120 were false. At 52 of the 154 no engine played, at only 11 were the services of the whole department required. If on repairing to the engine house the members could have known what they discovered after toiling through the streets, it would have saved their time, their clothes, and the wear and tear of the engines. Can such information be given?

Until the discovery of the magnetic telegraph it would have been supposed to be impossible; but from statements and estimates furnished by F. O. J. Smith, Esq., the Superintendent of the Telegraph, it appears that it may be effected at a very trifling expense. He says, "it would be feasible to connect the whole number of engine houses, so as to enable any person who could count ten, to signalize every other engine house in the city at the same moment, and inform them in what district the fire was." It would also enable the chief engineer to order such engines as were necessary to repair to the spot, or to dismiss the companies whose services were not needed. The apparatus can be attached to bells of any size, and give the alarm if required to the whole city. If this statement is correct, and the plan had been in operation during the past year, there may have been companies called out 274 times, when they were only needed eleven.

Mr. Smith's estimate of the cost is as follows:

13 miles of structure complete, $250 per mile.....	$3,250
Instruments for 15 stations.....	750
Apparatus for three large alarm bells, at $100 each.....	300
Total.....	$4,300

His estimate of the annual expense is as follows:

Interest on structure.....	$258
Repairs.....	200
Battery keeper, rent, etc.....	1,000
Total.....	$1,458

To this sum must be added what should be paid for the use of the patent.

If this system of communication can be perfected, there may be an important incidental advantage, should the police at any time need a sudden reinforcement to protect the lives and property of the citizens. Let it be known that literally by the tap of a finger 700 such men as constitute the Fire Department can at any time, by day or by night, be summoned to enforce the law, and the knowledge of the existence of such a power would probably prevent its ever being called into use, and if not used, it would be of no expense whatever to the city.

With these views I recommend the subject to your consideration.

During the past year a contract has been made for the grading of the public lands at the South End by material taken from the gravel farm at Dedham. The state of the times, and a desire on the part of the committee to have the lands properly prepared before bringing them into market, have prevented any extensive sales being made. The vacancy of a Superintendent of Public Lands has not been filled, and I would recommend to the Council the appointment of a skillful engineer to act in this matter, and in others connected with grading and laying-out streets and paving. The amount expended by the city for this species of service during the year ending May 1, 1847, was a sum sufficient to procure the entire time of a competent officer to take charge of all business of this nature.

The public lands are sold by the committee, and I consider it my duty to them to state, that no member of the committee has ever, to my knowledge, been directly or indirectly concerned in the purchase or sale of any city property on his own account, except where it was freely offered at public auction, for the competition of all the citizens.

The finances of the city are in a satisfactory position.

The whole permanent debt, as appears by the Auditor's Report, on the 1st of May, 1847, is.....	$1,025,266 66
There has been paid off since the 1st of May, as it became due.....	89,550 00
	$935,716 66

To this is to be added loans since the first of May:

For widening streets, payable within three years.....	70,490 00
Loan to pay for South Boston Heights, purchased by the City Council, to be kept open forever, payable in 1848 and 1849.....	106,700 00
	$1,112,906 66

The means of payment are as follows:

Bonds and mortgages, on interest.....	$373,229 27
Amount in Sinking Fund to the credit of the Committee on the Reduction of City Debt.....	111,073 25
Annual appropriation from taxes.....	50,000 00
City wharf.....	600,000 00
	$1,134,302 52
Surplus in favor of the city.....	$21,395 86
The interest on this debt amounts to, To meet this, the city has rents.....	$52,000 00
Interest on bonds and mortgages.....	22,000 00
	$77,000 00
Leaving a surplus of.....	$25,000 00

The Water Loan consisted on the 31st of December of two parts:

The permanent loan due equally in 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, 1861.....	$1,000,000 00
Temporary loans payable within a year.....	421,941 00
The whole of this debt will probably amount to.....	3,000,000 00

To meet this, the city has the Aqueduct itself, and about 6,000,000 feet of land for sale, in the city proper and South Boston, which will, without a doubt, pay the whole of the debt as it falls due.

During the year, a large loan has been effected. After in vain endeavoring to obtain the money in Europe, the Committee on Finance, on the 30th of April, proposed for a loan of a million dollars, in the way universally adopted both in Europe and the United States—by advertising for sealed proposals. These were to be handed in to the Treasurer before 12 o'clock, on the 8th of July. In order to induce as far as possible, investors to purchase directly and at retail prices from the city, the committee offered to receive bids for $500 and upwards, and made the terms of payment such as would meet the convenience of the smallest capitalist. The advertisement was inserted in the seven daily papers that print for the city, from the 30th of April to the 8th of July; and a circular, signed by the Mayor, stating the advantages and security of the loan, and accompanied by a copy of the proposals, was forwarded by the steamer of the 1st of May, to the principal bankers in Europe, and sent to all the banks, saving institutions, and insurance companies throughout New England, to the brokers and principal capitalists in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and public attention called to the loan by every means the committee could devise. On or before the 8th of July, at 12 o'clock, a number of proposals was received by the treasurer, which were opened for the first time in the presence of the whole committee, and the stock apportioned, according to the advertisement, to the highest bidders.

This statement, taken from the report made at the time by the committee, proves that the competition was full and open to all the world, and conducted in such a manner as rendered it impossible for any bidder to take an advantage of his competitors or of the city, or to obtain the stock, except he gave more for it than anybody else offered.

Owing to the pressure in the money market, both in this country and in Europe, the committee have decided to make temporary loans at 6 per cent, for the immediate wants of the commissioners. There is, however, no actual loss to the city, as the fall in the price of iron and other materials will more than counter-balance the difference of interest.

In connection with the subject of finance, I would call your attention to the mode and time of assessing taxes. Our fellow citizens, in general, are willing to pay their just proportion of the public expenses; but great complaints are made of the inequality of taxation. But few of the returns authorized by law are furnished, and it is impossible for the assessors to estimate either the positive or comparative wealth of men engaged in active business. The subject is fraught with difficulty.

There is, however, one evil that may be remedied. The time of assessing taxes is the first of May, and some of our wealthier citizens, from their interest in agriculture or other reasons, find it convenient to leave the city in the month of April. As most of them have acquired their wealth in the city, and all of them have used its streets, been protected by its police, and received its advantages, it is unjust that their poor and industrious neighbors should be compelled to pay the taxes of such persons in addition to their own.

This will be avoided by a change of the time of assessment, and I recommend that an application be made to the Legislature for power to make the alteration.

The subject of widening streets is one of great and increasing importance. In other large cities, the estates that are benefited pay for the improvement; while here, in many cases, the city has given individuals hundreds of dollars for the purpose of raising the value of their property by thousands. Two years ago an application was made to the Legislature for some modification of this law, so as to throw a part, at least, of the expense of improvements on those who are directly benefited by them. It was lost by the opposition of our own representatives. I would again recommend the subject to your consideration, as one of great importance to the expenditures of the city.

One object, however, of promoting the convenience of the public would be effected by suitable laws against unnecessarily encumbering the streets. I had hoped that the revision of the City Ordinances, which has been for a long time in the hands of commissioners, would have brought these subjects before the Council; but as the progress of legal gentlemen is slow, I recommend the subject to your immediate attention, on the ground that the convenience of individuals should be made to yield to that of the public.

The House of Industry must, during the present year, either be repaired and enlarged, or provision made for erecting one on some other site. The subject of the removal was discussed before the last Council, and referred by them to your consideration, which it should receive at the earliest moment; as whatever is decided upon should be commenced early in the spring.

The great numbers of pauper emigrants, and the prevalence of the ship fever, rendered it necessary to establish an extensive hospital at Deer Island. It has been under the charge of a committee, who deserve the thanks of the citizens for their devotion to a cause that, while it has relieved the sick foreigner, has prevented the spread of a contagious disease among our citizens.

Few are aware of the benefits they have derived from this institution. It has probably prevented the spread of a disease that has carried off Daniel Chandler, the Superintendent of the House of Industry, and Dr. Moriarty, the physician at Deer Island. They both fell victims to their exertions in the cause of humanity, and we trust have received the reward of those who care for the sick and the stranger.

I have thus, gentlemen, hinted at a few of the many subjects that will be brought to your consideration, and in conclusion, would assure you of all the aid and cooperation I can give in the performance of your arduous and gratuitous labors. The present year is to be distinguished from all others in our annals, by the introduction of water at the public expense. May it also be distinguished by general prosperity, and by an advance in every thing that can render the citizens happier, or wiser, or better, and make them more worthy of the free institutions bequeathed to them by their fathers.

ROAD MAINTENANCE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

By COL. WILLIAM D. SOHIER, Chairman of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, in Municipal Journal.

There are about 20,000 miles of improved roads in Massachusetts, of which about 7,200 miles are dirt, 8,700 gravel and 2,325 are plain macadam. About 1,200 miles have been treated with bitumen and 450 are classed as "pavement." Here, as in New Hampshire, a big problem is to get the best service possible out of the cheaper roads—the dirt and gravel.

Concerning this Colonel Sohier says:

We are encouraging the towns in every possible way to keep all of their roads constantly repaired and maintained, to keep all of their culverts and gutters constantly free and open, and the road always so shaped that the water runs off the road into the gutter through the culvert and away from the location.

We are helping the towns to secure log drags and trying to encourage them in every way to use them after every rain. The last year or two has seen great progress in this line. Quite a number of towns now have from three to seven drags in the town, and a man in charge of certain sections of road keeps using the drags once or twice a month, after each rain, when the road is dried out sufficiently not to be sticky and is still wet enough to pack.

We find that these country roads are extremely satisfactory to ride over, and are very much appreciated by the visiting automobilists; although, to be sure, they are broken up by the frost for a few weeks in the spring, as they have not adequate foundations.

What we are trying to do is to improve as many miles as possible in a relatively permanent way year by year, and meanwhile to maintain all of the roads in reasonably passable condition, constantly repairing, constantly shaping and maintaining them in the best condition possible at minimum expense.

In our state our state highway maintenance on about 980 miles of road is costing something over $700,000 a year and, while we are maintaining our roads in very good shape, we are not reconstructing or resurfacing enough miles a year to make up for the wear. In other words, some of our roads are twenty years old and need resurfacing, but we haven't money enough available.

The state has been appropriating $200,000 a year towards the maintenance of state highways, and we have secured something over $500,000 from the motor vehicle fees. The counties repay to the state 25 per cent of the amount the state appropriates. Until last year the towns and cities by law repaid not exceeding $50 a mile a year. Under a statute passed last year, the towns and cities will repay to the Commonwealth not exceeding one-half the cost and not exceeding $50 a mile a year, in towns of under one million valuation; $100 a mile a year in towns of between one and two million valuation; not exceeding $200 a mile a year in towns between two million and five million, and not exceeding $500 a mile a year in towns and cities of over five million valuation; with the further limitation that we can collect balances for the next three years or four years in all, making the most we can collect $2,000 a mile, all the time with the limitation that we must spend at least twice that much. This collecting back applied only to the state appropriation, but there is an amendment pending this year to make it apply to any money spent from whatever source received.

Maintenance work begins on most roads the day the road is opened for travel. We have a few roads where the maintenance of road surface is extremely small, these being roads where we have used the more expensive type of construction, but all the time you have gutter and shoulder work, catch-basins, etc.

TOKIO'S MUNICIPAL WATERWORKS.

The system of waterworks conducted by the Tokio Municipality is the most profitable of the city's undertakings, its annual net profit being reported as nearly $500,000. Sanction has lately been received from the government to extend the system at a cost of $10,360,000, in order to be able to supply a population of 3,000,000.

This undertaking is so profitable that it not only has a large reserve fund, but it can afford to lend money. Last year it advanced $300,000 to the Electric Bureau and $250,000 for the improvement of the sewage system, on the condition that the money be repaid at the end of the next fiscal year.

NEW ENGLISH MUNICIPAL DWELLINGS FOR WORKMEN.

The Taunton Town Council has recently celebrated the formal opening of the first block of its new municipal dwellings for workmen. The scheme comprises twelve dwellings arranged in blocks of four each. Every house contains a living room, a scullery (in which there is a bath covered by a folding table), a food pantry, fuel bin and toilet, and three bedrooms on the second floor. The houses are artistically built of red brick and rough cast. All the outside walls are 11 inches hollow.

The cost of each house was $710, inclusive of sewers, streets and fencing. The rent to be charged, inclusive of rates and taxes, water and electric light (one light in living room only), is 80 cents a week.

The houses are set back a distance of 7 feet 6 inches from the street line, and the area of the garden at the rear of each house is 100 by 17 feet, being practically one twenty-fifth of an acre. The twelve houses are built on three-fourths of an acre of land, the cost of which was $375.

BOSTON TRANSIT PROBLEMS.

President P. F. Sullivan, of the Bay State Street Railway Company, presented an admirable statement relative to the transit problem of Greater Boston, at the State House upon the 13th instant, before the Committees on Metropolitan Affairs and Street Railways, sitting jointly. The presentation of the transit problems confronting our city was one of the most forceful and comprehensive that has been made in Boston in many years.

The City Record, through the courtesy of President Sullivan, presents a verbatim report of the statement.

President Sullivan said:

"I appear before your committee, today, to state fully and frankly the position of the Bay State Street Railway Company with reference to the matters that have been presented to you through the report of the Joint Boards of Public Service and Rapid Transit Commissions, and also by those representing petitioners in the various sections affected.

"Before proceeding to a discussion of the subject, I wish to state that the report of the Joint Board which is before you is, in my opinion, the best presentation of the rapid transit problem in metropolitan Boston that I have ever seen, not alone in the facts presented and the conclusions arrived at, but also in the suggestions contained therein. All of these are of such a character that they present to your committee and to the Legislature an opportunity which is seldom presented to men, not alone to solve a present vexed problem, but also one which will grow more serious with the lapse of time.

"The Bay State Street Railway Company owns tracks and operates cars alone, and in connection with the Elevated Company and the Narrow Gauge Road; alone in Hyde Park and Winchester; incidentally with the Elevated in Medford, Malden, Everett and Chelsea, and with the Narrow Gauge Road in Revere.

"The Hyde Park case has been presented to you very fully and has been the subject of discussion for quite a few years. These petitioners based their claim largely upon the fact that they are now part of municipal Boston, and because of that fact, and of the solution of a similar problem in West Roxbury, they state that similar treatment should be accorded to them now.

"I shall not discuss the matter very fully at present, except to state that the present Hyde Park case is not comparable to the West Roxbury case. The West Roxbury case is what might be called a minor surgical operation; the Hyde Park case presents a major and vital one. There is a power station in Hyde Park which supplies power, not only for that section, but also for a portion of Milton and Dedham, Westwood and Walpole. A solution of the problem would not be practicable to lease one portion of the Hyde Park property to the Elevated, and retain an ownership in another portion, namely, the power station, by the Bay State. The position of the Bay State Company in that case is that if the Elevated wishes to lease the Hyde Park property it must not only lease that property but also the remaining property in that territory in Dedham, Westwood and Walpole.

"I shall speak of the Winchester-Arlington case solely with reference to their requests to have through cars to and from Harvard square. They presented their case, first, nearly two years ago, when it was considered by our company. With reference to that matter I stated to the Elevated, the Bay State Company would not furnish cars free to that company for use between Arlington and Harvard square. We would join with them on any of three propositions—that we furnish all the cars for the service, or that the Elevated furnish all the cars for the service—we to receive the same compensation for the use of our cars as we were willing to pay them for the use of their cars—or we would furnish our proportion of the cars. That is our position at the present time.

"Medford, Malden and Everett are not serious cases in my opinion. The Chelsea case is somewhat different. In the past, the Elevated Company has expressed willingness to lease the Chelsea property but not the Revere property. I instructed our counsel to state at various hearings, but particularly before the Joint Commission, that we would not lease the Chelsea property alone to the Elevated Company, but would consider favorably leasing the property in all that territory, which is at present served for a five cent fare, because if we were to consider Chelsea alone, we would still leave unsettled the five cent fare in other territory; and instead of solving a problem we would create a worse problem for solution, because the people in such a case, in traveling over the lines of the Bay State from Malden, Everett Revere and part of Saugus, would be compelled to pay ten cents to reach Scollay square where they now pay five.

"In the case of Revere, it has been suggested that the extension of the Elevated service from Orient Heights to Revere would be a solution of the Revere Beach problem. It would be only a partial solution and would intensify the condition that exists at the present time, namely, that under such an extension people would be carried one way to Revere Beach from any part of the Elevated for five cents, and the other way, through Chelsea to Scollay square and beyond, for ten cents. This would immediately produce a case of serious discrimination, namely, that some people in Revere would pay ten cents for what others would get for five cents.

"I appreciate fully the position of those communities served, and will not stand in the way of a proper and reasonable solution. I believe that the best service in any community is given by a well regulated monopoly, subject to public control, and that is the history of the Bay State Company.

"Consistent with that position, when the Washington Tunnel was being considered by the Legislature ten or twelve years ago, the then Governor of the Commonwealth and the Mayor of Boston each asked me if the Boston & Northern Company would not be a party to the lease and operation of that tunnel. I said no, and to each I said, 'You could not afford to have our company operate that tunnel as it would immediately open up the question of a five-cent fare.' The agitation to reduce what would be a ten-cent fare to five cents would lead to serious difficulties. Each of them expressed his appreciation of the situation, and the subject was dropped.

"Later, when the Metropolitan Park Commission wanted cars operated in Middlesex Fells, they suggested to me a franchise in the whole territory controlled by them from the Wellington Bridge to Stoneham, to the Boston & Northern. I stated to them that they could not afford to have the Boston & Northern operate cars in that section; that the Fells was intended for the benefit of the greatest number and that number was in metropolitan Boston and should be taken to and from the Fells for a five-cent fare; that the Elevated was the company that should have the franchise to the Stoneham line; that we would build from Stoneham and join that company. The result was, each company built—the Elevated so as to bring the greater population from the south and west to the Fells—the Boston & Northern Company to bring the northern population to the center of the Fells.

"Some years ago our company was petitioned to operate cars from West Roxbury through Jamaica Plain and the adjoining sections into Boston. Later the Old Colony Company was petitioned to extend its tracks along the shore line from Neponset into the South Station. In each case I told the petitioners that the territory belonged to the Boston Elevated Company and would be served for a five-cent fare, whereas if our company built, it would require two fares. That has been the position of our company and is still our position.

"As wisely suggested by the report of the Joint Board, the solution of the transportation problem was greater than that of the affected districts which are the subject of these hearings, and in that respect they have given all of us valuable food for thought, have given us a statesmanlike perspective of the situation.

"It was my privilege just seventeen years ago to appear before a Legislative Committee in favor of the Boston Elevated charter. At that time I told the committee that Henry M. Whitney, a man of large vision and splendid public service, thought that by consolidating conflicting street railway companies that operated in Boston he would solve the street car transportation problem. He did his part and the public responded splendidly. Conflicting interests were removed and were replaced by a unified system.

"It very early became evident that a motive power different from animal power was necessary and electricity was substituted for such power. That development required unusual courage, because such power was then in its infancy. It had not been tried to a great extent and, because of the amount of money involved, was a tremendous undertaking. The people then responded to such an extent as to produce congestion in the center of Boston, particularly in Washington street. The West End thought then they had solved the problem by using larger cars, but if one car that would reach from Adams square to Boylston street had been in use, it would not solve the problem. On the contrary it would retard speed, and the conditions which resulted therefrom were the conditions that brought about the Elevated Company and the Elevated structure.

"Those men who put their money into the Elevated and subway development showed a splendid courage—a splendid public spirit—and showed it to such an extent that if they had put that money from time to time in the savings banks instead of into the development of street transportation in Boston, they would have made more money by doing so. Their investment would have been secure, and return would have been nearly as great as what they have received. But in all of this development in Boston proper and the immediate suburbs, they lost sight of what is, if anything, a greater problem—a development of an outer zone not served by the Boston Elevated Company. The growth in that territory has been such as to produce a condition which is not only serious but is almost alarming. One has only to see the unusual crowds which come in from our two terminal railroad stations in the morning and go out from them in the late afternoon, to realize some of the conditions. See what this problem means! It means this, that to such an extent has that commuter business (so-called) grown that it has congested the North and South Stations. It has increased the number of trains in those suburban districts to such an extent as to create and intensify a smoke nuisance—a condition which has grown to such a degree as to demand an unusual expenditure of capital to enlarge those two stations. The smoke nuisance has grown to such an extent that there has been great agitation for its removal,—great to such an extent that the railroads have led the people to believe during the last four or five years that the whole suburban railroad district of metropolitan Boston would be electrified.

"The financial condition of the two large railroad properties, namely, the New Haven and Boston & Maine, does not leave much hope for immediate improvement, and I doubt very much if we can get that improvement for many years.

"That brings to my mind that eighteen or nineteen years ago, the late Mr. McAlpin, General Manager of the Providence Division of the New Haven, took Mr. Frank Barr and I as his guests, to show what that company had done in the abolition of grade crossings between Boston and Dedham. He stated then that the purpose was to electrify that section and that in a couple of years they would put all of our 'street railway people out of business.'

"In 1898 the New Haven Road electrified between Braintree and Pemberton and ran electric trains between those points. It was stated then that the electrification would be extended from Braintree to the South Station to a lower level in that station. Instead of that electric trains were discontinued in 1901 between Braintree and Nantasket Junction, so that instead of getting a greater electric service and a splendid service to Nantasket Beach the public received less.

"As shown in the report of the Joint Board you could well consider this subject of taking care of a ten-mile suburban district outside of what is called the Elevated five-cent zone, because in that section there is shown a greater growth of population in the last twenty years than in Boston.

"For instance, Hyde Park claims that its growth has been retarded by a double fare. Its growth between 1890 and 1910 (and I use these figures because they are United States Census figures) has been 52.13 per cent. The growth of Boston in that time was 49.52, whereas in Cambridge, one of the best served sections in metropolitan Boston, the growth has been only 49.71 per cent. Revere would have us believe that they are suffering because of a double fare. They have in that period shown an increase of 221.44 per cent. Melrose, 84.47; Winchester, 91.50; Milton, 85.23; Saugus, 119, and Winthrop, 270 per cent.

"I speak of these only casually in passing. I shall leave the figures with you for your consideration, with the statement that in studying the question of growth of population there are other factors than transportation. Some people (and we have had them come to our office) object to living in a five-cent fare community; that is, a five-cent fare with reference to Boston. When the annexation of Hyde Park was being considered citizens of that town came to my office individually and stated they hoped we would not agree to a five-cent fare for that section. We have had the same requests from Melrose. These do not show organized movement, but they show a public opinion which we know to exist; but apart from the matter of five-cent fare discussion is this great broad question which I have just referred to—that any consideration of this problem should be one which should consider this commuter business.

"It would not be impracticable to co-ordinate that service with the Boston Elevated service and such a plan would require much less capital than if the railroads were to electrify. It would relieve the North and South Stations to such an extent as to continue their usefulness for more than twenty-five years longer than with the present commuter service. It would remove the smoke nuisance largely. It would take those unusual crowds of people off the streets leading to and from these stations, to an unusual extent; and instead of dropping them at those stations, and compelling them to either walk or seek other transportation to their destinations in the center of Boston, would carry them either by elevated or subway trains conveniently to such destinations.

"This is not a theoretical problem. It has already been solved by the Pennsylvania Railroad. That railroad has shown in its whole history the most remarkable vision that has been shown by any transportation company in the United States.

"When the management of the Pennsylvania constructed that magnificent station in New York, they saw that with the great growth of the commuter business in New Jersey it would be congested in a very few years. The result was, that company made a 999 year contract with the Hudson Tunnel Road by which the latter road took over the commuter business and it was stated to me by an official of the Pennsylvania Company, since the report of the Joint Board was published, that such a change had added fifty years to the useful life of the Pennsylvania Station.

"You have before you, gentlemen, for your consideration an unusual opportunity—one that is seldom presented for legislative action. I hope you will consider it along broad constructive lines. By doing so you will settle many annoying and unpleasant situations; any piecemeal solution would, in my opinion, leave matters in a worse condition than you found them, and would transmit to later Legislatures and other Boards endless problems and labors.

"In my opinion, and this opinion is arrived at after many years of study and a fairly comprehensive grasp of the situation—a solution is practicable and possible now—by and through you and the present Legislature. It can be done by an Enabling Act which will permit each of the companies referred to in the joint report which is before you to come in under it and surrender their respective charters.

"Under the present general laws, subject to the approval of the Public Service Commission, the Bay State, Blue Hill, Middlesex & Boston, and Boston & Worcester Companies can be consolidated; and if the West End Company were not leased to the Boston Elevated Company that company could also be consolidated. But the Elevated Company is organized under a special act, and cannot therefore be consolidated without special legislation.

"The 'Narrow Gauge' road, so called, has also been referred to in the report of the Joint Board. A proper solution of the problem which is before you would not be complete without including that company. By electrifying its lines, making it a standard gauge road, and operating its trains through the East Boston Tunnel to Scollay square, the Revere Beach problem would be solved in the best possible manner, and at a minimum of expense. The electrification of that road cannot long be postponed. If electrified independently, it would in all probability require a power station. If it were part of a large system, such as is proposed, power could be supplied from each end and the middle.

"You are considering this problem at the psychological moment. All of these petitions are before you looking for relief; the public is looking for relief also through electrification; the stations, North and South, are congested and the New Haven and Boston & Maine are not in a financial condition to electrify or remove the station congestion. This would naturally be the time to act.

"Should you consider a merger of these conflicting interests, and I suggest, but do not urge it, I would offer a few suggestions, but before doing so, I wish to state the position of the Bay State Company. The question of merger has never been discussed by either the directors or the Executive Committee. As the Executive Officer of this company it is my duty to present to the directors and committee matters that appear to me for the interests of the company. If you should prepare an Enabling Act that would be fair, reasonable and workable, I am prepared to recommend it for favorable action with reasonable hope of acceptance.

"Should you consider an Enabling Act, I would suggest to you a few features for such act.

"You could prepare an Enabling Act with a very few directors, with power to increase the number; a nominal small amount of capital stock, with power to increase the amount for purpose of taking over these companies referred to in the report and to which I have now referred. All, of course, subject to the approval of the Public Service Commission and, in such case as may appear necessary, subject to the approval of the Rapid Transit Commission, and as each company came in that it surrender its charter.

"The railroads and the railways perform two distinct services. Competition between them is in the public interests. Such competition should be actual and potential. To maintain competition the proposed company should be prohibited stringently from being owned, leased or operated by any railroad company.

"I would suggest to you that you learn from the experience of the past. A street railway company is asked to perform a public service and to supply capital to perform such service. It should endeavor to give the very best service, and service should always come first; then safety and then cost of service. It should not be hampered in its endeavors to give that service. It should be given broad powers, subject in all cases to the supervision of some controlling board—the Public Service Commission for instance; and service and price of such service should be left to the commission. It should not be tied up hand and foot in the matter of issuing securities. I don't mean by that there should be stock watering. Far from it. It requires the very best efforts and the strictest economics to get even a very small earning on an actual capitalization, therefore, there is no inducement for over-capitalization. There should be elasticity in the proportion of bonds to stock; that matter should be left to the discretion of the commission. At the present time street railways are limited to the same amount of bonds as capital stock and premiums on the stock. There should be elasticity as to the amount of preferred stock and ordinary stock which should be issued. There should be elasticity as to the sinking fund securities which could be issued for improvements, and very many improvements will be needed to carry through such a comprehensive plan as has been outlined or suggested in the report of the Joint Board.

"This proposed company should get authority so that each of the companies mentioned could come into the consolidation and surrender its charter. It should have authority to use the cars of connecting steam railroads and the connecting steam railroads should be authorized to enter into such an arrangement, so that cars in trains may be taken by the Elevated say at Malden and other stations by Elevated and Subway through Boston.

"Next as to taxes, Such a consolidated company as is suggested will require assistance to financially enable it to perform this great, this splendid public service. It should not be unduly loaded with taxes; and, at the present time, street railways are unduly loaded. In other words, as I stated earlier, if you are to consider this problem with a view of solving it yourselves and in this Legislature, you should pass such an act, leaving the question of service, rates, and every proper function of that corporation subject to the control of proper commissions. If you do this, I believe you will obtain the best co-ordinated metropolitan transportation system to be found anywhere, and you will go down into history and be called statesmen.

OPINION UPON PENSIONS.

Corporation Counsel Sullivan has addressed the following communication to Secretary Herlihy of the Retirement Board, relative to pensions of city employees:

MR. J. G. HERLIHY,
Secretary of Retirement Board:

DEAR SIR,—In your letter of May 6 you raise the question whether a person who has not been employed by the city for the 25-year period required by chapter 413 of 1911 as amended by chapter 367 of 1913, but whose period of service for the city added to his period of service for a private company under contract to light the city streets would make up the required 25-year period, would make the person in question eligible for pension under the statutes above cited.

In my opinion the statute was intended to apply only to those persons who had been continuously employed by the city for twenty-five years, and no person now in the employ of the city can be given the benefit of the laborers' pension law by having added to his period of city service the period during which he has served a private company that was under contract to do any work or supply any materials for the city; and it is immaterial whether such person was the servant of a private contractor furnishing street lighting or of a private contractor furnishing coal, milk or any other commodity.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Corporation Counsel.

Of the forty-one national banks and trust companies in Boston all but five have deposits of the city's sinking funds in sums ranging from $8,933 in case of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company up to $237,750 held by the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust. NOTICE TO MERCHANTS.

The editor of the City Record calls the particular attention of Boston merchants to the fact that if they desire their catalogues kept upon file at the United States consulates abroad they should accompany the same with price lists and discount sheets. These sheets may be marked "confidential" and will be so considered by our diplomatic and consular officers. Catalogues now upon file, and without price lists, accomplish very little service.

Foreign merchants complain that when they desire to figure upon bids, and use American machinery and other products, they are greatly handicapped by being unable to secure enlightenment upon the question of price, and especially as the bids are often given upon very short notice.

Under the present system our merchants do not receive the full benefit of their catalogues sent abroad.

SETTLEMENT OF SUIT.

The Mayor approved to-day the payment of a draft to John Zedren for $1,550, in settlement of a suit brought against the City of Boston for breach of contract, in connection with the erection of a convenience station near Park square on the Common. This contract was approved by ex-Mayor Fitzgerald on September 10, 1912. After the contract was entered into the Superintendent of Public Grounds refused to permit the contractor to proceed with the work. On repeated occasions the contractor endeavored to be permitted to start and complete the contract but was unsuccessful and finally brought suit. The case was tried in the Superior Court without a jury before Chief Justice Aiken, who found for the plaintiff in the sum of $1,700, which with interest from the date of the writ amounted to about $1,772. The matter was finally settled in the office of the Corporation Counsel for $1,550.

CIVIC CONFERENCE IN THE WEST.

The Mayor has appointed Addison L. Winship, civic secretary of the Boston City Club, to represent the City of Boston at the Pageant, Masque and Conference of Cities to be held at St. Louis, May 28-31, inclusive.

SALE OF HORSES.

Fire Commissioner Grady has been authorized to sell old horses in an amount not exceeding $500, the same to be in part payment for new horses for the Fire Department.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

To the Honorable the City Council:

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Commission submits its report on the proposed gas lighting contract between the City of Boston and the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, in partial response to the order referred to it by your honorable body as follows:

"Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to investigate the matter of city lighting, and advise the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company."

The commission will submit a report on the proposed electric lighting contract at the next meeting of the City Council.

The commission after a study of the proposed gas lighting contract is of the opinion that it does not protect the city in many essential points, for example:

1. The contract calls for furnishing lights of 60 candle power and the test is to be a laboratory one. Such a test would not give a fair test of the light under service conditions. The test should be made upon the street, that is, where the light is.

2. The method of testing lamps for purposes of fixing the amount of penalty to be paid for the failure to comply with the conditions of the contract is not workable. Under the method proposed there is no definite assurance that the candle power of the lamps would be increased over the present average candle power, which appears to be from 38 to 40. The provision regarding candle power contained on page 11, section 9, of the form of contract drawn in 1911 is far superior and should be included in the proposed contract, if the contract is to be made.

3. The clause which provides that the number of lamps furnished under the contract shall not be at any time less than 95 per cent of the number of lamps in service at the time of the approval of the contract by the Mayor is objectionable. It would bind the city to maintain 9,500 gas lamps for the next ten years. It might be advisable in the near future to do away with gas lighting altogether. There is no reason for any guaranty, except the provision that if the city shall see fit to replace gas lamps with other lamps it should replace them so as to allow the company to reduce its force of lamplighters by a definite number of routes and such discontinued routes shall be in the same neighborhood and contiguous to each other.

The city should be allowed to discontinue as many lights as it may wish to, although in fairness to the contractor the scale of prices should be agreed upon whereby a higher price would be paid per lamp as the total number of lamps was decreased.

4. In the matter of arbitration the contract should be drawn more definitely, so that if any automatic devices are adopted there should be no question that the city would receive its share of any saving in cost. The question of depreciation should apply only to automatic lighting devices, as the value of the rest of the plant has been far more than charged off in past earnings. The paragraph which provides that the city gets no rebate on account of saving in operation unless the saving exceeds $1 per lamp per year is loaded down with such conditions that the city is without protection.

There are other minor defects in the contract and specifications, among which may be enumerated the fact that no provision is made for the care of the fire alarm lamps. These lamps have been considered at a separate price in previous contracts.

Conditions have changed somewhat since the last report of the Finance Commission on the question of gas lighting with a municipal plant. Some have tended to increase the cost and some to decrease the cost of municipal street lighting. The causes which have tended to increase the cost have been the higher pay of labor and the reduction in the number of lights. On the other hand, under the present tariff, there has been a reduction in the duty on street lamps and supplies and this reduction will have a material effect in decreasing the cost of street lighting by imported lamps, such as the Graetzin lamp. Moreover, it has been demonstrated that a man can take care of a slightly greater number of inverted mantle lamps than was formerly estimated, and more definite information is now available as to the price of automatic lighters and the saving that would accrue from their use.

Under the pending contract, the cost to the city is $21 a year per light. If the upright lamp is to be continued in use in this city, the price of $21 per lamp is, in the opinion of the commission, not unreasonable at the present time. Inasmuch as the price submitted at the present time is 50 cents per lamp lower than the price submitted by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company in 1913, the commission views this reduction as favorable to the city. Furthermore, as the Gas Company under the proposed contract agrees to maintain the lamp posts which have previously cost the city an average of 40 cents per post per year, its present offer is practically 90 cents per lamp lower than its previous offer. If, however, automatic lighters are installed, it is possible that the cost to the city would be reduced to $19.33 per lamp per year. If the city should install inverted mantle lamps of the Graetzin type, it would be possible to operate the same with hand lighting with wages at $2.50 a day for $21.96 per lamp year, including interest and sinking fund charges on a ten-year basis. The adoption of automatic lighters might reduce the cost to $18.55 per lamp year, or 78 cents lower than the price that the city might obtain under the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. The city, however, would secure a greater volume of light and better distribution than it is possible to obtain with the present equipments which would be used under the pending contract.

At the end of ten years the city would be in possession and ownership of a complete plant and would be free from all the entanglements of contracts for lighting the streets of the city with gas. From past experience it is a fair assumption that the present equipment of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, which would be used under the proposed contract, cannot be made to give 60 candle power continuously.

The commission submits herewith the report of its consulting engineer, Mr. Guy C. Emerson, on the proposed contract, which is hereto annexed. (For this report see Proceedings of the City Council, page 469.)

RECOMMENDATIONS.

In view of the foregoing facts and the possibility of changes in future street lighting the Finance Commission recommends:

1. That the contract for street lighting by gas now under consideration be rejected.
2. That no contract, even at the reduced price offered by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, be accepted which would bind the city to the use of the present gas lamps for a period of over five years.
3. That if a contract be made the objections already stated in the contract under consideration should be removed.
4. That, if an acceptable contract cannot be made, the city purchase and install in such parts of the city as are not covered by the electric light service, inverted mantle lamps and, in connection therewith, automatic lighting devices.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

OUR GOVERNMENT FINANCES.

Prospects of a war with Mexico naturally lead to a consideration of the present condition of the Federal Treasury as well as the means of raising funds. The net balance in the general fund of the Treasury is now, roundly $83,000,000. Of this sum about $52,000,000 is to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States in National Bank depositaries, leaving a net balance in cash in Treasury vaults of $31,000,000. But included in Treasury cash assets are, approximately, $26,000,000 subsidiary silver coin, fractional currency, minor coin and silver bullion. Strictly speaking, this sum must be regarded as unavailable for purposes of settlement. The free and available cash at the moment is therefore, roundly $5,000,000. This under the old form of Treasury statement, in vogue prior to the administration of Secretary MacVeagh, would have been regarded as the Treasurer's working balance. During the administration of Secretary MacVeagh a radical change was effected in the manner of collecting and disbursing the revenues. It was formerly the practice to collect Government receipts through the banks, but disbursements were made direct by the Treasury at Washington or by the Assistant Treasurers in nine Subtreasury cities. Prior to the adoption of the plan of making payments through the banks, it was necessary that the Treasury should keep on hand at all times a large working balance, and it was generally regarded as necessary that in addition to the Treasurer's holdings of subsidiary silver, fractional currency, minor coin and bullion, there should be in other forms of money at all times as much as $25,000,000 or $30,000,000. On any sum less than this it required fairly rapid shifting of balances from one Treasury office to another in order to keep these offices in funds for the purpose of making disbursements.

It will be seen from the figures given above, which were taken from the latest Treasury statement, that the Government is now able to transact its business with as small a working balance as $5,000,000 over and above the holdings of subsidiary silver, etc. And as a matter of fact it could probably, for a time at least, do business upon the subsidiary balance, notwithstanding its unavailability in making settlements.

The amount of actual Treasury cash could be replenished at any time by calling on the depositary banks for a portion of their holdings, but this could not be done without considerable hardship to the banks in view of the use now made of them in collecting revenues and making payments. To reduce materially balances in bank might result in impairing the efficiency of the present collecting and disbursing system.

So far as Government receipts and disbursements are concerned, the ten months of the current fiscal year already passed show, including expenditures on account of the Panama Canal, a deficit of $60,000,000. This compares with a deficiency for the same period last year of $25,000,000. As was anticipated at the time of the passage of the new Tariff Act, which went into effect October 1, 1913, there has been a large decrease in customs receipts, the falling off in this respect amounting to $26,000,000 for the ten months period, as compared with the same period last year. Nearly all the decrease has taken place since October 1, last. Internal Revenues are holding their own, and in fact show an increase over the same period last year of $4,000,000. With a decline in miscellaneous items of roundly $3,000,000, the net result as to revenues from all sources shows a decrease of $25,000,000. On the other hand, expenditures on all accounts show an increase of $10,000,000 over the same period a year ago.

The results to date are substantially in accordance with the estimate made by the Secretary of the Treasury at the beginning of the session of Congress in December, 1913. The Treasury then estimated that for the whole of the fiscal year to end June 30, 1914, the customs revenues would produce $270,000,000, as compared with actual receipts from this source of $318,891,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, an estimated decrease of $49,000,000. The total revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, were $724,111,000, to which the customs contributed $318,891,000 and Internal Revenues $344,416,000, of which $309,410,000 was classified as ordinary revenue and $35,006,000 as corporation taxes. From miscellaneous sources there was realized $57,892,000 and $2,910,000 from the sale of public lands.

The total ordinary disbursements for the year ended June 30, 1913, were $682,770,000, leaving an excess of ordinary receipts of $41,340,000; but the disbursements on account of the Panama Canal from the general fund of the Treasury were $41,741,000, leaving a net deficiency for the year of $400,733.

For the current fiscal year the Secretary's estimate of receipts from ordinary sources is $736,000,000, and of disbursements $701,900,000, leaving an estimated surplus on ordinary account of $34,100,000. But expenditures from the general fund for the Panama Canal for the current year are estimated at $41,000,000, leaving an estimated net deficiency for this year of $6,900,000. In estimating the revenues for the current year, the Treasury has included $8,000,000 collected on account of the corporation excise tax for July, 1913, and $33,000,000 income tax from corporations to be collected under the new law, while the income tax to be collected from individuals is placed at $54,000,000. It is believed that the estimate for revenues for this year from income tax is too high and will fall short possibly $4,000,000. With the deficiency for the ten months now passed $60,000,000 and customs likely to continue to show declining receipts, as compared with last year; but with, say, $83,000,000 yet to be collected on account of income tax from corporations and individuals, the Secretary's estimate for a deficiency for the year of $6,900,000 may not be far out of the way.

For the fiscal year to end June 30, 1915, the Treasury has estimated total revenues of $728,000,000, distributed as follows: From Customs $249,000,000, Internal Revenue $315,000,000, income tax from corporations $40,000,000, income tax from individuals $65,000,000, sales of public lands $3,000,000, and miscellaneous sources $56,000,000. For the fiscal year 1915 the Treasury has estimated ordinary expenditures at $702,000,000, and disbursements on account of the Panama Canal at $26,000,000, leaving the Government at the end of that year even as between receipts and expenditures. Estimates for the year 1915, however, are of no great value except as to receipts, and only of value as to these by assuming that conditions at the time the estimates were made will remain substantially the same during the year for which they were made. As to expenditures, this is a matter which rests with Congress, and Treasury estimates are therefore largely academic.

From the above review of Treasury conditions and prospects enough may be gathered to indicate that even with no interruption in the course of the revenues the Treasury is not likely to be troubled over a surplus; and in the event of war it must seek, either through loans or additional taxation, larger supplies of money.

The Treasury now has authority to issue two classes of bonds, the proceeds of which would be applicable for war purposes.

Under section 39 of the Tariff Act of August 5, 1909, it had authority to issue $290,568,000 in bonds payable fifty years from the date of issue and bearing interest at the rate of three per cent per annum, to be sold at not less than par. Of these bonds it has already issued $50,000,000 — the Panama 3s of 1961, leaving $240,568,000, which it may yet issue. At this time there has been expended from the general fund of the Treasury for the Canal, $208,668,000, for which the Treasury is entitled to reimbursement. The proceeds of these bonds, in whole or in part, once lodged in the general fund of the Treasury, would be available for appropriation by Congress for any purpose whatsoever. By subsequent legislation these bonds were declared not available as security for National Bank circulation. Inasmuch as the Federal Reserve Act, under which a new banking system is now being organized, contains provisions looking to the gradual retirement of National Bank circulation, it is not likely that Congress would invest the Panama 3s or any other bonds, the issue of which might yet be authorized, with the circulation privilege.

By section 40 of the Tariff Act of August 5, 1909, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to borrow, at a rate of interest not exceeding three per cent per annum, such sums as in his judgment may be necessary to meet public expenditures, and to issue therefor certificates of indebtedness, not exceeding $200,000,000, to run not exceeding one year from the date of issue. This is a valuable power which was originally incorporated in the War Revenue Act of 1898, and reenacted in the Tariff Act of August 5, 1909, to which resort might be had at any time for the purpose of raising funds temporarily.

It will be remembered that the War with Spain resulted in an issue of $200,000,000 three per cent bonds, now known as the loan of 1908-18. These bonds were, and are, available as security for National Bank circulation. Of the original loan there are outstanding at this time, $63,945,465.

The War with Spain also produced what was known as the War Revenue Act of 1898, and was entitled "An Act to Provide Ways and Means to Meet War Expenditures." It levied special taxes on banks and bankers; commercial and custom house brokers; proprietors of theaters, museums, concert halls, circuses, bowling alleys, pool rooms; additional taxes on tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, snuff; and on tobacco dealers and manufacturers. It levied a stamp tax on bank checks, bills of exchange, drafts, certificates of deposit, bills of lading, insurance policies, leases, mortgages, agreements, telephone messages, warehouse receipts, steamship tickets, etc., and on stocks, bonds, debentures, certificates of indebtedness, etc. There was also a tax on medicinal proprietary articles and preparations, chewing gum, etc.; and an excise tax on persons, firms and corporations engaged in refining petroleum and sugar; and on legacies and distributive shares of personal property. A tax was also levied on mixed flour and on tea. Additional taxes were levied on ale, beer, spirits, liquors, etc.

The act was productive of abundant revenues for the purpose indicated. During the four years and two months it was in operation it produced $380,371,764. The act became effective the day following its passage, that is on April 13, 1898, and it was repealed April 12, 1902, to take effect July 1, 1902.

Another way of increasing revenues for war purposes might be found in connection with the income tax, either in the direction of imposing greater burdens on those who are now paying the tax or by fixing the amount of income exempt from taxation at a lower figure than the $3,000 and $4,000 limit which now prevails. It is supposed that the present income tax law applies to a little more than 400,000 persons. With a tax imposed on those whose incomes exceed $1,000 per annum, a vastly greater amount of revenue would no doubt be turned into the Treasury than is about to be collected with the exemption fixed at $3,000 and $4,000.

LEGAL DECISIONS RELATIVE TO CITY LIABILITY.

GENERAL SIDEWALK ORDINANCE SUFFICIENT TO VALIDATE INDIVIDUAL SIDEWALK CONSTRUCTION BY RESOLUTION.

A city of the second class had in force a general ordinance relating to sidewalks, prescribing the width, material, width of space reserved, the manner of construction, and the procedure incident to the ordering of a sidewalk and its construction, a section of which ordinance gave directions touching the petition, notice and resolution required in order to construct a sidewalk. The required petition notice and resolution were presented, given and adopted, and the tax to pay for the work was levied by the enactment of an ordinance. Held, that the city acted in substantial conformity with the requirement of section 1374 of the General Statutes of 1909; that such work be authorized by ordinance; and that the collection of the tax should not be enjoined on the ground that the city had proceeded not by ordinance but by resolution. Dargatz v. Pauley, county treasurer (Kan.) 139 Pac. 419.

PAVING ASSESSMENT VALID IF PROPERTY OWNER KNOWINGLY FAILS TO PRESENT OBJECTIONS AT PROPER TIME.

Where jurisdiction is conferred upon a municipal body to provide for paving its streets, and charge the cost thereof against the property benefited, according to the method provided by law, a property owner who stands by while such work is being prosecuted, with full knowledge that large expenditures are being made for such improvements which will benefit his property, or, upon due notice, fails to appear at the proper time and before the tribunal prescribed by law, and present his objections, if he have any, will not, after the work is completed, be afforded relief by injunction against assessments levied against the property benefited to pay for such work. City of Bartlesville et al. v. Hohn et al. (Okla.) 139 Pac. 273.

EMINENT DOMAIN APPURTENANT ONLY TO PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION.

Where the charter of a water company gave it power to hold real estate, take water, pipe it and sell the same to individuals or corporations, make contracts, etc., but contained no provisions requiring the power to be employed directly for a public use, or forbidding it from using all the water obtained by it for a purely private use, such as a manufacturing business, or from selling it all to one person, the water company did not have the right of eminent domain. That the Legislature has given a water company the right of eminent domain and the grant has been accepted will not confer such right on the company, where the charter does not make the company a public service corporation, since the Legislature cannot make a use public by declaring it so, but it is for the courts to determine whether the declared uses are in law public uses. If a water company's charter by its terms does not make it a public service corporation, that it had always performed a public service would not give it a right of eminent domain. Norfolk County Water Company v. Wood (Va.) 81 S. E. page 19.

CITY'S LIABILITY FOR INSUFFICIENT WATER SUPPLY ACCRUES ONLY AFTER FAILURE TO CORRECT DEFECTIVE SYSTEM.

After a water main had been extended by the city to annexed territory, the board of health in December, 1911, notified the plaintiff to connect his premises with it, which he did in January, 1912, and it appeared, after trial, that the quantity of water on the second floor of plaintiff's house was not sufficient to flush his closets, and the supply was so diminished by other buildings being connected with the main that after about a month plaintiff had no water at all for his bathroom, which facts plaintiff reported to the authorities and suggested that his premises be connected with a standpipe intended to supply an adjoining district, which was refused on the ground that such diversion would render the supply of the persons in that district inadequate. A few days after July 18, 1912, plaintiff and others signed a petition requesting action by the city to remedy the defect in their water supply, and the authorities immediately directed that the main be connected with another pipe, which was done four days thereafter, and which gave plaintiff sufficient water. Held, that the city was not liable in damages for the insufficiency of plaintiff's water supply when the main was first connected with his property, in view of its subsequent action in making an adequate supply available. The adoption of a plan for supplying a part of a city with water involves the exercise of a delegated governmental power, so that the city is not liable in damages for an error of judgment as to the adequacy of the system as originally installed, though it may subsequently become liable after it is clearly demonstrated by experience that the system is inadequate or defective. Stansbury v. City of Richmond (Va.), 81 S. E. 26.

NATURAL WATER COURSE.—CITY NOT LIABLE FOR WATER DAMAGE FROM GRADING STREETS.

A channel in which water never flowed except when the ground was frozen and snows melted in the late winter or early spring, and then as mere surface drainage over an entire tract, occasioned by unusual freshets, was not a "natural water course." Damages cannot be recovered for consequential injuries to private property occasioned by the original grading of streets and alleys, since their dedication implies an agreement of the dedicant and his successors that the city may improve. Surface water caused by the falling of rain or the melting of snow is to be regarded as an outlaw or common enemy against which every proprietor of land may defend himself, even if, in consequence thereof, injury results to others. A city which, in making an initial grade of streets, filled in an old dry channel where it intersected such streets and constructed culverts sufficient to have carried off the water running in the channel at certain seasons, but which were useless because private owners had filled in the channel on their lots, was not liable for casting surface water on plaintiff's property, since the filling in of the private lots was the proximate cause. Thorpe et ux. v. City of Spokane, 139 Pac. 221.

CITY LIABLE FOR DAMAGE FROM OBSTRUCTION OF STREET DRAINAGE.

Before plaintiff's lot had been raised so as to be somewhat above the proposed street grade except in the rear, a ditch was dug along the street by another adjacent owner with the city's consent or acquiescence for the purpose of draining away the surface water, and thereafter the city engineer, merely in view of raising the street in the future and not for making a present improvement, dumped waste material in the street so as to make an embankment across the ditch and dam up the surface waters, which were thereby cast on plaintiff's land in a greater volume than they would have naturally flowed thereon. Held, that the city was guilty of an actionable wrong in thus impounding waters and casting them upon plaintiff's land. In an action against a city for damage to property by impounding surface water in a street and casting it upon plaintiff's property, the court instructed that the term "Act of God" applied only to events in nature so extraordinary that the history of climatic conditions in the locality afforded no reasonable warning of them, and liability for injury caused by floods cannot be avoided, on the ground that the flood was an act of God, where it might have been expected, though it occurred infrequently, and that even though the city had caused material to be dumped in the street, yet if the storm which caused the injury to plaintiff's property was so overwhelming in character that it would of itself produce the injury independently of the material, then the jury must find for defendant, and further instructed that, to give a body of water the character of an extraordinary flood, it is not necessary that it should be the greatest flood within memory, but its character should be tested by comparison with the usual volume of floods ordinarily occurring. Held, that the instruction as a whole was that, if the storm would have caused the injury to plaintiff's property independent of the obstruction placed in the street, plaintiff could not recover. City of Tucson v. Dunseath (Ariz.), 139 Pac. 177.

ROXBURY CROSSING POSTOFFICE.

Hon. Daniel C. Roper, First Assistant Postmaster General, advises the City Record, that he has accepted proposal of Mr. William A. Miller, executor and trustee of the estate of John Miller, to lease the present quarters of the Roxbury Crossing Post Office, for a term of ten years.

NEW YORK SUBWAY CONTRACTS.

Plans and specifications have been issued by the Public Service Commission, New York, for the construction of two important sections of double track, cast-iron tube tunnels, and bids will be opened on or after May 22. Section 3, route 48 extends from Pearl street, Manhattan, under the East river to a point near Clinton street, Brooklyn, and involves estimated quantities of about 108,000 yards of tunnel excavation, 45,000 yards of other excavation, and 36,150 tons of cast-iron tunnel lining. Section 2, route 33 extends from Whitehall and South streets, Manhattan, under the East river to Montague and Clinton streets, Brooklyn, and involves estimated quantities of about 163,000 yards tunnel excavation, 10,000 yards of other excavation, and 37,200 tons of cast-iron tunnel lining. Both sections have shafts with structural steel framework sunk by pneumatic caisson process, and the use of compressed air and driving shields for the submarine portions is contemplated.

The director submitted the following report:

BOSTON, May 4, 1914.

The Executive Committee of the Franklin Foundation:

GENTLEMEN,—In accordance with Article III. of the by-laws, I beg leave to submit the following report:

SOCIAL SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY.

Franklin Union is rendering a direct and definite social service to the community in training men to properly support their families. All kinds of education contribute more or less to this end, and funds given to the cause of education have long been regarded as a gilt-edged investment, eventually bringing lasting returns to the Nation. It is often years, however, before the community receives the benefit of the investment, in the preparatory school, the professional school or the college. Not so with the money given to the further training of men already at work. Many of the results of such training are immediate. Increased earning power means better support of the family and makes directly for increased stability of the Nation. A large percentage of those attending Franklin Union are married men, who have been materially benefited by the instruction. In several cases, both father and son are enrolled as students. There could be no form of "public works" more in keeping with the thought of Franklin, or of more "general utility to the inhabitants" than that of directly upbuilding homes by producing heads of families who are properly equipped to provide for those dependent upon them. While many forms of charity fail to reach the persons intended, Franklin Union has attracted men who by their ambition, earnestness and self-sacrifice are best qualified to profit by the training offered. Mr. Carnegie, in starting the Franklin Union endowment, and in referring to the Mechanics Institute and Cooper Union, has expressed this idea as follows: "It is from the class who not only spend laborious days, but also spend laborious nights fitting themselves for hard work, that the most valuable citizens are to come. We are here helping only those who show an intense desire and strong determination to help themselves—the only class worth helping, the only class that it is possible to help to any great extent."

CONTINUED GROWTH OF FRANKLIN UNION.

The nonessentials in education, as in other fields, often make the greatest show, while the more valuable results, which are lasting and truly productive, do not lend themselves to newspaper write-up or general public notice. The six years of Franklin Union have been characterized by serious, steady, industrious, hand to hand, hard work, work that has aimed to make men stronger in their vocations. Since the opening of the building in September, 1908, 5,957 different men have been enrolled. The original registration of 533 has grown to 1,674 different men during the year just closing, an increase of 125 over last year. The registration by classes for the past year has reached 1,900, and of this number 226 registrations were foremen who are in more than one class. Of the present enrollment, 236 men have attended for two years, seventy-eight men for three years, twenty-two men for four years, and four men for five years. Nine men have been present this year who first enrolled in 1908.

STUDENTS REPRESENT NEARLY SEVEN HUNDRED EMPLOYERS.

During the past year students representing 695 employers have been enrolled. The largest number of students from any one employer is sixty-eight. Three companies have thirty-five men each, while thirty-six firms are represented by five or more students. The enrollment of three men who are connected with the Argentine Naval Commission is suggestive of Franklin's wish to benefit not only "the inhabitants" of the town, but also "strangers resorting thither for a temporary residence."

CHANGES IN COURSES OF STUDY.

The most noticeable change of the year has been that of the rearrangement of the units in the course in Structures and Civil Engineering. The readjustment now gives to Boston evening classes in these subjects of the most advanced type offered in any of the large cities. On March 30 eighteen men received certificates in the two year course in the Principles of Telephone Operation, constituting the first graduates of this course. The course owes its success to the fact that it has confined its activities to the application of the general underlying principles of the subject. The Machine Construction course has been further developed and has been made a more general mechanical course, especially adapted to foremen, draughtsmen and designers. Next year's plans involve the addition of a class in electrical drafting, a class in advanced machine drawing, additional work in industrial chemistry, advanced gasoline engines, the continuance of the course in advanced detailing and structural drafting, and of the special lectures on shop and factory operation.

EXTENDED USE OF FRANKLIN UNION BUILDING.

In addition to housing the regular Franklin Union courses on five evenings, four afternoons, and several mornings of the week, the building has provided accommodation for a high school as large as that found in many suburban cities, and has been used by thirty-nine other societies and organizations. These have included groups from the fields of labor, education, patriotism, religion, business and charity. It should be here noted that the Franklin Foundation has never presumed to censor any of its tenants, who make use of the building with the same freedom with which they could use Cooper Union or Faneuil Hall.

TECHNICAL READING ROOM.

The three-fold purpose in the establishment of Franklin Union was the maintenance of an industrial school, a public hall and a technical reading room. During the past year the technical reading room has been partly equipped with books and opened to the general public. Twenty-five monthly and weekly technical magazines and papers have been received. The room has been well used, the attendance evenings, especially during the winter months, has been very gratifying. A number of valuable gifts of books and magazines have been received.

ECONOMY OF OPERATION ARGUMENT FOR FURTHER ENDOWMENT.

It may not be out of place to call attention to the economy of operation of Franklin Union. The income received this year from the Carnegie donation amounted to $22,852.35. This with the fees and rentals, which are kept nominal, has constituted the only funds available for maintenance. In spite of the fact that the type of laboratory instruction given is a most expensive form of training, and that no pains have been spared to make the training effective, the school has been conducted so that the expenses have been kept within the annual income. Because of the fact that the garment has been cut to fit the cloth, the present needs for further funds for immediate expansion should not be overlooked. The limiting factor of the number of students which can be handled in such a school is the size of its laboratories. Already these are becoming congested, and while intensive education may be desirable and commendable, the present crowding is becoming serious. In gasoline engines, electricity and chemistry, men are being refused admission because there is no laboratory space to accommodate them. A school providing the highest grade of training for the lowest investment of capital should not be dependent for its equipment and maintenance solely on the gifts of citizens of Philadelphia and of New York, but should prove an equally attractive investment to present-day Bostonians.

Respectfully submitted,
WALTER B. RUSSELL, Director.

MAYOR CURLEY SOLVES A PROBLEM.

(New York Sun.)

Mayor Curley of Boston is no longer regarded as a friend and brother by the self-constituted leaders of the army of the unemployed in Boston. The most strident of them is Morrison I. Swift. He has haunted City Hall for several months and the Mayor has been patient and long suffering, receiving Swift and letting the man talk himself out, which takes some time. Swift's census of the army of unemployed in Boston reached 16,000 men some time ago. The Mayor was skeptical, suspecting that the rolls were padded. In every interview with him Swift demanded that the Democratic administration find work for the army.

His Honor decided to begin at the top, and when the "First Chief" called upon him the other day and refused to be put off any longer the reception on the City Hall steps was soon over. "Swift," said the Mayor, "I have a rattling good job for you, and you can go to work at 1 o'clock, helping at a concrete mixer. It's a right hard proposition, but you are strong enough to do it." The agitator pleaded that manual labor was not in his line. "I am a literary man and lecturer," he said. Mr. Curley turned to Swift's able-bodied companions and offered one and all of them a place at the concrete mixer. They had the same story to tell; they were in the literary and uplift job, and did not have a callosity among them. The Mayor terminated the interview at once. "Swift," said he, "you fellows don't want to work, you are above it." Thereupon the army leaders adjourned to the Common and talked.

The Mayor of Boston has come to the conclusion that a majority of the men on General Swift's roster of the unemployed have no more stomach for work than their leader, in which he is undoubtedly right, doing no injustice to a worthy minority. Mixing concrete may be hard on the thews and vertebrae, but to prescribe it for the notoriety seeking pack of spouting demagogues and professional muckrakers who pose as champions of honest labor and uplifters of poor humanity is not inhumane but eminently rational. Unfortunately for society, none of them can be shamed into doing a man's work by the day or by the hour.

NEW FEATURES IN CITY RECORD.

Mayor Curley is greatly interested in the improvement of the City Record in so far that information may be printed that will prove of service to Boston merchants and citizens and of a character that has not heretofore been published.

The examinations under Civil Service rules and regulations of both the Federal and State Governments will hereafter be regularly printed in the City Record by the express order of Mayor Curley. Full information will be published relative to the appointments and the salaries paid in the event of successful examinations.

Mayor Curley has further directed that by reason of the present activity in Army and Navy circles the bids for large supplies of the Army and Navy shall be published in the City Record for the benefit of Boston merchants. This information is not available generally in the public press.

And that the notices of examinations for appointments as artisans at the Boston Navy Yard shall also be published prior to their being held from time to time.

And further that proposals for large bids, such as the New York Subway contracts, and issued by the officials of the large cities in the East, shall, whenever the same may be possible, be printed in the City Record.

Hon. Charles S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has issued an order that hereafter the decisions of the United States Treasury Department, especially relating to the collection of customs and internal revenue, shall be printed in the City Record, also the rulings of the Comptroller of the Currency, which are of especial interest to Boston bankers and merchants.

Hon. Royal Meeker, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, Washington, has issued an order that reports of the Bureau relative to capital and labor shall be printed in the City Record.

Hon. Joseph E. Davies, Commissioner of the Bureau of Corporations, Washington, has issued an order that the rulings of the bureau shall be published in the City Record.

Hon. William J. Harris, Chief of the Bureau of the Census, Washington, has issued an order that the Census Bulletins, relating to Boston and other metropolitan cities, shall be published in the City Record.

GAS LIGHTING CONTRACT.

The following was received:

Boston Finance Commission,
May 11, 1914.

To the Honorable the City Council:

Gentlemen,—The Finance Commission submits its report on the proposed gas lighting contract between the City of Boston and the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, in partial response to the order referred to it by your honorable body as follows:

Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to investigate the matter of city lighting, and advise the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

The commission will submit a report on the proposed electric lighting contract at the next meeting of the City Council.

The commission after a study of the proposed gas lighting contract is of the opinion that it does not protect the city in many essential points, for example:

1. The contract calls for furnishing lights of 60 candle power and the test is to be a laboratory one. Such a test would not give a fair test of the light under service conditions. The test should be made upon the street, that is, where the light is.

2. The method of testing lamps for purposes of fixing the amount of penalty to be paid for the failure to comply with the conditions of the contract is not workable. Under the method proposed there is no definite assurance that the candle power of the lamps would be increased over the present average candle power, which appears to be from 38 to 40. The provision regarding candle power contained on page 11, section 9, of the form of contract drawn in 1911, is far superior and should be included in the proposed contract, if the contract is to be made.

3. The clause which provides that the number of lamps furnished under the contract shall not be at any time less than 95 per cent of the number of lamps in service at the time of the approval of the contract by the Mayor is objectionable. It would bind the city to maintain 9,500 gas lamps for the next ten years. It might be advisable in the near future to do away with gas lighting altogether. There is no reason for any guaranty, except the provision that if the city shall see fit to replace gas lamps with other lamps it should replace them so as to allow the company to reduce its force of lamplighters by a definite number of routes and such discontinued routes shall be in the same neighborhood and contiguous to each other.

The city should be allowed to discontinue as many lights as it may wish to, although in fairness to the contractor the scale of prices should be agreed upon whereby a higher price would be paid per lamp as the total number of lamps was decreased.

4. In the matter of arbitration the contract should be drawn more definitely, so that if any automatic devices are adopted there should be no question that the city would receive its share of any saving in cost. The question of depreciation should apply only to automatic lighting devices, as the value of the rest of the plant has been far more than charged off in past earnings. The paragraph which provides that the city gets no rebate on account of saving in operation unless the saving exceeds $1 per lamp per year, is loaded down with such conditions that the city is without protection.

Conditions have changed somewhat since the last report of the Finance Commission on the question of gas lighting with a municipal plant. Some have tended to increase the cost and some to decrease the cost of municipal street lighting. The causes which have tended to increase the cost have been the higher pay of labor and the reduction in the number of lights. On the other hand, under the present tariff, there has been a reduction in the duty on street lamps and supplies, and this reduction will have a material effect in decreasing the cost of street lighting by imported lamps, such as the Graetzin lamp. Moreover, it has been demonstrated that a man can take care of a slightly greater number of inverted mantle lamps than was formerly estimated, and more definite information is now available as to the price of automatic lighters and the saving that would accrue from their use.

Under the pending contract the cost to the city is $21 a year per light. If the upright lamp is to be continued in use in this city, the price of $21 per lamp is in the opinion of the commission not unreasonable at the present time. Inasmuch as the price submitted at the present time is 50 cents per lamp lower than the price submitted by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company in 1913, the commission views this reduction as favorable to the city. Furthermore, as the gas company under the proposed contract agrees to maintain the lamp-posts which have previously cost the city an average of 40 cents per post per year, its present offer is practically 90 cents per lamp lower than its previous offer. If, however, automatic lighters are installed, it is possible that the cost to the city would be reduced to $19.33 per lamp per year. If the city should install inverted mantle lamps of the Graetzin type, it would be possible to operate the same with hand lighting with wages at $2.50 a day for $21.96 per lamp year, including interest and sinking fund charges on a ten-year basis. The adoption of automatic lighters might reduce the cost to $18.55 per lamp year, or 78 cents lower than the price that the city might obtain under the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. The city, however, would secure a greater volume of light and better distribution than it is possible to obtain with the present equipments which would be used under the pending contract.

At the end of ten years the city would be in possession and ownership of a complete plant and would be free from all the entanglements of contracts for lighting the streets of the city with gas. From past experience it is a fair assumption that the present equipment of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, which would be used under the proposed contract, cannot be made to give 60 candle power continuously.

The commission submits herewith the report of its consulting engineer, Mr. Guy C. Emerson, on the proposed contract, which is hereto annexed.

Recommendations.

In view of the foregoing facts and the possibility of changes in future street lighting, the Finance Commission recommends:

1. That the contract for street lighting by gas now under consideration be rejected.
2. That no contract, even at the reduced price offered by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, be accepted which would bind the city to the use of the present gas lamps for a period of over five years.
3. That if a contract be made the objections already stated in the contract under consideration should be removed.
4. That, if an acceptable contract cannot be made, the city purchase and install in such parts of the city as are not covered by the electric light service, inverted mantle lamps and, in connection therewith, automatic lighting devices.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

April 15, 1914.

To the Finance Commission:

Gentlemen,—In connection with the following order of the City Council:

"Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to investigate the matter of the city lighting, and advise the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company." I respectfully submit so much of my report as relates to the contract for street lighting by gas lamps.

The gas lighting situation in Boston has been closely followed by the Finance Commission and reports have been issued from time to time. These reports are printed in the annual reports issued by the Finance Commission. Following is a list of reports on the subject issued by the Finance Commission:

REPORTS BY THE FINANCE COMMISSION ON THE SUBJECT OF STREET LIGHTING BY GAS LAMPS.

No.	Date.	Addressed to.	Subject.
1	July 21, 1909	Mayor.....	Bids for street lighting.
2	May 2, 1910	Mayor and City Council.....	Contract with Rising Sun Street Lighting Company.

7	July 15, 1912	Mayor.....	Certain aspects of the street lighting situation.
8	Aug. 14, 1912	Mayor.....	The street lighting situation.
9	Aug. 16, 1912	Mayor.....	The street lighting situation.
10	July 18, 1913	City Council.....	Bids for street lighting.

As was the case in the contract for street lighting by gas submitted by the Commissioner of Public Works to the City Council for approval in 1913, the present proposal of the gas company has been divided into two contracts:

First, a contract for supplying gas at the rate of 90 per lamp year.

Second, a contract for operating the lamps at $12 per lamp year, making a total price per lamp year of $21.

As regards the first contract, the price of gas is 60 cents per lamp lower than the price in 1913. The price of gas under the present contract is based on a yearly consumption of 12,000 cubic feet of gas per lamp year at 80 cents per thousand cubic feet, making the cost per lamp year $9.36. As a matter of fact the lamps probably burn about 14,000 cubic feet per lamp year, making the actual rate to be paid for gas approximately 64 cents per thousand cubic feet. The price indicates that a small reduction in the price of gas has been made for street lighting, although no yearly total of the gas to be consumed by the lamps is stated. This contract if approved by the City Council will be carried out by the gas company directly.

The second contract is for furnishing street lighting equipment and operating the same at a price of $12 per lamp year, an increase of 10 cents per lamp year over the bid of 1913. I have had interviews with both Commissioner Rourke and Vice President Wrightington of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. Both gentlemen agree that it is the intention of the gas company to assign the contract for maintenance and operation, if the contract is secured by the gas company, to the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, whose plant is at present installed on Boston's streets.

Considering in order the questions to which I have assumed answers are desired by the City Council.

A. Will a Satisfactory Means of Lighting the City be Secured?

The lamps owned by the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company that it is proposed to use under the new contract are very good lamps of upright mantle type. During recent years the inverted mantle gas lamp has been applied to street lighting and furnishes a much greater illumination with the same amount of gas consumed. They give higher candle power for the amount of gas burned, are less expensive to maintain and are in every way a more satisfactory illuminant. The present lamps are rated at 60 candle power each and the contract which you have under consideration proposed to furnish that candle power. As a matter of fact the average of gas lamps in the city is less than 40 candle power and it seems certain that the lamps cannot be made to furnish 60 candle power with the amount of gas which it is proposed they shall consume. In comparison with the electric lighting, the present lamp is not nearly as efficient as the 60 candle power tungsten lamp which would cost, under a ten-year contract, $21.14 per lamp year, and does not compare favorably with the 40 candle power tungsten which would cost the city, under a ten-year contract, $18.33 per lamp year, or $2.67 less than the price in the new contract. The light furnished will probably be not as good as has been furnished in the past, on account of the fact that during the past few years the company has been in doubt of receiving a new contract and has maintained its lamps at an unusual efficiency. Under a ten-year contract such efficiency will probably not be continued. Other reasons will be given later. I am inclined to the opinion that the proposed contract will not give as satisfactory illumination for a ten-year period as would be obtained from the inverted Graetzin gas lamp or the tungsten electric lamp.

B. Is the Contract Adequate to Secure the best Service?

As regards this consideration, I am of the opinion that the contract now under consideration contains very serious defects, some of which will be discussed in the following:

The portion to which I most strongly object is found in section 7, providing for candle power. The contract reads as follows:

7. Candle Power.—The lamps shall be maintained when in service at not less than sixty (60) horizontal candle power for single-burner lamps and one hundred (100) horizontal candle power for double-burner lamps.

The city may at any time, by written notice, require the contractor to employ a competent and disinterested person connected with either the Massachusetts Institute of Technology or the Scientific Department of Harvard University, or such other person acceptable to both parties, to examine and test by standard laboratory methods under conditions which duplicate as nearly as possible the lamps as they burn on the streets, the apparatus employed in furnishing the lighting service herein provided for, to ascertain whether or not the contractor is complying with the terms of this agreement, and for such purpose such person may have access at all reasonable times to the lamps, fixtures and other apparatus of the contractor used in carrying out this agreement. In case two tests of any lamps shall be made, separated by an interval of not less than one hour during any one night and both of said tests shall prove that the contractor is not furnishing the light required by this agreement, then such lamp shall be deemed to be deficient, and a deduction shall be made from the charge in respect to such lamp as herein provided. If such tests show that the contractor is not furnishing the light required by this agreement, the contractor shall pay the expense of the examination and test provided for herein; otherwise the city shall pay such expense.

For each lamp which shall be shown by the tests above specified to furnish less than 60 candle power for single-burner lamps and 100 candle power for double-burner lamps, but more than 30 candle power for single-burner lamps and 50 candle power for double-burner lamps, a sum equal to $\frac{1}{3}$ of the yearly contract price for such lamp for each night in which such deficiency occurs shall be deducted from the amounts due to the contractor. For each lamp found to give less than 30 candle power for single-burner lamps and 50 candle power for double-burner lamps, a sum equal to $\frac{2}{3}$ of the yearly contract price for such lamp for each night on which such deficiency occurs shall be deducted from the amounts due to the contractor. For each lamp reported out by the Police Department at its respective police stations or by the officials of the Public Works Department a sum equal to $\frac{1}{3}$ of the yearly contract price for such lamp for each night such failure occurs shall similarly be deducted from the amounts due to the contractor. Such reports shall be made daily in writing, open to the contractor, and shall be regarded as final and binding upon the contractor except for errors proven or admitted.

The standard of candle power to be employed shall be illumination given by the recognized international standard candle.

In regard to the method of testing, i. e., in a horizontal plane from the burner of the lamp, it is well known that the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company lamp gives its greatest illumination above the horizontal plane rather than below. By testing at a horizontal plane nearly the maximum candle power of light will be obtained although the rays tested are thrown off in a direction which will give no illumination on the street surface where illumination is most desirable.

The second paragraph provides that the city, by written notice, may request the contractor to employ a competent person to test the lamps. The effect of this is to give the company notice that the lamps are to be tested and give them ample time to take suitable measures to bring their lamps to the required candle power either by cleaning, renewing of mantles or temporarily increasing the gas pressure, as may be necessary. It would be extremely improbable that any lamps would be found in any way deficient in candle power.

Further, the contract provides that the test shall be made by standard laboratory methods. It is not clear just what this provision means. As interpreted by the Commissioner of Public Works it means that the lamps shall be taken from the posts and tested in a laboratory in actual comparison with a standard candle. This procedure is probably an impossible one to carry out in practice, as no lamp could be taken from the post and transported to a laboratory without breaking the mantle. Moreover, if a lamp was suspected giving less than the required candle power it would be easy to break the mantle in removing the lamp from the post thereby preventing any test from being made. On account of the variation in gas pressure in different portions of the city, the pressure at the laboratory would not be the same as at the post, the weather conditions would be different, and the laboratory tests would be absolutely of no value in determining the value of the illumination in service.

Again, in order that the penalty may be collected, two tests of any lamp separated by not less than one hour shall be made during any one night. This provision would involve taking down the lamp twice, testing it twice and setting it up once on the post during one night. Not only is this procedure impossible to accomplish in the limited space of one hour, but the ordinary workman cannot accomplish it in one night. In the laboratory tests no lamps would be found to be deficient because the gas pressure would be ample for the purpose, the lamps clean, the mantles new and the tests would be free from drafts of air or other influencing conditions of the weather.

Even assuming that through some inadvertence a lamp was found to be below the required 60 candle power, the penalty to be deducted from the price due the Gas Company would be $\frac{1}{3}$ of \$12, or approximately 33 cents in addition to the cost of the test.

In case the lamps are found to be not deficient the cost of testing must be paid by the city. The cost of a party of photometric observers for an evening would probably be in the neighborhood of $20, and the labor of removing and replacing the lamps perhaps $10 more. The city would therefore be obliged to risk the expenditure of $30 on the slight chance of penalizing the Gas Company to the extent of 33 cents in addition to the cost of making the test. Under such conditions it is clear that few, if any, tests would ever be made and that section 6 would be absolutely inoperative as a means of maintaining the candle power of lamps.

There will be no assurance that the candle power of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company lamps would be increased over the present average candle power which seems to be about 38. No contract should be accepted by the city containing such provisions and in my opinion the section regarding candle power contained in the specifications for lighting streets and alleys dated February 11, 1911, is far superior and should be included in the proposed contract, if the contract is to be made.

Article 11. Discontinuance of Lamps.

This section provides that the number of lamps furnished under the contract shall not be at any time less than 95 per cent of the number of lamps in the service at the time of the approval of this contract by the Mayor. As the number of lamps in service at the present time is approximately 10,000 the contract will bind the city to approximately 19,500 gas lamps for the term of the contract. In my opinion no such provision should receive the confirmation of the Council. In the first place there is no reason why there should be any guaranty. There will be no new apparatus for the Rising Sun Company to provide, and therefore no additional fixed cost on account of new investment. As shown in previous reports of the Finance Commission the plant of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company has been paid for many times and the city owes nothing on that account. The only provisions which could be reasonably required by the contracting companies as regards the number of lamps would be one that provided that if the city saw fit to replace gas lamps with other lamps it should replace them in such numbers that undue hardship should not be placed on the company in distributing the remaining lamps among their employees. That is to say, a number of lamps should be replaced which would allow the company to reduce its force of lamp-lighters by a definite number of routes, and such discontinued routes should be in the same neighborhood, contiguous to each other; and another that provided that the price per lamp year should be automatically increased, as the total number of lamps was reduced, by an amount sufficient to compensate the company for the fixed charges due to supervision, office expenses, rental, etc., as such expenses would not decrease proportionally as the number of lamps decreased.

Article 14. Arbitration.

Although this provision does not definitely provide for automatic lighting devices it is understood that this provision would apply to any saving made by the installation of such devices by the company. There does not seem to be, considering the protections the company receives under the contract, any reason why the city should not be entitled to its share of any saving in cost, and the contract should be so drawn.

Also, the provision regarding depreciation should be changed so that the charge for depreciation should apply only to the automatic lighting devices. As previously stated, it is impossible that there should be any depreciation of the present plant, which has been paid for many times.

Again, if automatic lighting devices are installed the city gets no rebate on account of savings in operation unless the saving exceeded one dollar ($1) per lamp year; if the savings exceed one dollar per lamp year the city would be entitled to a rebate from the contract price of one-half of the amount saved. This provision could be manipulated in various ways for the benefit of the company. For example, assume that the saving from automatic lighters for the preceding year was one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per lamp year; the company and the city would each be entitled to one-half the saving, or seventy-five (75) cents each. If the company arranged its business, by raise of salaries, higher payments for supplies to its parent company or otherwise, so that the saving appeared to be only one dollar ($1) per lamp year, in that case the company would save one dollar and the city nothing per lamp year. The absurdity of the paragraph as a workable provision in favor of the city is apparent.

Many other minor defects are apparent in the contract and specifications, among them the fact that there appears to be no provision in the contract for the care of fire alarm lamps, of which there are 157 with open flame burners. These lamps have been considered at a separate price in previous contracts. It is unnecessary to enumerate further defects, as those above outlined should be sufficient to prevent the approval of the contract.

C. Are the Prices Unreasonable Under the Conditions Existing in Boston?

In order that the figures in the contracts submitted may be intelligently considered, it has been necessary for me to revise my estimate of the cost of street lighting by different types of street lamps which were contained in Appendix A of the report of the Finance Commission on street lighting submitted to his Honor the Mayor on April 29, 1911. Since that report was submitted conditions have developed both to increase the cost of street lighting by gas and to decrease the cost. The principal conditions which increase the cost are:

First. The pay of city laborers has been increased from $2.25 a day to $2.50 a day. This increase of 25 cents per day will increase the cost of operation of street lamps by approximately $1 per year, if the raise is applied to lamplighters.

Second. The number of gas lamps in the city has been reduced from approximately 11,000 to approximately 10,000 on account of the recent installation of a considerable number of electric lights in locations formerly occupied by gas lamps. This reduction in the number of gas lamps will tend to increase the cost per lamp year of lamps operated by day labor, as the overhead charges, such as office expenses, insurance, teaming, etc., will not be reduced, and will have to be distributed among a smaller number of lamps.

The conditions which tend to decrease the cost of street lighting are:

First. Experience has shown that a slightly greater number of upright mantle lamps per man can be safely estimated than was estimated in the previous report.

Second. More definite information as to prices for automatic lighters and the savings that would accrue from the use of the same has been obtained than was available when the previous estimates were made.

Third. The provisions of the tariff bill recently enacted by Congress made reductions in the tariff on street lamps and the supplies for the same which will have a very material effect in reducing the cost of street lighting by imported lamps, such as the Graetzin lamp.

Copies of the revised estimates in detail are hereto appended and marked Appendix A.

In the following report only the totals of these estimates will be used. These totals show as follows:

First. That the cost to the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company for lighting the streets under the proposed contract, using their present methods, with wages at $2 a day for lamplighters, will be approximately $11.56, or a profit of only 44 cents per lamp year, if they obtain the entire amount paid to the Boston Consolidated Gas Company under the operating contract, not including any allowance for depreciation of plant or interest charges. If, however, the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company installs automatic lighters it is possible that the cost of operating the plant may be reduced by approximately $3.34. Of this cost one-half, or $1.67, will be allowed the city according to the contract; the other half being obtained by the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, making a possible profit of $1.99 to the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company. Under this division it will be possible that the city would have the cost of its street lighting reduced to $19.35 per lamp year.

Second. If the city should install inverted mantle lamps of the Graetzin type it would be possible to operate same, with hand lighting and with wages at $2.50 a day, for $21.96 per lamp year, including interest and sinking fund charges. If such an installation were equipped with automatic lighters it might be possible to reduce the cost by approximately $3.41 per lamp year, making a net cost to the city of $18.55 per lamp year, or 78 cents lower than the lowest price which it would be possible for the city to obtain under the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. In addition the city would secure a greater volume of light and better distribution than it is possible to obtain with the present equipment of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company now in use.

If the volume of light and the distribution of the same by the present upright mantle lamps were equal to the volume and distribution furnished by the inverted mantle lamp, or the 60 candle power electric lamp, it would be a close question whether the city should adopt the proposed contract, install a municipal plant of inverted mantle lamps, or replace the gas lamps with incandescent electric lamps. Considering the actual conditions, that the present equipment of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company cannot be made to furnish 60 candle power per lamp continuously unless an excess amount of gas is burned, as will either the inverted mantle lamps or the 60 candle power lamps of the Edison Company at $21.14 per lamp year, it is clear that under existing conditions either a city-owned equipment of inverted lamps should be installed, or a contract should be made for lighting the entire city with electricity.

As another consideration, the chance of securing lower cost of lighting through improved apparatus is much greater as regards electricity than as regards gas. Inventions are constantly being made to improve the efficiency and also reduce the cost of the electric light, while the only chance of securing a lower price for gas lamps is the increased business to the gas company, whereby their overhead charges and manufacturing costs can be extended to cover a greater amount of gas manufactured. The other large element entering into the cost of gas lamps, to wit, the labor, is increasing from year to year. The cost of supplies, while they may not be materially increased in the near future, will certainly not be greatly decreased. The only arguments that can be advanced with any force for the use of gas for street lighting are that in certain very limited areas of the city both gas and electric lighting are at present in service and in these small areas if one service should fail there would be a certain amount of illumination furnished by the other service. For this slight advantage the city is obliged to pay an excessive price for an inferior illumination.

The nitrogen filled tungsten incandescent lamp, which was referred to by the Finance Commission in its report to the City Council on July 18, 1913, has been rapidly developed since that time. Sample lamps of large candle power have been operated for some time in Boston for street lighting purposes and there seems to be no doubt they are satisfactory as an illuminant and are operated with a current consumption of approximately one-half the current consumption which is used by the ordinary form of tungsten lamp. Small candle power lamps have been developed so that they are practical for use on electric circuits of certain characters. Lamps of 40 candle power have so far developed as to be used satisfactorily for interior lighting, and I am informed that such lamps will be installed on the streets in New York City for street lighting purposes in a very short time. These small lamps take approximately two-thirds of the current of the present tungsten lamps. There seems to be no doubt that within a very short time the nitrogen filled lamp will be so developed as to be used for all service where tungsten lamps are used at the present time, with a considerable economy of current.

As the commission is aware, the cost of tungsten lamps at present for equal illumination is less than the price that has yet been offered for gas lamps and the use of the nitrogen filled lamp will still further increase the advantage of the electric lamp.

Conclusions.

In consideration of the foregoing facts definite recommendations are very difficult to formulate. One matter is clear—the contract under consideration should be rejected. The difficulty arises in determining what action should be taken after the present contract has been definitely rejected. Five plans suggest themselves:

1. Substitute either 40 or 60 candle power electric lamps in place of the present gas lamps. The adoption of the 40 candle power lamp would give at least as good illumination as is obtained from the present gas lamps at a much lower price than in the proposed contract. If the 60 candle power lamp were used, the illumination would be much better than from the Rising Sun Company's lamp and the present cost would be about the same as under the proposed contract. As already stated, the chances of a reduction in the price of electricity are much greater than of a reduction in the price of gas lighting, and it is a practical certainty that for a ten-year contract the electric service would furnish better illumination at lower prices than would the gas service. The only objections to the adoption of electric lighting throughout the city are on account of losing double service in certain restricted areas of the city, where the illumination is at present divided between gas and electricity, and the fact that the electricity in the suburbs is furnished by overhead wires that occasionally are disabled by the severe storms in the winter season, thereby temporarily interrupting the service. That the first objection is of sufficient importance to outweigh the advantages of electric lighting, I doubt, and the second objection will disappear as wires are placed underground.

2. The city can install an equipment of inverted mantle lamps as suggested in the various previous reports of the Finance Commission. As between the continuation of the present equipment of the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company at the prices proposed or the installation of inverted mantle lamps, I am of the opinion that the city should install inverted mantle lamps. The price at which they could be operated with city labor at $2.50 a day is only slightly higher than the price bid by the gas company, and the superior illumination which would be furnished by these lamps would in my opinion more than offset the increased price. If automatic lighting should be successfully applied, the price for inverted mantle lamps would be below any price which could be reached under the proposed contract. If the city had installed inverted mantle lamps after the first recommendation by the Finance Commission, practically two-fifths of the investment would have been retired at the present time and the difference between the price at which the lamps could have been operated and the price paid the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company during the past four years would have amounted to a sum of more than one-half of the remainder of the investment. The uncertainty as to whether inverted mantle lamps should be installed at the present time arises not through any doubt as to whether the present contract should be rejected, but whether it would not be better to adopt electric lighting.

3. The third plan would be to continue the present gas lighting equipment at a lower price until the gas company has developed automatic lighting to such an extent as to enable the company to make an offer under suitable specifications that would warrant the city in accepting gas lighting in competition with electric lighting. That the gas company would be able to make such an offer in the future I doubt. I am of the opinion that the days of successful competition for street lighting between electricity and gas are nearly over. At the present time the electric companies have all the advantage and the gas companies cannot approach the prices of the electric companies and give equal illumination, unless some new form of lamp is adopted and automatic attachments used to reduce the labor cost. If such means are taken it is probable that competition can be continued successfully for a few more years.

4. The city could replace the gas lamps in the underground territory of the Edison Company and install inverted mantle lamps in the suburbs. About 2,000 of the present gas lamps could be displaced. This plan would call for the purchase of approximately 7,000 inverted mantle lamps.

5. The city could install electric lamps as above and allow the present equipment of the Rising Sun Company to be used for lighting the suburbs under a form of contract that would properly protect the rights of the city.

Respectfully submitted,
GUY C. EMERSON, Consulting Engineer.

MUNICIPAL SALE OF MEAT IN NUREMBERG, GERMANY.

A saving of $2,300,000 to the citizens of Nuremberg, Germany, resulted from that German municipality's sale of meat at cost prices during 1913. Statistics recently made public show that the fifteen retail shops maintained by the city sold only 4.3 per cent of the meat locally consumed last year. Thus about 15,400 of Nuremberg's 358,500 population, or, in round figures, 4,000 families, enjoyed the benefits of the city's sales of meat at cost prices. The City Statistical Office, taking the lowest prices prevailing at the regular meat markets, finds that on an average the city sold beef at least 4 cents, pork, 3 cents and veal, 2½ cents per pound cheaper than the regular butchers, the average for all meats being about 3½ cents per pound cheaper. As the consumption of meat in Nuremberg was 130 pounds per capita, this means a direct saving through the city meat markets of something more than $70,000. The facts are that the saving to the people of Nuremberg was many times greater than that sum, and that not only the small fraction of the people who patronized municipal meat markets but the entire population derived material benefit from the city's action. The differences in price between the regular meat markets and the city markets were at least double the minimum figures which the statistical office has used, but the main benefit was the keeping down of prices in the regular shops to the limits of normal profits. The statistical office does not commit itself on this feature of the city's activities; but taking into account the sudden drop in the prices of meats of all kinds when the municipal markets were opened the fall of 1912, it is naming a minimum figure to say that all meat sold in Nuremberg in 1913 was sold for 5 cents per pound less than if the municipal markets had not existed. Thus, instead of only 4,000 families saving about $70,000 by reason of the competition of the municipal markets, the 90,000 families of Nuremberg actually saved about $2,300,000 on their meat bills during the year, because the city has gone into the business of retailing meat on its own account.—Municipal Journal.

MR. WHITE UNABLE TO SERVE CITY.

Mr. George R. White has addressed the following letter to Mayor Curley stating his inability to serve the City of Boston as a trustee of the Statistics Department, by reasons of pressure of business affairs:

May 18, 1914.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR,—I have your esteemed favor of the 14th instant which is the first official intimation I have had of your desire to appoint me as Statistics Trustee.

I fully appreciate the honor you would confer upon me in this appointment, and sincerely regret that I cannot accept it because my time is so fully engaged as to make it impossible for me to give the department the attention its importance deserves.

Wishing you every success in the administration of your great office,

I am, dear sir,

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE R. WHITE.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S ANTI- TRUST PROGRAM.

The anti-trust program of President Wilson is at present attracting the attention of the country. The question is one of tremendous importance to the nation, and the proposed legislation desired by the President, changing business conditions, is a matter deserving the most serious consideration of Boston business men.

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the House of Representatives appear to have the situation well in hand, and the bill for the establishment of an Interstate Trade Commission is certain to pass the House. The outlook in the Senate presages a bitter struggle.

Through the courtesy of Congressman
J. Harry Covington of Maryland, a member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the City Record is enabled to print the views of a majority of the committee relative to the legislation desired by President Wilson, and upon which the Democratic majority in the House will base their appeal to the nation.

It is declared by the committee that their labors have been unremitting in an endeavor to work out the problems involved, and to present a bill adequate in meeting the sentiment and requirements of the people, respecting an independent administrative bureau of the Federal Government, to be concerned with industrial corporations, engaged in interstate commerce.

The bill provides for an interstate trade commission in accordance with the views of the President expressed in his message to Congress in January last on the subject of trusts and monopolies. The recommendation of the President in that message was for the creation of such a commission as an instrument of information and publicity, and as a clearing house for the facts by which both the public mind and the managers of great business undertakings should be guided. Moreover, he suggested in that message that the commission ought to be made capable of assisting the courts in the shaping of corrective processes. The administration idea, and the idea of business men generally, is for the preservation of proper competitive conditions in our great interstate commerce. Consequently, the establishment of a commission having powers of regulation or control of prices, or the power directly to issue orders controlling the lawful operations of industrial business in this country, has no place in the bill now reported.

Under the act of February 14, 1903, the Bureau of Corporations was created as a bureau of the newly organized Department of Commerce and Labor. Under that act and its amendments, the Commissioner of Corporations was given rather extensive powers to investigate the organization and management of business corporations and to obtain such information as would enable the President to make recommendations to Congress for new legislation. With the creation of the Department of Labor in 1913, the bureau was one of those placed under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce. While the powers, authority and duties conferred upon the Bureau of Corporations and the Commissioner of Corporations are broad, there was a failure specifically to require the regular gathering of certain most important kinds of information through the medium of annual reports from industrial corporations engaged in interstate commerce. The act also omitted to confer other powers, perhaps not then thought useful, but now believed to be most necessary to assist in effectuating the definite policy and functions for the proposed commission announced by the President in his trust message.

The bill as reported provides for a commission of three members at a salary of $10,000 a year. The proposed commission will largely justify its creation by the method and manner of the performance of its varied duties by its members. The highly efficient services of men of large capacity will be required, and the salaries of the members of the commission have been placed at a figure which will enable the President to secure that sort of men. In the detailed organization of the commission the provisions of the existing act to regulate commerce (and the amendments thereto) creating the Interstate Commerce Commission are followed wherever practicable.

In section 3 the bill transfers to the commission all of the powers, authority and duties of the Bureau of Corporations and of the Commissioner of Corporations.
The broadest powers of that bureau and of the Commissioner of Corporations are embraced in the general provision of the law creating that bureau to investigate the organization, conduct and management of the business of corporations, and to gather information and data to enable the President to make recommendations to Congress for legislation for the regulation of interstate commerce.

The Commissioner of Corporations up to this time has not come to an issue in court with any corporation concerning the extent of the powers to be exercised under the very general phraseology of the law creating the Bureau of Corporations. At the same time, in the case of United States v. Armour & Co. (142 Fed.
Rep. 808), before Judge Humphrey in the United States District Court for the northern district of Illinois, the validity of those powers was expressly in issue in a criminal case. It was held that the primary purpose of the act was legislative, to enable Congress by information secured through the work of officers charged with the execution of that law to pass such remedial legislation as might be found necessary, and the act must be construed in view of that purpose—and that its provisions were definite expressions of legislative intent and constitutionally enforceable.

In view of the judicial determination of the validity of the powers of the Bureau of Corporations and of the Commissioner of Corporations and their broad character, the bill transfers those powers to the commission by specific reference to the existing law.

But the great value to the American people of the Interstate Commerce Commission has been largely because of its independent power and authority. The dignity of the proposed commission and the respect in which its performance of its duties will be held by the people will also be largely because of its independent power and authority. Therefore the bill removes entirely from the control of the President and the Secretary of Commerce the investigations conducted and the information acquired by the commission under the authority heretofore exercised by the Bureau of Corporations or the Commissioner of Corporations. All such investigations may hereafter be made upon the initiative of the commission, within constitutional limitations, and the information obtained may be made public entirely at the discretion of the commission.

There has been serious question, however, whether regular annual reports from corporations engaged in interstate commerce could be required under the powers of the Bureau of Corporations. None were contemplated in the law creating that bureau, and there was no compulsory power provided to obtain them.

Therefore, in section 9 of the bill annual reports from the great industrial concerns of the country are provided for, setting forth essential facts connected with the organization, stockholders, financial condition and general business conduct of those concerns.

The testimony before the committee by many men of large business experience was singularly in accord with the idea that these reports will afford one of the surest means of that publicity which will tend to an elevated business standard and a better business stability. All corporations engaged in interstate commerce having a capital of more than $5,000,000 are required to file these reports. But it is not always the large corporation that has an organization or financial condition or a system of practices that requires publicity to bring about lawful methods in its business. It is quite possible that a group of small corporations may be so operated as to cause serious violations of law. The commission is given the power, therefore, to make classifications of corporations having a capital of less than $5,000,000, which shall be required to make the same annual reports that are to be made by the large corporations. This power of classification will relieve the mass of smaller business concerns engaged in interstate commerce from the necessity of making such reports, while it reserves to the commission that discretion which it ought to have to provide for rational publicity of bad practices in interstate commerce without regard to the size of the corporations engaging in those practices.

The commission, under this section, may also require such special reports as it may deem advisable. By this means, if the ordinary data furnished by a corporation in its annual reports does not adequately disclose its organization, financial condition, business practices, or relation to other corporations, there can be obtained by a special report such additional information as the commission may deem necessary.

Compulsory publicity of an abstract of the annual and special report of each corporation is required by the provision of section 17 that such abstract must be included in the published annual report of the commission. The section contains, however, ample safeguards to prevent the disclosure of those necessary trade secrets which are of no value to the public in promoting lawful competitive business, but which when disclosed simply afford an opportunity for injurious use by competitors.

In some quarters these annual and special reports seem to be regarded as an unnecessary publicity of the affairs of corporations. It is therefore well to note that both the preliminary and final reports of the industrial commission recommended as the chief measures of reform to check the growth of monopoly greater publicity regarding the operations of corporations, and particularly the establishment of some organ of publicity in the Federal Government.

The preliminary report of the industrial commission submitted to Congress in 1900 said in part as follows:

The larger corporations — the so-called trusts — should be required to publish annually a properly audited report showing in reasonable detail their assets and liabilities, with profit and loss; such reports and audit under oath to be subject to government inspection. The purpose of such publicity is to encourage competition when profits become excessive, thus protecting consumers against too high prices and to guard the interests of employees by a knowledge of the financial condition of the business in which they are employed.

The final report of the Industrial Commission, submitted to Congress in 1902, in volume 19, pages 650-651, said in part as follows:

That there be created in the Treasury Department a permanent bureau, the duties of which shall be to register all state corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce; to secure from such corporations all reports needed to enable the government to levy a franchise tax with certainty and justice, and to collect the same; to make such inspection and examination of the business and accounts of such corporations as will guarantee the completeness and accuracy of the information needed to ascertain whether such corporations are observing the conditions prescribed in the act and to enforce penalties against delinquents; and to collate and publish information regarding such combinations and the industries in which they may be engaged, so as to furnish to the Congress proper information for possible future legislation.

The publicity secured by the governmental agency should be such as will prevent the deception of the public through secrecy in the organization and management of industrial combinations or through false information. Such agency would also have at its command the best sources of information regarding special privileges or discriminations, of whatever nature, by which industrial combinations secure monopoly or become dangerous to the public welfare. It is probable that the provisions herein recommended will be sufficient to remove most of the abuses which have arisen in connection with industrial combinations. The remedies suggested may be employed with little or no danger to industrial prosperity and with the certainty of securing information which should enable the Congress to protect the public by further legislation if necessary.

The commission will also be required under section 10 of the bill, by the direction of the President, the Attorney General or either House of Congress, to investigate and report the facts relative to any alleged violation of the anti-trust acts, and it may include in its report recommendations for readjustment of business, so that the corporations investigated may operate lawfully.

Attorney General Harmon, in reply to a House resolution of January 7, 1896, requesting a report regarding the enforcement of the laws against trusts and conspiracies in restraint of trade, and what further legislation, if any, was needed, in part said:

If the Department of Justice is expected to conduct investigations of alleged violations of the present law or of the law as it may be amended it must be provided with a liberal appropriation and a force properly selected and organized. . . . But I respectfully submit that the general policy which has hitherto been pursued of confining this department very closely to court work is a wise one, and that the duty of detecting offences and furnishing evidence thereof should be committed to some other department or bureau.

Moreover, the Department of Justice has often found that an agreement for readjustment by an offending corporation accomplishes a better result than the continuance of a prosecution. Heretofore there has been no administrative body to obtain the information that will assist in attaining such an end, and in connection with this power now conferred the commission has a most desirable independence preserved by giving it the entire control of its report to be made after such investigation. There can thus be no laxity at the Department of Justice when it is presented with the facts disclosing violations of law.

Broad as are the powers of the Bureau of Corporations, the Commissioner of Corporations in his report of 1904 (p. 14) defines the limit of those powers. He says:

He cannot make investigations or procure or furnish information by means of his compulsory powers for the purpose of enforcing penal provisions other than those contained in the organic act of the bureau.

Having regard for the report of Attorney General Harmon, above quoted, the power of investigation conferred upon the commission by section 10 is an extremely important and efficacious one, and one not now exercised by any independent bureau of the Government. That it is a constitutional delegation of power seems certain. By section 3 of Article II. of the Constitution it is specifically required of the President that "he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." The Attorney General is merely an arm of the Executive, and it was no doubt in consonance with this constitutional provision that Attorney General Harmon wrote the report to Congress above referred to. It is thus certain that the investigations by the commission under this section, by direction of either the President or the Attorney General, will be in the exercise of valid power delegated to the commission.

In so far as the investigations under this section as the result of resolutions of Congress, or either House thereof are concerned, the commission is authorized to perform a legal and certainly a most beneficial function. Congress, having the constitutional authority to legislate in regard to interstate and foreign commerce, has the power to obtain all the information necessary to make such legislation appropriate and adequate. Its future regulation of industrial corporations engaged in interstate and foreign commerce may be as much determined by information concerning the present practices of corporations in violation of law as otherwise. In its judgment the existing substantive law or procedure of the courts may be ineffective and new remedial legislation may be the solution. In repeated cases the Supreme Court has held that "Congress may not delegate its purely legislative power to a commission," but it has not been held that Congress may not by a commission elicit information in order to lay the foundation for intelligent and effective action in the matter of regulating interstate and foreign commerce.

Unthinking criticism has been directed against such power to be conferred on the commission. However, more than twenty five years ago Judge Cooley, the distinguished chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, said of such power then believed to exist in that commission:

This is a very important provision, and the commission will no doubt have frequent occasion to take action under it. It will not hesitate to do so in any case in which a mischief of public importance is thought to exist and which is not likely to be brought to its attention on complaint by a private prosecutor.

Section 12 confers upon the commission a broad and most useful power as an aid to the courts in suits arising under the anti-trust laws. There has been no proper bureau equipped with a trained force to assist the Department of Justice and the courts in solving the difficult economic problems connected with the dissolution of corporations which have been adjudged to be operating in violation of the anti-trust laws, and one of the most effective powers conferred upon the interstate trade commission is that contained in the section authorizing the courts to refer to it the matters of the pending suit at the conclusion of the testimony therein to ascertain and report an appropriate form of decree. The purpose of such investigation is to give the court the completest economic information to assist it. This power, of course, does not authorize the commission to gather evidence to be offered in any case considered by the court as the basis of its judgment, and it amply safeguards the constitutional rights of defendants by reserving to them the same right to file exception to the report that now exists in relation to master's reports in equity causes in the Federal courts. The commission, as an independent body of specialists, will, however, have placed upon it the proper burden of framing the plans for the effective segregation and readjustment of unlawful combinations, subject of course to the approval of the court.

The commission is required upon its own initiative by section 13 to see that the execution of any decree against any corporation to prevent or restrain a violation of the anti-trust acts is effective. It has been repeatedly said by authorities upon this subject that there must be some independent and impartial body charged with the duty to see to the continued performance, subject to the direction of the court, of such decrees. The commission is to make investigations whenever necessary for the purpose of enforcing that effective disintegration of a combination in restraint of trade contemplated by the decree of court, and it must transmit to the Attorney General a report showing the manner in which the decree is being carried out so that application may be made at once to the court for any supplemental order necessary to the proper and continued enforcement of its decree.

The power of the Interstate Commerce Commission respecting the compulsory attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of books and papers has been held in one case to be limited to the quasi-judicial duties of the commission to hear complaints against common carriers for violation of the "act to regulate commerce" or to make investigations by the commission upon matters that might have been the object of complaint. (Harriman v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 211 U. S., p. 243.) In order that the commission may have ample power of subpoena and production of books and papers the language of section 16 of the bill has been expressly made broad enough to permit a full exercise of that power in connection with any kind of investigation which may be undertaken.

In the Industrial Railway case, Interstate Commerce Commission Report No. 4181, an inquiry into allowances by trunk lines to show lines of railroads serving industries, the report says (p. 267):

These matters were voluntarily brought to our attention by a joint committee of the trunk lines and the steel corporation and were submitted for our consideration on the understanding that the conclusions reached would be accepted both by the carriers and the industries.

The powers of investigation conferred upon the commission in the reported bill are certainly broader than are those of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and, considering the specific power under section 10 to include in any report made thereunder "recommendations for readjustment of business in accordance with law," business men may obtain that measure of definite guidance and information which is proper to be given by an administrative body.

During the consideration of the bill by the subcommittee there was much discussion as to the extent to which the provision of the constitution contained in the fifth amendment, "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated," might be invoked to protect corporations from an examination of their books and papers. Taking the cases of Interstate Commerce Commission v. Brimson (154 U. S. 457) and Hall v. Henkel (201 U. S. 43) as the rule of law, and observing the broad application of that rule in the case of United States v. Armour & Co. (142 Fed. Rep. 808), there would seem no doubt that there is ample authority for the constitutional exercise of the full powers of investigation conferred upon the commission.

The commission has in no sense been empowered to make terms with monopoly or in any way to assume control of business. Such matters are of a most delicate, complex and doubtful nature, and their advocates seemed all too desirous that the government should make itself initially responsible for corporate activities conceived perhaps with such subtlety that the dangers to the public might develop only after sad experience. There has been no attempt to deal with the question of maintenance of fixed prices. The commission has been given no power to pass orders in any way regulating production. It has not been clothed with authority to make a declaration as to the innocuousness of any particular corporation or agreement, even if coupled with the right to revoke such order in the future.

All those problems are interwoven with the industrial business of the country in such a way as to be effectively legislated upon, if at all, only after the most exhaustive investigation by trained experts. The hearings before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce of a year and a half ago and the hearings before this committee during the pendency of the present bill did not produce any information which would warrant an attempt at an intelligent and sound legislation upon them.

It must be remembered that this commission enters a new field of governmental activity. The history of the Interstate Commerce Commission is conclusive evidence that the best legislation regarding many of the problems to come before the Interstate Trade Commission will be produced from time to time as the result of the reports of the commission after exhaustive inquiries and investigations. No one can foretell the extent to which the complex interstate business of a great country like the United States may require, alike for the benefit of the business man and for the protection of the public, new legislation in the form of Federal regulations, but such legislation should come by a sound process of evolution. Even the control of the railways in this country by the Interstate Commerce Commission affords no complete parallel to administrative control of the industrial corporations of the country by a Federal commission. It is largely the experience of the independent commission itself that will afford Congress the accurate information necessary to give to the country from time to time the additional legislation which may be needed.

The whole theory of the creation of the commission has been to make it an efficient and useful independent body, concerned with the maintenance of proper supervisory relations of the Federal Government over industrial corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

Those facts which ought to be the common property and the common knowledge of American business men are for the first time to be gathered and controlled as to their publicity by an independent commission. Powers of investigation, safeguarded by proper constitutional limitations, are taken from a now subordinate department under the control of the Executive and given to this nonpartisan body. Where publicity through reports and investigations to promote beneficent legislation are alike ineffective to develop better business practices, the existing administrative machinery of the Federal law is fortified by an independent commission which will perform a work in aid of the courts not now authorized anywhere in the government.

Having regard for the singular success which the Interstate Commerce Commission has had upon the relation of the railroads to the public, independently of the direct power it has exercised to regulate rates and practices, it would seem that the country may rightfully feel that the Interstate Trade Commission will perform services that will be of inestimable advantage to the business and the future of the country.

STATE TREASURER MANSFIELD WILL OPEN BOOKS.

Hon. Frederick W. Mansfield, Treasurer of the Commonwealth, in a formal statement issued upon the 20th instant, announces his intention to give free access to the Tax Commissioner, of the records of the State Treasurer's office, showing the names of persons owning Massachusetts taxable bonds. He declares:

"I have been astonished to learn that former treasurers have persistently refused to allow assessors of towns and cities in Massachusetts to examine the list of taxable bondholders which is on file in the treasurer's office.

"I don't say that the persons who hold Massachusetts taxable bonds are dodging their taxes, but if they have been doing so in the past they may as well learn that they can do so no longer. The poor man who cannot hide his assets is compelled to pay his taxes, but if the wealthy man is enabled by collusion with a treasurer to purchase taxable bonds and then conceal the fact that he owns such property, it is of course a double hardship upon the honest taxpayer.

"The poor people in Massachusetts, in many instances, are paying the taxes of the rich, and the custom of enabling rich men to buy taxable bonds and then to conceal the fact must be smashed.

"I have arranged with the Tax Commissioner to have one of his assistants examine our files, and he will notify the assessors of every city and town of the names of residents who hold taxable bonds so that these assessors may be enabled properly to assess the residents.

"There are, roughly speaking, $100,000,000 of taxable bonds of the state now outstanding. It may be that every person who holds these bonds pays his taxes religiously, and I don't make any claim to the contrary; but if there is any tax dodging going on it is my intention to stop it. While I am treasurer I intend that the people and the poor man shall get a fair chance."

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

By reason of the facts herein set forth by the Fire Commissioner, the Mayor has approved an award of contract to the Charles R. Gow Company for construction of a new concrete floor at fire headquarters:

BOSTON, May 20, 1914.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR,—I respectfully request permission to enter into contract with the Charles R. Gow Company, without advertising, to construct a new concrete floor at fire headquarters and under horse stalls, for the sum of nineteen hundred fifty (1,950) dollars.

My reason for desiring to make this contract without advertising is that this is the only firm that can do this work in a manner satisfactory to this department. Their method of doing the work is controlled by patent and if bids were asked for, a different and more expensive method of doing the work would have to be devised.

I inclose herewith letters from the Charles R. Gow Company and J. R. Worcester Company submitting proposals and explaining how the work should be done.

Yours very respectfully,
JOHN GRADY,
Fire Commissioner.

Grovesnor & Co. and the Hugh Nawn Contracting Company. These contractors are not selected by the city but by the abutters and the expense of construction is divided between the city and the abutters.

CLAIMS.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the indorsement of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of Anne Watson, in the amount of $450 for damages occasioned her estate in Vaughan avenue, Dorchester, by the laying out of said avenue, and as voted by the Board of Street Commissioners.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the indorsement of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of Mary G. Crowley, in the amount of $150, for damages occasioned her estate in Ballou avenue, Dorchester, by the laying out of said avenue, and as voted by the Board of Street Commissioners.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the indorsement of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of George W. Grimm, in the amount of $148, for the services of a physician, resulting from injuries incurred while assisting an officer at a fire at 81 Centre street, Roxbury.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the consent of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of Swift & Co., in the amount of $10.26, for amount wrongfully charged for thawing out a water pipe at 59 North Market street.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the indorsement of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of Patrick F. Donovan, in the amount of $16.89 for compensation for amount paid by mistake in certain street betterments at Norfolk street and Cook court, Dorchester.

Upon May 22 the Mayor approved, with the indorsement of the Corporation Counsel, the claim of Charles E. Cotting et al. in the amount of $25,000, for damages occasioned their estate in Tremont street by the extension of Avery street, and as ordered the vote of the Board of Street Commissioners.

Incident to this claim, the Hon. John A. Sullivan, Corporation Counsel, declares:

"The chairman of the Board of Street Commissioners recommends that the Board's revised award of $25,000 as damages for the city's taking of the property of Charles E. Cotting et al., Trustees, No. 175 Tremont street, be approved by your Honor. The original award was $14,000; the assessed value was $532,000, $468,200 on 4,682 square feet of land, and $63,800 on the building. This property was purchased by the present owners in 1910 for $600,000.

"This is an unusual case in that the only property of these owners taken for the widening of Avery street are their rights in a 12-inch party wall which was constructed one-half on their estate, and one-half on the adjoining estate, No. 173 Tremont street, which was taken for this improvement. Both estates had mutual rights of support in this party wall, and the destruction of the wall on the adjoining estate has made it necessary for these owners to construct a new side wall for their building, which under our building law, Statute 1907, chapter 550, section 23, will occupy a space on the land of these owners in addition to the space now occupied by the present wall, 14 inches wide on the first two floors, 10 inches wide on the next two floors and 6 inches wide on the two top floors. The award was based on the cost of this additional wall which was estimated by the city's expert to be $14,000.

"The owners are making extensive alterations in addition to the construction of the new wall and their builder has estimated the cost of the new wall to be $17,800. The owners' lot is 87.63 feet deep and the construction of the new wall will occupy something over 73 square feet, which at the assessed valuation would be worth $7,300, and upon the price fixed by the sale of 1910, $9,500. In addition to the cost of the new wall and the value of the 73 square feet of the owners' land necessary to use therefor, it is proper to estimate as a part of the owners' damage the usual architect's commission of 10 per cent on alterations, together with a reasonable amount for loss of rentals during repairs which will require something over four months, and which has been estimated at about $3,000.

"These elements of damage were not considered by the Street Commissioners when they made their original award of $14,000. The owners have agreed to accept an award of $25,000 in settlement of their claim for damage, and in view of the facts above set forth I recommend that the revised award of the Street Commissioners be approved."

Yours respectfully,
JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Corporation Counsel.

REMOVAL OF ELEVATED STRUCTURES.

Mayor Curley addressed the following communication to the Hon. Lombard Williams of the Massachusetts Senate, upon the 21st instant, relative to the removal of the elevated structures of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, as provided in House Bill No. 427, now pending:

May 21, 1914.

HON. LOMBARD WILLIAMS,
Senate Chamber, State House:

DEAR SENATOR,—I write to you as a member of the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, respecting House No. 427, which provides in effect for the removal of the elevated structures between Dudley street and Sullivan square and the building of a subway in place of such elevated structures. I respectfully request you to read this letter to the Senate, as I desire that the reasons for my opposition to the bill shall be known.

The project is one with which I am in entire sympathy, and if the object could be secured at a reasonable cost to the city, I should not oppose it, but the pending bill would impose such a staggering burden upon the taxpayers of the city that I must oppose it as a matter of official duty.

Under the provisions of the bill, the City of Boston is to bear the expense of constructing the proposed subway, and it probably would receive an annual rental equal to $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the cost as provided in the bill. The City paid $4\frac{1}{4}$ per cent interest on the last bonds which it sold, and in my judgment and that of the City

Auditor, the interest rate the city would have to pay on bonds issued for the proposed subway would be $4\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{3}{4}$ per cent, so that the city would make little or no profit out of the transaction. The statements made by owners of property on Washington street, or their representatives, that the city could sell these subway bonds at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent and get a rental for the subway of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, thus making an annual profit of 1 per cent on the transaction is not in accord with the facts, and is, in my opinion, and that of the City Auditor an utterly unreliable basis of reckoning.

The city would also have to pay the Boston Elevated Railway Company damages for the removal of the elevated structure. Not a dollar of these damages could be received back from the Boston Elevated Railway Company as rental or otherwise. This cost as estimated by the Transit Commission would be almost $11,000,000, and this would be a sheer loss to the city except to the extent that the city could collect betterment assessments from the owners of property abutting on the streets in which the elevated structure now stands. Such betterments, however, are limited to not exceeding one-half of the benefits received, and not exceeding one-half the damages previously paid to such owners by the Boston Elevated Railway Company, and twenty-five years is given in which to pay such betterments. The owners of such property assert that $2,000,000 could be collected in betterment assessments. If this were so the proposal would in effect be to tax the citizens in all parts of Boston $9,000,000, and to tax the owners along the line of the elevated structure who would be the principal beneficiaries only $2,000,000. But in the opinion of the chairman of the Street Laying-Out Department of the city, the betterment assessments levied would fall far short of the estimated $2,000,000, and the amount collected during twenty-five years of constant effort to secure abatements would fall far short of the amount of the betterments assessed. On the basis of computation most favorable to the advocates of the bill and which is also consistent with the facts and the probabilities of the case, the city would suffer a net loss of approximately $10,000,000 in this transaction. In view of the financial condition of the city such a result would be little short of a calamity from which I earnestly request that the city be spared.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of the City of Boston.

BOSTON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD.

The effect of competition in the fish industry of the city was the subject discussed at a conference, held in the Council Chamber of the State House, upon the 21st instant, between Governor Walsh, the Directors of the Port of Boston and Chairman John N. Cole of the Boston Industrial Development Board. The conference was called by Governor Walsh, following several well founded reports that certain fish dealers intended to occupy the old buildings at T Wharf to compete with the new fish pier in South Boston.

Chairman Cole has called this matter to the attention of the Governor, suggesting that if such a competition should result in a lower cost for fish for the consumer, no branch of the Government could afford to interfere with it. "It is my opinion, however," he said, "that if proper remedies could be applied to the transportation service in connection with the fish pier, it would develop the advantages of the new fish pier, as one general market for the fish business of New England, which would be so pronounced that no successful competition could be built up in any other section of the city."

The Port Directors made it clear in the conference that they had been ready at all times to cooperate with the lessees of the Fish Pier, in any sort of improvements that might be needed there for better service, but that there had been no support of their plans for such development on the part of either the lessees of the Fish Pier or the public who were so vitally and directly concerned.

The conference resulted in an agreement on the part of all parties to unite in promoting the development of transportation facilities, and other necessary improvements so that the investment by the Commonwealth at the waterfront should bring about the results intended, as well as conditions in the city itself.

Chairman Cole is giving a great deal of attention to the transportation facilities, as an imperative necessity in the proper distribution system resulting from increased business development.

SALE OF HORSES.

Fire Commissioner Grady has been authorized to sell old horses in an amount not exceeding $500, the same to be in part payment for new horses for the Fire Department.

LETTER OF THE CORPORATION COUNSEL.

Corporation Counsel John A. Sullivan has addressed the following communication to Richard Knowles, Clerk of the Committee on Taxation of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, relative to the proposed measure that the Commonwealth retain the corporate franchise taxes paid into the State Treasury by railroad, telephone, telegraph and trust companies:

LAW DEPARTMENT, May 18, 1914.

RICHARD KNOWLES, Esq.,
Committee on Taxation:

DEAR SIR,—I submit, as requested, a memorandum on the proposed retention by the Commonwealth of certain franchise taxes as recommended in House No. 2330. The proposal is to have the Commonwealth retain the corporate franchise taxes paid into the State Treasury by railroad, telephone, telegraph and trust companies instead of having them distributed to the cities and towns where the shareholders reside, the theory being that such companies are not local but state wide in character, and that consequently the municipalities in which the shareholders live are not entitled to any part of such taxes. It is said, however, that the municipalities would suffer no loss as the additional revenue received by the Commonwealth would reduce the state tax by an amount equal to such revenue. Thus it is argued that if the state had retained the $1,602,171 of such taxes in 1913 instead of distributing it to the cities and towns we could have had a state tax of $6,400,000 instead of $8,000,000. According to this argument the state would have been no better off, nor would the cities and towns, taking them as a whole, and the only thing accomplished would have been the perfection of a theory of public accounting.

If this were true the proposed legislation would not have any practical effect sufficient to justify its passage. If, on the other hand, the additional revenue received by the Commonwealth should be regarded by the seekers of state appropriations as just so much more money to be spent, the result would be that the state tax would not be lowered but that the cities and towns would be deprived of a substantial revenue and their last state would be worse than their first.

I submit that experience shows that the additional money would be spent by the Commonwealth, that the state tax would not be lowered and that the proposed legislation would invite extravagance.

1. Experience in this state proves that a statutory limit upon taxation is the only reliable safeguard against extravagant appropriations. Appropriations almost invariably approach, if they do not equal the limit. These limitations upon municipal appropriations and loans have kept municipal tax budgets and municipal debt from soaring to indefinite heights.

2. There are no such limitations upon the Commonwealth; hence state expenditures are increasing in greater proportion than municipal expenditures.

3. The tendency of the state to outrun municipalities in increase of debt and expenditures is illustrated by a comparison between the state and the City of Boston, a city noted for liberality in its financial operations.

4. The tendency of the state to spend every dollar in sight is further shown by the increase in the state tax:

Estimated by former Auditor John E. White at over..... $10,000,000

5. This tendency is further illustrated by the rapid increase in the state tax as compared with the revenue from other sources:

	1904.	1913.	Per Cent Increase.
State tax.....	$2,500,000	$8,000,000	220
State revenue from other sources.....	6,021,281	9,680,502	60.7

This comparison between the increase in the state tax and the increase from other revenues shows how little dependence can be placed upon the promise to apply additional revenues toward the reduction of the state tax, as the record shows that all the increased revenue is immediately utilized and that further increases in state expenditures are authorized to an extent requiring increases in the state tax much greater than the percentage of increase in the other revenues.

Yours very truly,
JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Corporation Counsel.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

May 18, 1914.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor:

SIR,—On April 21, 1914, the Finance Commission received from your Honor the following letter:

City of Boston,

Office of the Mayor, April 18, 1914.

HON. JOHN R. MURPHY,

Chairman Finance Commission:

DEAR SIR,—I transmit herewith tabulation of water rates and information relative to water used and paid for on property at 454 and 456 Hanover street, owned by James T. Fitzgerald, together with other statements in connection therewith.

I would request that your commission make an investigation to the end that the facts may be ascertained and submit report thereon as soon as practicable.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

In answer thereto the Finance Commission transmits herewith a copy of the report of its representative.

Respectfully submitted,

by JOHN R. MURPHY,

Chairman.

REPORT ON REMOVAL OF WATER METERS
FROM CERTAIN PROPERTY BELONG-ING TO JAMES T. FITZGERALD AND EMILY AND MARY T. O'BRIEN.

The property at 454 and 456 Hanover street was acquired by James T. Fitzgerald on January 20, 1912, but has recently been conveyed to James J. Crowley (January 14, 1914). Guiseppe Angelosante has had the property under lease for the past six years and is now holding it under a two-year lease from James T. Fitzgerald, which will expire October 31, 1914. Mr. Angelosante stated that under the terms of a prior five-year lease it was stipulated that the lessee was to pay the water rates. Upon the expiration of this lease, however, a new lease was made, dated October 21, 1912, for the term of two years from November 1, 1912. The lease stipulated that "the lessor" (James T. Fitzgerald) "is to pay the water taxes." Thus under the present lease James T. Fitzgerald was to pay the water taxes.

It is true, as stated by Mr. Angelosante, that water meters were installed in his buildings in 1909 and that regular readings were made and the bills were paid by him.

The Superintendent of the Water Meter Division, Mr. McMurry, stated that on or about October 15, 1912, Mr. Arthur Quincy, representing James T. Fitzgerald, came to see him to complain about the over registering of the meters at 454 and 456 Hanover street and to request that the meters be taken out for a test. He also stated that Mr. Quincy said that renovations and repairs were about to be made to the buildings and that the meters should be kept out until these had been completed. Accordingly the meters were removed from both houses on or about October 25, 1912, and the cause assigned for their removal upon the official records at City Hall was "for test." The clerk in charge of these records, Mr. Haley, stated that he asked Mr. McMurry what reason was to be assigned for the removal of the meters and after some hesitation the latter had replied, "Put down for test." Ordinarily the department allows meters to be removed when extensive alterations are being made in buildings and a temporary service pipe is then installed for which a special building fee is charged. In other cases, where there are bursts to the meters occasioned by frost, temporary service pipes are installed until the winter has passed, but in cases where tests only are made a new meter is immediately installed.

Mr. Arthur Quincy, upon being examined at the office of the Finance Commission, did not recall ever having had a conversation with Mr. McMurry regarding the renovations to the Hanover street property, but indistinctly remembered calling to see him to register a protest in behalf of the tenants in regard to an over registering of the water meters. Mr. Quincy further stated that no renovations or repairs took place at the time the meters were removed.

Mr. McMurry said that he would have replaced the meters in the Hanover street houses on January 1, 1913, but he was so rushed with work on frozen meters that it slipped his mind, and at the beginning of the following year, 1914, the supply of meters was so limited he could not spare two for these houses. When closely pressed for more definite reasons for the removal of the meters, Mr. McMurry replied that "When anyone comes to City Hall clothed with authority from persons in power everybody sits up and takes notice."

Mr. Haley, the meter clerk, however, stated that he called the attention of Mr. McMurry about January 1, 1913, and again about January 1, 1914, to the fact that the meters had not been reinstalled in the Hanover street houses, but was told that he (McMurry) would attend to the matter. It was not until March 7, 1914, that Mr. McMurry came to Mr. Haley and told him that the meters were to be replaced in the Hanover street buildings.

It is to be noted that the meters, upon being taken out, were found by the testing division on October 25, 1912, to be in perfect working order.

During the period when the meters were out of the premises no annual charge for water was made, as the clerk who has charge of the annual rate records received no notification of the change from meter to service pipe. Consequently the premises were freed not only from the charge for water by meter rates but also from a charge by schedule rates; in other words, the property was in receipt of free water from October 25, 1912, until March 7, 1914. A search has been made of the records of the Collecting Department to ascertain if any payment was made for water during this period, but it was learned that the last payment was for the third quarter in 1912. On March 11, 1914, however, a bill for $63.75 for the period from October 1, 1912, to January 1, 1914, based upon the annual schedule rates, was sent to the Collecting Department for collection and was paid on May 7, 1914, shortly after the commission began its investigation.

It may be worthy of note that the premises at 454 Hanover street contain a store and tenements for four families, but only one toilet, and that this is contrary to law and the Board of Health regulations which require a toilet for every three families; and also that in the lease of Mr. Angelosante it is stated that the lessee "is of the opinion that the wall of the said building is liable to fall and that the lessor agrees that if it does fall he will rebuild it at no expense to the lessee." As the question of the toilets is one for the Health Department, and the question of the defective wall is one for the Building Department, both of these departments should take cognizance of this matter.

In the course of the investigation it was discovered that from property belonging to the wife of James T. Fitzgerald and to Emily and Mary T. O'Brien water meters had been removed. In the first case property belonging to Mary E. Fitzgerald, located at the corner of Park and Joiner streets, Charlestown, and which has recently been acquired by the City of Boston as a site for a fire station, had had a meter installed in it in the year 1909. It was removed on February 8, 1912, on account of frost. A few weeks later, April 28, 1912, when the meter installation division was preparing to place a new meter in the premises, a telephone message was received by T. V. Sullivan, the head of the meter installation division, from Mr. McMurry requesting Mr. Sullivan "to hold up" the installation of the meter in the Park and Joiner street house. Mr. Sullivan complied with the request and although inspectors kept reporting to the department that the meter was still out of the house and that pipe service was being maintained, no change took place. Upon being questioned Mr. McMurry stated that he was in entire ignorance of the fact that the meter had been withdrawn from the Park and Joiner street house and it was not until the Finance Commission called it to his attention that he learned of it. He denied that the matter had been called to his attention by any employee in the Water Service. The testimony given by T. V. Sullivan that Mr. McMurry on April 28, 1912, had requested that the meter be not put back, and the fact that a record was made of this request at the Albany Street Yard, do not support the statement of Mr. McMurry.

In the second case the property is located at 4 Rochdale street, Roxbury, and was owned by Emily and Mary T. O'Brien. The meter was removed from the premises in the year 1911 and a service pipe, which had formerly been there, replaced. Mr. Edward T. O'Brien, who is employed as a deputy collector in the Collecting Department, stated that he acted as a representative of his sisters in interviewing Mr. McMurry and Mr. Wilson in regard to the withdrawal of the meter. He stated that he wished to have a yearly charge made against the estate rather than the meter charge; that he had called to see either Mr. McMurry or Mr. Wilson and had asked them to have the meter taken out. In accordance with his request the meter was taken out. He also stated that he might have called on Richard Field, the then secretary of the Mayor, in regard to having the meter taken out, but was not quite clear on this point. Mr. Wilson of the Water Meter Division, who gave the order for the removal of the meter in 1911, stated that he remembers quite clearly that the order for the removal of the meter came from the Mayor's office, either in the form of a request to Mr. McInnis and transmitted to him, or in the form of a written memorandum. He has made a search for the latter but cannot find it, but his impression is quite clear that when he wrote the order for the removal of the meter it was at the request of the Mayor's office.

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT EXAMINATION.

At the request of Fire Commissioner Grady, the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission are preparing to hold another examination for applicants for promotion from the position of engineer, assistant engineer, hoseman and ladderman to the rank of lieutenant in the Boston Fire Department. It is planned to hold this examination in June, although a definite date has not as yet been set. A similar examination for promotion from the rank of lieutenant to captain, and from captain to district chief will be held at a later date.

The first competitive examinations of this kind in the department were held in November, 1911, and improvements over the method of conducting the first examination have been suggested. There has been considerable complaint among the members of the department in regard to the first examination, and, it seems in the opinion of Fire Commissioner Grady, the complaints are just in some cases. In 1911 the examination was not given to all candidates alike, but it was held on five different days, with five different sets of questions. This year it is planned to hold the examinations on one day, and to conduct them in different sections of the city. In this way everyone will be asked the same questions.

It is planned to ask only questions of a practical nature and in line with the work which the applicant is either called upon to perform in his present position, or that he may be called upon to perform in the position for which he is being examined.

The examination will be conducted entirely by the Civil Service Commission, who will furnish the necessary equipment, examiners, etc.

BOSTON IMMIGRATION STATION.

Hon. Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of the Bureau of Immigration, Department of Labor, Washington, has very kindly sent the City Record his annual report.

Relative to the new Boston Immigration Station, Commissioner Caminetti declares:

"With regard to the proposed new station for Boston, the Bureau regrets to report that after plans had been prepared by the office of the Supervising Architect, it was found that the money available was not sufficient. The Secretary of the Treasury has been requested to endeavor to secure an additional appropriation, and also to have authorized the transfer of that now existing to the Treasury Department, so that the delays and embarrassments arising from having the work controlled by one department and the appropriation therefor by another, may be avoided."

PERMISSION TO SELL OLD IRON.

Commissioner of Public Works Rourke has been given permission by the Mayor to sell old iron, the property of the Water Service Division, in an amount not to exceed $500 in value.

SEWERAGE WORKS LAND-TAKINGS.

The Mayor has approved the vote of the Board of Street Commissioners in taking a parcel of land, owners unknown, in Menton and Standard streets, Dorchester, and containing 2,284 square feet, more or less.

The sewer works to be constructed are as follows: About 347 linear feet of 8-inch pipe sanitary sewer in the above described premises, being part of the private ways known as Menton street, between Groveland and Standard streets, and of Standard street at Menton street.

The Board determines that no person sustains damages by the taking for and construction of the sewerage works, and awards no damages therefor.

APPROVAL OF TEMPORARY QUARTERS.

The Mayor has approved the rental, from C. W. Whittier & Brother, of the store in building Nos. 25-29 La Grange street, for a period of two months from date, and with the privilege of extending same one month further if it is necessary, at the rate of $2,000 per year. Said store is to be used as temporary quarters for the office of the Business Agent of the School Committee, which was formerly at 168 Tremont street, and which was burned May 19, being thus rendered unfit for occupancy.

NEW CUSTOMS ACT.

The editor of the City Record calls the particular attention of Boston merchants, making shipments to South Africa, to the new Customs Act, now effective in the South African Union, and establishing regulations which should be carefully noted.

In the absence of invoices showing home consumption values, deposits will be accepted sufficient to cover duties on a 25 per cent increase of the prices invoiced to the importer, pending the production of invoices giving the required particulars. If the home market value is greater than the export value, and the manufacturer fails to give the higher value he obtains in the home market, the importer is rendered liable to a penalty for inaccurate declaration, and to possible forfeiture of the goods. The Customs Department gives notification of its intention to check the accuracy of the declarations by actual inquiries in foreign countries. Concerning the stipulation that the dutiable value of goods shall be that prevailing at the place of purchase, the Customs Department has decided that on inland purchases, made by an importer or his agent, the freight charges to the port of shipment, if shown separately on the invoice or on a separate bill, may be deducted for the purpose of arriving at the "true current value" as defined by law. Importers must, however, prove the actual place of purchase and the correctness of the deductions, and in the absence of such proof the place where the invoice is made will be regarded as the place of purchase.

INTERNATIONAL CITY PLANNING CONFERENCE.

Mr. John J. Walsh of the City Planning Board left for Toronto, Canada, to attend the International City Planning Conference, upon Friday, 22d instant. The City of Boston will be admirably represented at the International Conference by Mr. Walsh, who has made a deep and most painstaking study of the manifold municipal problems to be discussed at the sessions.

Among those who will entertain Mr. Walsh in Canada are Hon. Horatio C. Hoeken, Mayor of Toronto, Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the conference, Hon. Julius D. Dreher, United States Consul at Toronto and Editor John McDonald of the Toronto Globe.

INTEREST ON CITY DEPOSITS.

The Boston News Bureau is authority for the statement that the indications are that at least three of the five large Boston banking institutions, which have steadfastly refused to pay 3 per cent on the City of Boston sinking fund deposits, will accede to this request. They are the First, Second and Merchants National Banks.

The two which have evinced no disposition of granting the increase of 1 per cent in the interest rate on inactive deposits, are the National Shawmut Bank and the New England Trust Company.

The actuating motive behind the banks' change of heart is understood to be the fact that but 2 per cent is paid on the active city accounts—as separate and distinct from the active checking deposits—making possible some light return on the average city deposits outstanding.

At times in the past 2½ per cent has been paid on active municipal deposits so that the banks now feel disposed in view of the current 2 per cent rate to meet the demand for 3 per cent on the inactive accounts.

BOYLSTON STREET SUBWAY REPORT.

The Boston Transit Commission has formally recommended to the State Senate and House of Representatives that the terminal of the Boylston Street Subway shall be at Park street, until the exigencies of increased travel may warrant the establishment of a terminal at Post Office square.

The commission reports as follows:

BOSTON, May 19, 1914.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Chapter 810, Acts of 1913, a copy of which is appended hereto, provides in section 1, as follows:

The Boston transit commission, hereinafter called the commission, is hereby authorized and directed to investigate and report to the next general court whether or not, in view of the traffic to be served and the additional expense involved, it is desirable to alter the route of the Boylston street subway, as defined in chapter seven hundred and forty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by abandoning the construction of that part of the Boylston street subway between Boylston street and Park street, in the city of Boston, and in place thereof extending said subway through Boylston street to Washington street, and from Washington street by some route to Post Office square, providing for an exchange of traffic with the Tremont street subway at or near the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets, with the Washington street tunnel at or near the corner of Boylston street and Washington street, and with the Dorchester tunnel at some convenient point. In case the commission is of the opinion that it is desirable to alter the route of the Boylston street subway, it is requested to state in its report the precise route which it would recommend and the additional expense involved, and to submit with its report a draft of a bill embodying such legislation as may be necessary to carry out its recommendations. The cost of the above investigation and report shall be deemed a part of the cost of the Boylston street subway.

Prior to the passage of this act, an order was passed by the Senate, April 18, 1913, requesting the Transit Commission to report to the Senate as to the probable cost of extending the so-called Boylston Street Subway to Post Office square, and asking it to give its opinion as to the precise route to be followed in case such extension should be made, and as to whether it considered it desirable to adopt such a route.

In accordance with this request, the Transit Commission submitted to the Senate, under date of May 9, 1913, a report covering this subject, discussing several alternative routes, their advantages and disadvantages, and giving its opinion on the questions referred to. This order of the Senate, and the report of the Transit Commission in accordance therewith, are also appended hereto.

In regard now to the report asked for by section 1, chapter 810, the Transit Commission begs leave to make the following report:

During the past year, as provided in said chapter 810, the commission has completed plans and awarded contracts for the completion of the Boylston Street Subway to a temporary connection with the present subway at a point near Park square. The subway will be completed to this point within a few months from this date, and it is expected that it will be open to operation in the fall.

As provided in section 4, chapter 810, Acts of 1913, the commission under date of September 29, 1913, made the proper modifications in the contract for the use of the Boylston Street Subway rendered necessary by connecting it temporarily with the present Tremont Street Subway.

Chapter 741, Acts of 1911, authorizing the construction of the Dorchester Tunnel, gives this commission authority to enlarge the present Park Street Station of the Tremont Street Subway. As this subway is operated under lease, it was of course necessary to secure the approval of the Boston Elevated Railway Company before such enlargement could be made. This approval has recently been secured. The commission is now preparing plans for this enlargement and it is its purpose to enter upon the work of construction at the earliest practicable date.

In the opinion of the commission, it is in itself desirable that passengers using the Boylston Street Subway should be able to reach some point near the center of the business district, like Post Office square, and also the South Station, without changing cars. It is the unanimous opinion of the commission, however, that it would not be desirable for such a point to be made the only terminus of the Boylston Street Subway. That is to say, it would not be desirable that all of the cars going from the west in that subway should run to Post Office square or the South Station and nowhere else. Some of these cars might be run to these points, but others should run to Park street. The count of traffic referred to in the report submitted by the commission last year showed that a majority of the passengers who expressed their opinion preferred Post Office square; but almost as large a number were in favor of Park street. The commission believes, therefore, that, if chapter 741 of the Acts of 1911, which provides for making the only terminal of the Boylston Street Subway at Park street, is to be amended, it should only be amended in such a way as would permit the subway to be forked so that some cars might run to Park street and others to some terminus farther east. The provision of such a double terminus is not only desirable from the point of view of convenience of transportation but also because it would assist in relieving the congestion of streets. This last advantage is particularly desirable in Boston where the streets and sidewalks in the business district are so narrow and congested. Any transportation improvement which will take large numbers of people as near as possible to the precise point which they wish to reach will by so much relieve the sidewalk traffic.

While such an arrangement would be in itself desirable, the cost of an extension of the tunnel to Post Office square would be large, and in view of the fact that by going to Park street and transferring to the Dorchester Tunnel, passengers will be able to reach Dewey square and the corner of Summer and Chauncy streets, and that by making still other transfers they can reach any point on the lines of the Washington Street Tunnel or the East Boston Tunnel, it is questionable whether under all the circumstances the additional expense of building another tunnel to Post Office square would be justified at the present time.

The business section of Boston covers a comparatively small area, and within this area there is apparently already provided a greater mileage of subway and elevated lines than in any equal area in any American or foreign city, with the possible exception of London and New York. The area of the peninsula of Boston, bounded by the Charles river, the harbor, Fort Point channel, Dover and Berkeley streets, is only about 1.80 square miles. Within this area there are already in operation, or under construction, about 9.05 miles of subway and elevated lines, with about 19.7 miles of single track. If the area were square, this mileage would provide for double track rapid transit lines crossing it in each direction at intervals only about 1,800 feet apart. Taking the actual shape of the area, there is no part of the business district east of Beacon Hill, which is more than about 1,100 feet distant from some rapid transit line. The distance from the Washington Street Tunnel, a through line north and south, to Atlantic avenue at the head of docks along the harbor on the east is about 2,000 feet. There are three north and south rapid transit lines through this district, namely: the Tremont Street Subway, the Washington Street Tunnel and the Atlantic avenue elevated line, and the distance between adjacent lines is nowhere more than about 2,200 feet; and there are two rapid transit lines east and west through the district, namely, the East Boston Tunnel and the Dorchester Tunnel and these are nowhere more than about 2,800 feet apart.

It is thus evident that the business section of Boston is already well provided with underground and overhead rapid transit lines; and by transfer it is possible to reach any point on any one of these lines, going in the same general direction, for a single fare.

These figures will perhaps illustrate the character of the facilities which have already been provided, and will show the need of exercising great caution before advising the construction of another underground line in this limited district at the present time.

The commission, therefore, feels that at the present time the permanent termini of the Boylston Street Subway should not be fixed. The requirements of urban transit must be determined largely from experience. It is expected that the extension of the East Boston Tunnel, which will largely increase the capacity of that tunnel, will be completed some time in 1915. It is also expected that the Dorchester Tunnel will be completed to the South Station, and it is hoped that it will be put into operation to that point some time in the same year. When the Dorchester Tunnel is in operation to the South Station, passengers from all points of the city will be able to reach that station with convenience and dispatch, and access to the financial district will also be facilitated.

In the meantime, as above stated, the commission will be proceeding with the enlargement of the present Park Street Station. This enlargement will be so designed that it will be consistent, so far as practicable, either with making Park Street the single terminus of the Boylston Street Subway, as at present required by chapter 741 of the Acts of 1911, or with making it only one of two termini.

The commission, therefore recommends that, at the present time, no further action be taken with reference to the determination of a permanent terminus or termini for the Boylston Street Subway.

Respectfully submitted,
THE BOSTON TRANSIT COMMISSION,
GEORGE F. SWAIN, Chairman.

WIDENING OF WASHINGTON STREET.

Mayor Curley at a conference upon the 21st instant, with property owners on Washington street, between Forest Hills square and Roslindale square, requested they deed back to the city a 20-foot strip of land for a distance of half mile, totaling 48,000 square feet, in which event the city would widen the thoroughfare between these two squares to 80 feet.

FEDERAL CHILDREN'S BUREAU.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Chief of the Children's Bureau Department of Labor, Washington, has very kindly sent the City Record her annual report.

Upon the questions of infant mortality and mother's pensions, subjects which are at present arousing a country-wide interest, Miss Lathrop declares:

INFANT MORTALITY INVESTIGATION.

With the working organization of the new Bureau effected, the immediate question became that of the most strategic point at which the Bureau could begin field investigating with the small force available. It was essential to select a subject in which there was not only a pressing need of investigation but also a practicable method of approach for this Bureau, with the staff and appropriation at command. Certain points stood out clearly. The subject must be fundamental to social welfare, of popular interest, and serve a real human need; and from the practical standpoint it must be work which could be done a small bit at a time and published in installments as each unit was finished. Although its full completion might require a considerable period, yet all the separate small inquiries when completed must furnish a composite picture of a certain social condition through typical units existing throughout the country.

All these requirements were met in the subject selected—that of infant mortality.

In the first place, this subject is now challenging the attention of the whole civilized world. Because the United States differs from other civilized countries in having no general system of birth registration it is impossible to state with accuracy our proportionate loss, but we have the estimate of the Census Bureau that our actual loss last year was about 300,000 babies under one year of age, of whom at least half would now be living had we, as individuals and communities, applied those measures of hygiene and sanitation which are known and available. Here is a vast and unmeasured loss of infant life due solely to individual and civic neglect. The economics and industrial significance of such a loss in the general scheme of social well-being is beginning to be realized. It was once thought that a high infant death rate indicated a greater degree of vigor in the survivors. Now it is agreed that the conditions which destroy so many of the youngest lives of the community must also result in crippling and maiming many others and must react unfavorably upon the health of the entire community. Sir Arthur Newsholme, the great English statistician, has said:

"Infant mortality is the most sensitive index we possess of social welfare. If babies were well born and well cared for, their mortality would be negligible. The infant death rate measures the intelligence, health and right living of fathers and mothers, the standards of morals and sanitation of communities and governments, the efficiency of physicians, nurses, health officers and educators."

In the second place, from the practical standpoint of the Bureau's equipment, an inquiry into infant mortality answered the requirements. It is possible to choose a series of typical communities of manageable size and varying characteristics in which this inquiry can be prosecuted as rapidly as the funds of the Bureau permit. Of course, the staff and funds are at present too small to permit an investigation of a large city as one of these units. But from a social point of view there is a more commanding reason for working outside the great urban areas. Within most of the great cities of western Europe and America the loss of infant life has so compelled the attention of civic and volunteer health officers, nurses and humanitarians, that within the last few years the infant death rate has been appreciably lessened in those cities. It was therefore decided to begin the study of infant mortality in small towns, with the plan of adding rural communities as soon as practicable.

The form of this inquiry, it was felt, should frankly accept the present Bureau lack of a medical staff and should confine itself to the social, industrial and economic surroundings of the family until such time as a trained sanitarian might be secured. It was determined that the inquiry should reverse the usual methods of studying infant mortality from the death records; that, on the contrary, it should begin with birth records, ascertaining in the given town what children had been born in the given year, and then following each child through the first year of his life or so long as he might survive. It will be seen that this is an absolutely democratic inquiry, applying to every family in the community where a child has been born within the specified year.

The information as to date of birth, on which this inquiry is based, should be available on behalf of every child in America, but the Bureau was faced by the fact that birth records are available for only a small fraction of American children. Hence we were limited in the effort to make typical investigations throughout the country and were confined to those states whose birth records are approved by the Bureau of the Census.

INFORMATION REGARDING MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

Laws enabling needy mothers to retain the care of their own children by the method popularly known as mothers' pensions have been passed in sixteen states during the past year. This subject has been brought to the attention of the Bureau through correspondence asking information and requesting criticism and suggestions on various bills. Reports of commissions and conferences upon this subject, copies of bills submitted in various states, copies of laws passed, have been all carefully gathered together. This material reveals a popular conviction that is a sound principle that no child should be separated from the care of a good mother because of poverty alone. It also reveals great uncertainty and inequality as to the methods proposed to avoid such separation of mother and child. The matter of turning this popular conviction into a useful public function is one demanding searching inquiry. The laws which have been passed show very great variety and there is much honest difference of opinion as to the value of all methods thus far proposed. A careful presentation of methods in operation is urgently needed. If promptly done, this should aid in avoiding waste and the misapplication of a sound principle. The Bureau therefore desires to undertake an inquiry consisting of both fieldwork and correspondence into methods in use in the various American states for providing for needy children in their own homes.

NEW ELEMENTARY SCHOOL DISTRICT, MT. HOPE SECTION.

A communication was received from the Superintendent, under date of May 18, 1914, to whom was referred at the meeting of Apr. 6, 1914 (see p. 52), a communication from Jean P. Nickerson, Chairman of a Committee appointed by the John D. Philbrick Home and School Association, asking the Board to set off the Mt. Hope community as a separate school district, stating that if the Charles Sumner District were to be divided, the two resulting districts would each be smaller than any other district in the city, with one exception, and one of the districts resulting from such a division would probably be the smallest district in the city in point of number of pupils; that the change proposed would result in an immediate addition of four dollars ($4) per capita to the cost of education of the children in that section without any resulting benefit to their education; and recommending that the Association be informed that in the opinion of the Board, it is inexpedient for these and other reasons stated in the report, to make two districts out of the present Charles Sumner District.

Placed on file, and the recommendation unanimously adopted.

REPORT ON COURSE OF STUDY IN THE BOSTON NORMAL SCHOOL.

The Superintendent presented the following report, under date of May 18, 1914, with respect to the course of study in the Boston Normal School:—

Report on the Boston Normal School.

When the new course for the Boston Normal School was established last June, the School Committee directed that the subject matter courses of the first year should be of college grade, and invited Dean Ropes, through the appropriate heads of departments of Harvard University, to inspect the courses in Psychology, Geography and Mathematics. Attached hereto is the report of Dean Ropes.

The courses were inspected as follows: Mathematics by Prof. Charles L. Bouton. Educational Psychology by Prof. Walter F. Dearborn, and Physiography by Prof. Walter W. Atwood. The course in English was also inspected by Professors Greenough and Neilson.

All four courses have been approved by the Harvard Administrative Board and will be given credit each for one full course toward the Degree of Associate of Arts.

Dean Ropes suggests that Professors Greenough and Neilson should receive the same honorarium that is paid the other gentlemen, as the inspection of the course in English was more laborious than that of any of the other courses, requiring many visits to the school, thirteen conferences with the teachers of more than one and one-half hours each, tests and the inspection of hundreds of papers of students and a report of 130 pages. The conclusion of the report on English is as follows:—

"After carefully considering all this evidence, we find that the course, though planned with due regard to the special needs of a Normal School, includes almost exactly the same instruction as that given in English A at Harvard College, and that it is very closely parallel to English A in respect to the standard upon which the grades are based. We further find that although certain improvements might be made in the entrance requirements, the course is, on the whole, protected by entrance examinations which seem to be of college grade. More important still, we are satisfied that the course is in the hands of instructors who possess the requisite knowledge and skill. Most important of all, we are convinced that the exceptional qualifications of the present head of the department guarantee not merely that the course, having been once approved, will be kept from lapsing into inefficiency, but that it will be kept fully abreast of other college courses in English Composition by the mere fact of remaining under her direction.

We, therefore, recommend:

1. That the course as planned for 1914-15 be counted as one full course toward the degree of A.A. from Harvard University.

2. That the course as given in 1913-14, if passed with a grade of 'fair' or higher, be counted as one full course toward the degree of A.A. from Harvard University.

3. That the cases of those who took the course in 1913-14 and received a grade of 'passable' be considered upon their individual merits."

Accompanying the foregoing report was a communication addressed to the Superintendent by Dean Ropes informing him of the action of the Harvard Administrative Board for University Extension with respect to approval of courses in the Boston Normal School.

Placed on file.

On motion of the Superintendent, it was ORDERED, That an honorarium of twenty-five dollars ($25) be allowed each of the following persons for inspecting the course of study in the Boston Normal School during the past year:—

Prof. Charles L. Bouton.
Prof. Walter F. Dearborn.
Prof. Walter W. Atwood.
Professors Greenough and Neilson.

REORGANIZATION OF MECHANIC ARTS HIGH SCHOOL.

A report made by Dr. Charles A. Prosser, Secretary of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, of a study of the Mechanic Arts High School with sundry recommendations relative to changes in the course of study and in the object of the school, was presented.

Placed on file.

A communication was received from W. L. Putnam, as Chairman of the Educational Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, under date of May 13, 1914, stating that he has carefully studied Dr. Prosser's report on the Mechanic Arts High School, and trusts that the School Committee will adopt the recommendations contained therein.

Placed on file.

A communication was received from Henry Abrahams, Secretary, Boston Central Labor Union, under date of May 13, 1914, transmitting a resolution adopted by said Union on May 17, 1914, objecting to the Board taking final action with respect to contemplated changes in the Mechanic Arts High School until the matter has been properly considered by the parents of pupils and by the public, and an expression of their opinion on said changes made through their representative channel, the Boston Central Labor Union.

Placed on file, and the Secretary directed to reply thereto to the effect that the Board has had this matter under consideration since 1908, and the changes now recommended by Dr. Prosser have been under discussion for something like four weeks; that the public has had notice thereof through the daily press, and the Board has reached a conclusion as to what should be done in the matter. The Board assumes that the point in which the Boston Central Labor Union is especially interested is in any proposed change in the course of study, which will not be affected by any action taken by the Board at this meeting, nor will any change in the course of study be adopted without due notice thereof being given, and an opportunity afforded the Boston Central Labor Union to express its views thereon. It is, however, important, in fact, practically essential, that preliminary action in this direction be taken at this meeting in order that pupils now purposing to attend the Mechanic Arts High School in September next may be informed of the proposed change in policy, and, therefore, the Board cannot defer announcement of its decision with respect to the changes it intends to put into effect until a later date.

A communication was received from Charles W. Parmenter, Head Master of the Mechanic Arts High School, under date of May 13, 1914, stating that so long as the policy of the Mechanic Arts High School was under discussion he deemed it his privilege and duty to defend the methods of the school and to advocate the plans for its conduct which seemed fit to him, but it is equally his duty to accept cheerfully any decision of the Board relative to a change in the character and purpose of the school. Dr. Parmenter therefore assures the Board that it can depend upon him and upon the teachers associated with him in the conduct of the school, to carry into effect loyally and enthusiastically whatever policy is finally adopted.

Placed on file.

The Superintendent offered the two following orders:—

ORDERED, That the course of study in the Mechanic Arts High School be so amended that its distinctive purpose shall be to train boys for the industries instead of higher technical schools; and that the Superintendent is hereby directed to present an amended course for first year pupils in said school to be put into operation in September, 1914.

ORDERED, That the present course shall be continued for those students who in June, 1914, shall have completed one or more years of said course.

Passed unanimously.

On motion of the Superintendent, it was ORDERED, That the principals of elementary districts be notified that, commencing in September, 1914, the Mechanic Arts High School will no longer provide a course of training for higher technical schools for students who enter on and after that date.

On motion of the Superintendent, it was ORDERED, That the Board of Schoolhouse Commissioners is hereby requested to make such changes in the equipment of the Mechanic Arts High School-house as the Superintendent may direct in order to carry out the provisions for the first year of the revised course of study in that school.

The report of the Advisory Committee on the Mechanic Arts High School, relative to a revised course of study for that school, laid over at the meeting of Jan. 29, 1912 (see p. 215), was taken up and placed on file.

RECOMMENDATION OF TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY RELATIVE TO USE OF LIBRARY COLLECTION OF LANTERN SLIDES.

The attention of the Board was called to the following extract from the Sixty-Second Annual Report of the Trustees of the Public Library of the City of Boston for the year 1913-14:—

The growing use of the collection of lantern slides in the possession of the Library, now amounting approximately to forty-five hundred examples, is a matter of special interest. There has been an increase in the number of slides circulated, which is probably close to three thousand examples for the current year. It is learned from inquiry that many Boston schools are, to a greater or less extent, purchasing collections for the several school buildings, undoubtedly in many instances piling up duplicates purchased with money which could be made to go farther if the slide collection could be administered by some central body. This the Library is well equipped to do. It would seem as if some constructive scheme of co-operation between the School Committee and the Trustees of the Boston Public Library might be worked out under which annual appropriations might be expended by a joint committee made up of representatives of the School Board, the Trustees of the Library, and the Teaching Corps of the City of Boston.

Referred to the Superintendent for consideration and report.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Board adjourned at 9.15 o'clock P.M.

PASS THE FIRE PREVENTION BILL.

Current Events, Boston Chamber of Commerce.

As yet there has been no legislation for fire prevention. There have been fires and fire fatalities in Boston within the twelvemonth to demonstrate over and over again the need of a new system of reducing the fire hazard. Since the present General Court has been in session there have been positive instances of the inadequacy and incompetence of our present measures. There remains little excuse for the inaction of the legislators. Ever since the session opened in January, the bill filed by the Boston Chamber of Commerce has been pending. This measure is indorsed by Mayor Curley, former Fire Commissioner Cole, and twenty organizations of citizens interested in fire prevention. It ought not to be difficult to see its importance.

TELEGRAM FROM INTERNATIONAL CITY PLANNING CONFERENCE.

Mr. John J. Walsh of the Boston City Planning Board, who attended the International City Planning Conference at Toronto, Canada, May 25-27, inclusive, sends the City Record the following telegram, advising of the great success of this noted gathering of world-famous exponents of improved facilities in municipal life.

TORONTO, CAN., May 28, 1914.

Editor of the City Record:

International City Planning Conference was most inspiring. A meeting of earnest men from the United States, Great Britain and Canada, professing happier life for the masses through the perfection of municipal facilities by coordinating effort of all factors in municipal life. Many addresses were masterpieces of invaluable technical and professional knowledge. I shall return to Boston better qualified to serve her and proud that I could represent her in this distinguished gathering. Canadian and Toronto officials, from the Duke of Connaught, who opened our conference, down to the jolliest bobbie in the street, overwhelmed us with hospitality. Many inquiries for Mayor Curley.

JOHN J. WALSH.

NO ABUSE OF AUTOMOBILE SERVICE.

Mayor Curley issued the following communication to heads of city departments upon the 26th instant:

"The purpose of housing all city machines, other than those now stored upon city property, in one garage was with a view of exercising that degree of control and supervision over the same that would safeguard the city and prevent the abuse known as 'joy riding' on the part of persons other than those in charge of departments.

"I have instructed the men in charge at the garage to refuse to allow any machine to go out after business hours, or on Sundays or holidays, without a written order from the department head or city official in charge of the particular machine, and you are accordingly requested to observe this order."

TRAFFIC IN THE MARKET DISTRICT.

Mayor Curley has called a meeting in the old Aldermanic Chamber, City Hall, for Tuesday, June 2, at 3 p. m., to carefully discuss traffic and business conditions in the market district.

PROVISIONS OF THE NET-WEIGHT LAW.

The editor of the City Record calls the particular attention of the Boston merchants to the rules and regulations for carrying out the so-called net-weight law, which compels manufacturers to make a clear statement of the weight, volume or contents of their packages of food, and as just signed by the Secretaries of the Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce. These regulations apply to foods shipped in interstate commerce or sold in the District of Columbia or the territories and become effective at once, although the law (passed March 3, 1913, as an amendment to the food and drugs act) defers the exacting of penalties for violations until September 3, 1914.

The regulations, in general, require that the manufacturer of foods shall plainly mark all packages, bottles or other containers holding more than 2 ounces avoirdupois or more than 1 fluid ounce to show the net weight or volume of the contents. The measure must be stated in avoirdupois pounds and ounces, United States gallons, quarts, pints, or fluid ounces, United States standard bushels, half bushels, pecks, quarts, pints, or half pints. The contents by a like method may be expressed in terms of metric weight or measure. The volume of liquids must be computed at 68 degrees Fahrenheit. The quantity stated on the container must represent the actual quantity of food exclusive of wrappings and container.

In general, solids must be stated in terms of weight and liquids in terms of volume, except that where there is a definite trade custom otherwise any marking of the package in terms that are generally understood to express definite quantities will be permitted. The quantity of viscous or semisolid food or of mixtures of solids and liquids may be stated either by weight or measure.

In the case of certain articles the contents may be stated by numerical count, provided such numerical count gives accurate information as to the quantity of food in the package.

The regulations also permit the statement of minimum volume or weight as "Minimum weight, 12 ounces"; "Minimum volume, 1 gallon"; "Not less than 4 ounces." In such cases the amount stated must approximate the actual quantity. No variations below the stated minimum quantity will be permitted.

The statement of weight or measure must be marked in terms of the largest unit contained in the package; for example, if the package contains a pound and a fraction, the contents must be expressed in terms of pounds and fractions thereof, or pounds and ounces, and not merely in ounces.

In packing and bottling many foods it would be impossible, or else add unnecessarily to the cost, for the manufacturer to place an absolutely accurate statement of the amount of the food in every package, and for this reason the regulations permit tolerances or variations in packages where the discrepancies are due exclusively to unavoidable errors in weighing, measuring, or counting. This tolerance is allowed in order to permit the use of weighing and measuring machines which, like human operators, cannot weigh or measure every package with absolute accuracy. The regulations, however, provide that a run of such packages must show as many cases of overweight and as much excess as it does cases of underweight or undervolume.

Similarly, in the case of bottles which cannot be blown with absolute accuracy, tolerances are allowed, but with the same proviso that the run of bottles must show as much excess as deficiency in volume. Queer-shaped bottles must not show greater discrepancies than standard round or square bottles of the same capacity.

Because goods shipped from one part of the country to another lose in weight by natural evaporation, due to differences of atmospheric conditions or temperature, tolerances will be allowed for such changes. The proper tolerances to be allowed will be determined on the facts in each case.

Packages containing two ounces avoirdupois or one fluid ounce of food, or less, are considered "small" and are exempted from marking in terms of weight.

WARNING BY HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Now that the vacation season is at hand, the time when residents of Boston are making preparations to go to the seashore or country for the summer months, the Boston Board of Health issues a warning to vacationists to beware of contracting typhoid fever or diarrheal diseases. The records of the Board of Health show that a preponderance of cases of typhoid fever in Boston occur during the months of August, September and October, when people are returning from vacations outside of the city. There were 296 cases of typhoid fever in Boston last year during these three months, and of these 53 were imported cases.

The Board of Health feels that if people would take the following precautions that the incidence of typhoid fever would be reduced to a minimum. People going to the country or seashore should make sure that the water supply at the country homes is pure and that flies will not abound so as to contaminate articles of food. The location of privies is a great determining factor in the health of people residing in camps. The privies should be so placed that they will not be able to contaminate any water supply or be breeding places for flies. Above all the Board of Health strongly urges on people the benefit of antityphoid vaccination. The Board of Health is prepared to give this treatment free to all who ask for it. It is about three years since the first antityphoid vaccinations were made by the Board of Health, when the dairy inspectors and clerical force were immunized. Since then hundreds of people have been immunized by the Board of Health, including the entire force in its office. No cases of typhoid fever and no deaths from same have taken place in any of the immunized people since that period.

To point to the national significance of this vaccination, the Board of Health would draw attention to the fact that all sailors and soldiers now in Mexico or who will be called to Mexico, have been immunized against typhoid fever. Antityphoid vaccination was instituted in the American Army a little over two years ago. According to the figures given by Netter, which were furnished by Major Russell, it appears that of 2,000 men who were vaccinated there was one case in a man who was vaccinated during the incubation period of typhoid fever. During this same period there were 150 cases of typhoid fever in 65,000 nonvaccinated men. The preponderance of evidence from experience is on the side of immunization against this disease, and the Board of Health feels that with this antityphoid vaccination and proper care taken in the country homes, that the number of cases in the fall of typhoid fever will be almost nil.

MEETING OF RETIREMENT BOARD.

A meeting of the Retirement Board for City Laborers was held Thursday, May 28, 1914. TOLL RATES IN CAPE COD CANAL.

The directors of the Boston, Cape Cod & New York Canal announce the toll rates that will be charged to vessels passing through the canal, upon the opening of the $12,000,000 waterway, during the present summer. The matter is one of great importance to Boston's maritime interests and the several schedules are of much interest.

All vessels to which the canal will be open are divided into three classes. "Class C" will comprise "Vessels carrying crude material in bulk cargo lots." It is stated that such vessels, if of over 500 gross tonnage, "will be charged on the basis of their having on board 800 tons of cargo at 7 cents per cargo ton per single passage. Vessels having on board over 800 tons, 7 cents per cargo ton. Vessels over 500 gross tons without cargo, 5 cents per gross ton. Total tonnage of cargo in vessels in tow is to be computed as if on board a single vessel. Tolls include the towing tug provided by the owners of barges or schooners. Vessels carrying cargo by measure must reduce it to tons." If below 500 gross tons, the tolls for vessels in "Class C" grade by small sums downward, according to tonnage or size of the vessel, from $56 if it is with cargo and from $24 if it is without cargo. Coal, cement and lumber carrying craft, such as those of the Coastwise Transportation Company and New England Coal and Coke, would travel under "Class C."

"Class B" comprises "Vessels engaged in commercial trade carrying passengers only, or passengers and freight, or miscellaneous freight, or in ballast." This description covers coastwise steamships such, for instance, as the boats of the Merchants & Miners, the Clyde and the Savannah lines. The Canal Company proposes that the tolls shall be 10 cents per gross ton per single passage for such vessels of 1,000 gross tons or over. If of less than 1,000 gross tonnage, charges to vessels in this class grade by small sums downward from $100, according to tonnage or size of the vessel.

Thus, for a boat like the "Massachusetts" of the Eastern Steamship Company, which is of 4,779 gross tonnage, the toll is proposed to be $477.90, and for a boat like the "Kershaw" of the Merchants & Miners, which registers 2,600 gross tons, is $260. Among those who have been apprised of these rates there is already much speculation as to whether or not they will be low enough to attract vessels away from the route around the Cape.

"Yachts, motor boats and vessels not engaged in commercial trade; government vessels shown in government books under gross tonnage" come under "Class C." and are to pay the same as "Class B," vessels for the corresponding tonnage or size. For boats of under "16 gross tons based on length over all and of a minimum less than 15 feet," the lowest toll is set, $3; such boats from 15 to 19 feet will be charged $4; and from 20 to 25 feet, $6.

STREET COMMISSIONERS.

Chapin avenue, from Mt. Vernon street to Preston street, West Roxbury, has been laid out and grade established.

BELIEVES PROPOSED LAW INEXPEDIENT.

Mr. Frederic E. Snow, one of the leaders of the Boston Bar, and member of the firm of Messrs. Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall, believes the proposed legislation establishing a Federal Interstate Trade Commission to be inexpedient.

In a letter to the editor of the City Record, upon the 28th instant, Mr. Snow declares:

"I have read with interest your article with reference to Interstate Trade Commission legislation. The matter has already been called to my attention, and I believe that it is a matter of very great importance and deserving of very careful consideration by persons engaged in interstate commerce. Personally I am not clear as to the wisdom of attempting to interfere to the extent proposed by this legislation with business which is not public in its character."

WILL EXAMINE INFIRMARY SOIL.

Hon. David Franklin Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, advises Mayor Curley that he has directed Prof. Milton Whitney, soil physicist and chief of the Bureau of Soils, Washington, to make an exhaustive examination of the soil from the grounds of the Boston Infirmary, Long Island, Boston Harbor.

The examination will be made for the purpose of determining what cultivation of the Long Island property is needed to allow the raising of vegetables and garden truck for the benefit of the inmates of the institution.

The soil samples will weigh approximately one pound, and represent the first six or eight inches of soil, and will be accompanied by samples of the subsoil, in separate containers, and taken at a depth of from two to three feet.

PAYMENT OF DOG OFFICERS.

The Mayor has approved the payment of constables, rated as dog officers, under chapter 182 of the Acts of 1908, as follows:

RELIEF OF FREIGHT CONGESTION.

Mr. Frank A. Hortter of this city, car accountant of the Boston & Maine Railroad, has presented a very interesting brief upon the question of terminal freight congestion in our metropolitan cities. The views of Mr. Hortter have been very comprehensively presented to the members of the Electric Vehicle Association of America.

In the judgment of Mr. Hortter the extension of railroad methods beyond the terminals and into the streets, by means of consolidation of trucking interests and operation of trucks on schedule, is the remedy for terminal freight congestion.

He says:

"Observation of the terminal yard teaming in the Boston & Maine yards in Boston showed that in one day 10,264 horse-drawn vehicles handled freight to the outbound freight house. In that week the total outward movement of freight was 22,416 tons. This means that the average horse vehicle load was only 0.36 ton.

"Use of railroad freight cars for storage purposes is apparently on the increase, as the average detention for 1911, 1912 and 1913 was respectively 1.58, 1.63 and 1.66 days per car. Expressed in terms of cars, the railroads of New England alone have been called upon to increase their equipment by 800 cars within three years at a cost of $1,000,000 merely because of the inefficient system under which the freight is handled beyond the railroad's terminals.

"This increased freight car detention time not only makes a proportionate decrease in railroad working equipment, but seriously affects terminal yard facilities, the expansion of which is definitely limited by city real estate values and the conditions of the surrounding properties. In this quandary the railroads must seek the cooperation of the business world in order that they may work out the problem of securing the best transportation possible from the shipper to the consignee not only by the railroad but by street; and teaming through the streets has not progressed materially during the period in which the railroads have practically revolutionized the entire freight handling system.

"It has been evident in past years that a multitude of small railroads not operated as a system cannot produce the quality of transportation that is demanded in this great country in which we live. The result has been to amalgamate these small lines into powerful systems of railroads under one management. However, when we consider the trucking industry in our various cities we find a multitude of teaming concerns that are operating independently without any attempt at cooperation or a consolidation along the lines of greater economy or increased efficiency.

"It is commonly said that in our large cities the teamsters are not making any money. When we consider the lost motion and waste which characterize their efforts it is not surprising that they are not growing rich. These various trucking concerns perform under contract about 60 per cent of the street haulage of freight in our larger cities. Most of the business houses prefer to hire this service because they themselves have been unable to solve the problem of handling it for themselves largely because of failure to apply scientific study to its intricate propositions.

"For years you gentlemen of the motor vehicle industry have been endeavoring to introduce modern machinery to replace the horse in this service and thereby produce a better quality of street transportation. You have not gone far enough. You have not endeavored to change the method.

You have merely tried to improve the tools and so far you have done well; but improvement in the means without change in methods will go but a little way in the ultimate solving of the terminal freight problems. Some slight advantage may be obtained, but so long as the efficiency of the apparatus is limited by the system under which it operates the problem is no nearer solution than ever.

"The remedy lies in the coordination of the railroad and highway movement of merchandise and a collaboration of the railroads and the teaming interests. There should be cooperation between the railroads and a consolidation of the trucking interests. The principal advantage of this plan to the railroads lies in a train schedule system of operation and a marked reduction in the detention of freight on railroad premises.

"A powerful and efficient trucking organization of this nature should not only effect an enormous saving over present cost, but also render greatly improved service through the employment of scientific and efficient methods of operation and a truck dispatching system worked out along the same lines as are the train dispatching and car distribution systems of our railroads. This would prevent the use of a 5-ton truck for carrying a few hundred pounds of freight one or two miles across the city, by arranging to have that truck move via a definite schedule to its destination, picking up en route sufficient other parcels of freight to utilize to the fullest extent the carrying capacity of the vehicle.

"Furthermore an organization of this kind could probably establish central clearing stations at convenient points in the business districts to which light capacity vehicles could be run from nearby warehouses and from which consolidated loads could be moved in high capacity trucks to the railroad and steamship terminals, bringing back on their return similar heavy loads of inward freight for redistribution from the central station. Thus we could secure substantially an extension of the railroad operating method beyond railroad terminals.

"Warehouse to warehouse delivery is successfully carried on in Europe, and from the fact that more than 60 per cent of our city freight haulage in Boston, New York and Chicago is done under contract with truckmen it is evident that the business world in our large cities would welcome an improvement along these lines."

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT EXAMINATION.

At the request of Fire Commissioner Grady, the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission are preparing to hold another examination for applicants for promotion from the position of engineer, assistant engineer, hoseman and ladderman to the rank of lieutenant in the Boston Fire Department. It is planned to hold this examination in June, although a definite date has not as yet been set. A similar examination for promotion from the rank of lieutenant to captain, and from captain to district chief will be held at a later date.

The first competitive examinations of this kind in the department were held in November, 1911, and improvements over the method of conducting the first examination have been suggested. There has been considerable complaint among the members of the department in regard to the first examination, and, it seems in the opinion of Fire Commissioner Grady, the complaints are just in some cases. In 1911 the examination was not given to all candidates alike, but it was held on five different days, with five different sets of questions. This year it is planned to hold the examinations on one day, and to conduct them in different sections of the city. In this way everyone will be asked the same questions.

It is planned to ask only questions of a practical nature and in line with the work which the applicant is either called upon to perform in his present position, or that he may be called upon to perform in the position for which he is being examined.

The examination will be conducted entirely by the Civil Service Commission, who will furnish the necessary equipment, examiners, etc.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

BOSTON, May 25, 1914.

To the Honorable the City Council:

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Commission hereby submits its report upon the proposed contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for lighting certain parts of the City of Boston in response to your request of March 23, 1914, which is contained in the following order:

"Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to investigate the matter of city lighting, and advise the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company."

The commission on May 11, 1914, filed with your honorable body a report on the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

The commission has made an examination of the various electric light contracts since the first was made in February, 1882. This shows a steady decline in the prices charged by the electric lighting companies (including the Edison Electric Illuminating Company) which have had contracts for lighting the streets of Boston. Improved methods for producing electricity have made possible this decrease in prices. The price paid, with one exception, from 1882 to 1890 was $237.25 per arc light per year. From 1890 to 1898 the price was successively reduced until in 1898 a contract for ten years was made at a price of $118.39 per arc light per year. Under the contract of 1909, which is at present in force, the price per arc light per year is $103.54. The price of $103.54 was for an arc light three times the illuminating power of the one previously used.

The proposed contract makes a reduction on arc lights to $87.50 per year. It has been estimated by the engineer of the Finance Commission that the saving for Boston under such a contract will be $62,837 annually. No reduction, however, is made in the proposed contract in the price of incandescent lamps below the price charged in the contract of 1909. Approximately 8,205 electric lights of various kinds illuminate the streets of Boston at the present time, of which 4,541 are arc lights, costing $470,175.14 yearly, and 3,664 low-power incandescent lamps, costing $73,918.99; a total of $544,094.13 yearly.

None of the contracts for electric lighting provided any means for arbitration of the price during the term of the contract, until the ten-year contract of 1898 was made. Acting under the arbitration clause in that contract the Mayor of Boston in 1907 attempted to secure a reduction in the price. The result reached by the arbitrators was that the city was not only not entitled to a reduction in price, but that the city should actually have been charged more than was paid under the terms of the contract. As this latter conclusion was obviously wrong, the method of computing the company's investment was changed by mutual consent of the arbitrators under clause three of the contract. The result then showed that the city was entitled to a reduction. When negotiations for the 1909 contract were being made it was determined that the arbitration clause of the 1898 contract was too involved in its phraseology and in order to remedy this defect the clause was revised to make it practical and workable. The provision for arbitration in the pending contract is the same as that inserted in the contract of 1909. The city, however, has neglected to use the arbitration clause in the contract of 1909 for the purpose of obtaining if possible a reduction in the cost of street lighting.

1. PRICE.

In the present year 1914 the Edison Company is prepared to make a reduction of $16.04 per arc light from the price of 1909, provided the city authorities are willing to make a ten-year contract.

The prices for electric street lighting in other cities form no true comparison for Boston, because, it is claimed, the conditions in these cities in many respects are different. Some of the conditions which make a variance in cost, and which should be compared in a study of the comparative prices charged, are as follows: Equipment, operation, coal, oil used for fuel, use of water power, cost of labor, the degree of illumination furnished, the laws governing electric installation, use of overhead wires or underground construction, variation in character and amount of taxes levied, interest rates on bonds issued, dividends recognized as being proper by the particular public service commission having control, and various other matters. Comparison with other cities has largely therefore had to be abandoned by the commission as more than a general guide to determine whether or not the price of $87.50 is a fair one.

2. SERVICE.

Comparison of the quality of the service with that of other cities in the country is possible and the commission is satisfied upon the evidence submitted to it that Boston is as well lighted as any other city in the country, with three exceptions.

3. FORM AND TERM OF CONTRACT.

The contract in form is substantially a copy of the contract of 1909. Apart from the price, the important questions involved in the contract are the advisability of a ten-year term and the proper form of the clause providing for arbitration.

As for the ten-year term, it is more than probable that there will be a considerable improvement in the methods of illumination and some cheapening in the cost of production. It is practically certain that among the improvements in electric lighting soon to be announced is the introduction of the nitrogen filled lamp. The actual demonstration of this lamp as a commercial proposition is yet to be proven.

The clause in the contract providing for arbitration is only adequate to secure for the city reduction in the cost of street lighting through future savings of the company. But the arbitration clause should not be confined to future reductions; it should take into consideration the question of what was a fair price at the beginning of the contract. The arbitration should also be changed so that if any one of the arbitrators provided for in the contract should have expressed officially an opinion on the reasonableness of the contract price he should be excluded from serving. Furthermore, as arbitration is useless unless the city takes advantage of it, there should be a provision in the contract that arbitration should be compulsory at least once in three years.

If the City of Boston had requested arbitration of the price paid under the 1909 contract a reduction would probably have been made, as the Edison Company has reduced the price to commercial consumers twice since 1909, from 14 to 12, and from 12 to 10 cents per kilowatt hour. The City of Boston, however, has made no effort to obtain a reduction in the price of electric street lighting.

4. DIFFICULTIES IN THE SITUATION.

It is impossible at present for the city to secure competition for electric street lighting. No company except the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has a franchise to furnish electric street lights to the city. The city itself cannot even lay an electric light wire over or under a street and supply itself with electric current. In the case of gas lighting the city can supply its own fixtures and buy gas, if either the service or the price furnished by private contractors is unsatisfactory, but it is impracticable for the city to purchase and install its own electrical equipment and buy the current. Even the exact figures of the cost of electric lighting are obtainable, if at all, only from the Edison Company. The Gas and Electric Light Commissioners have no definite figures covering all the details of production. Furthermore, with an immediate saving of over $62,000 a year available, under the Edison Company's present offer, the city authorities should avoid getting into a predicament similar to that in which the city has been with the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, which has continued to charge a high price for gas street lighting because the city authorities have been unable to agree on which of the more economical plans suggested shall be adopted.

In his testimony before the Finance Commission, President Edgar gave no valid reason why the Edison Company should not make a five-year contract for electric street lighting, instead of the present ten-year term.

5. RECOMMENDATIONS.

The commission recommends:

1. That the ten-year contract offered by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston be adopted, provided the company agrees to change the arbitration clause, so that arbitration shall be compulsory at least once in three years and so that the question of the fairness of the present or a lower price shall be determined, in addition to the question whether or not the cost of production has been reduced, and if so, how much since the date of the contract.

2. That if the Edison Company will not agree to these changes in the arbitration clause the city insist upon a five-year term at the same price as is now offered by the company for ten years.

3. That if the company will not accept either of these propositions, the pending contract be rejected and arbitration be demanded immediately under the provisions of the contract of 1909, which is now in force.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

SALE OF HYDE PARK WATER PLANT.

Mayor Curley, after careful inspection of the property and conference with Commissioner Rourke of the Department of Public Works and John Beck, the city's real estate expert, has declared a sale of the Hyde Park water plant expedient. The property is declared to have had a value at the time of purchase of some $250,000, and embraces about 13 acres of land.

LEGAL DECISIONS RELATIVE TO CITY LIABILITY.

TAXES—RECOVERY OF PAYMENT—BURDEN OF PROOF.

LANCASTER SEA BEACH IMPROVEMENT CO. v. CITY OF NEW YORK.—In a suit to recover taxes paid on the ground that the assessment was invalid, evidence held sufficient to show that a reduction of the assessment was passed upon by the board of taxes and assessments, and not by one commissioner only. A taxpayer, suing to recover a tax paid, on the ground that the assessment was invalid because reduced by one commissioner only, and not by the board of taxes and assessments, has the burden of proof. Where the formal tax record shows that a tax assessment was reduced by the board of taxes and assessments, the presumption against the contention that one commissioner only reduced the assessment, rendering it invalid, is very strong, and direct negative proof is called for.—Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Second Dept., N. Y. S. 734.

EMINENT DOMAIN—NECESSITY OF TAKING—DENIAL—BURDEN OF PROOF.

CITY OF CHICAGO, ILL., v. LEHMANN.—Whether the sovereign power shall be conferred upon corporations or municipalities to appropriate private property for public use is a legislative question not subject to review by the court, but whether particular property sought to be condemned is necessary for the public use is a judicial question to be determined by the court. Where a property owner in condemnation proceedings denies the necessity for the taking, the burden is on the petitioner to introduce such evidence as will at least establish a prima facie case of necessity, and failure to do this is fatal. While, in determining the issue of necessity for the condemnation of land for public use, deference will be paid to the determination of the corporation, yet, if it appears that the quantity of the property sought to be taken is grossly in excess of the amount necessary for the public use, the right to take will be denied.—Supreme Court of Illinois, N. E. R. 829.

MUNICIPAL FRANCHISE—STREETS—POWER TO REGULATE.

CITY OF MADISON, WIS. v. SOUTHERN WIS. RY. CO.—A municipality, with the broad powers of regulation as regards streets, may make reasonable regulations burdening a public utility using the street with the duty to make, at its own expense, reasonable changes in the physical condition of the zone so used, irrespective of anything contained in the public utility franchise, and this broad power is under disability to contract away.—Supreme Court of Wisconsin, N. W. R. 493.

BALLOTS—IRREGULARITIES.

OLSEN ET AL. v. CITY OF LEMMON, S. D.—In absence of express legislative provision votes are not invalidated by mere irregularities by the officers in preparing the official ballots, if such irregularities do not prevent a free and fair popular vote or do not violate an essential statutory requirement.—Supreme Court of South Dakota.

VIOLATION OF ORDINANCE—PROOF—DISPOSITION OF APPEAL.

TOWN OF HAMMOND, LA., v. BADDEAU.—Where a municipality is prosecuting one for a failure to comply with a sanitary ordinance it must first show, by introducing its charter, that it had the power to pass the ordinance. If in such a prosecution the municipality fails to show that it had the power to pass the ordinance the case will be remanded to permit the municipality to show that it had the necessary power to enact the ordinance in question.—Supreme Court of Louisiana, S. R. 803.

OBSTRUCTIONS ON SIDEWALK—PROXIMATE CAUSE OF INJURY.

YOUNGBLOOD v. MADISON CITY, IA.—Where a building contractor had stored radiators for the building upon a sidewalk between its intersection with another walk and the street curbing, but had left the other walk open, such obstruction was not the proximate cause of an injury to a pedestrian who was tripped by a wire stretched around a plot between the sidewalks and the curb while he was attempting to cut diagonally across the plot.—Supreme Court of Iowa, N. W. R. 21.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS—BENEFITS—PROPERTY LIABLE.

GRAHAM ET AL. v. CITY OF GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A special assessment can be made by a municipality upon property for the construction of a sewer, though such property does not abut the sewer, and has no actual connection therewith, if such property derives any special benefit from the construction. In a suit to enjoin the special assessment by a municipality for a trunk line sewer upon property not abutting, but located 2,000 feet therefrom, evidence held not to show that the property received no special benefit from the construction.—Supreme Court of Michigan, N. W. R. 248.

TRUNK SEWERS—ASSESSMENT DISTRICT.

BROWN ET AL. v. CITY OF ANACORTES.—Under Laws, 1911, providing for the inclusion in trunk sewer assessment districts of all property which can be sewered or drained through the trunk sewers and subsewers connected therewith, according to topographical conditions, the fact that a tunnel may be necessary to drain certain property included within a trunk sewer district into the sewer, and that the property could be sewered by means of a separate sewer system at an expense of $6 a lot less than by means of laterals connected with the trunk sewer in question, was not sufficient to show that the property was improperly included in the district.—Supreme Court of Washington, 139 P. R. 652.

OBSTRUCTION TO STREET—INJURY TO TRAVELER.

CITY OF GEORGETOWN v. CANTRILL ET AL.—The primary negligence whereby one driving on a street was injured, for which he recovered against the city, being that of D., who had contracted to cut and remove trees by the side of the street, but negligently piled the wood in the street, and refused to remove when notified so to do by the city, it may have indemnity against him.—Court of Appeals of Kentucky, 164 S. W. R. 929.

CONTRACT TO FURNISH WATER—DEFECTIVE HYDRANTS.

TOBIN v. FRANKFORT WATER CO.—A franchise authorized defendant private water company to furnish water to the city and its inhabitants provided that defendant should "furnish and set" 100 fire hydrants of modern pattern and good efficiency, that the hydrants should be rented by the city for five years; the city agreeing to use them carefully, and pay for any injury that might happen to them by any officer or servant of the city or member of its fire department. The contract further provided that the hydrants should be used only to extinguish fires and flush gutters and sewers, that the chief of the fire department should have control of them, should cause them to be inspected, and if on inspection, any were found out of working order, defendant should be notified in writing, and was required to put such hydrants in effective working order with reasonable dispatch. Held, that the word "furnish" as applied to the duty to provide hydrants meant "provide at its own expense," and did not require the company, at its peril, to keep the hydrants constantly in working condition so as to render it liable to a citizen for a fire loss due to a hydrant being out of repair, without any notice having been given defendant thereof.—Court of Appeals of Kentucky, 164 S. W. R. 956.

EMINENT DOMAIN—USES OF PROPERTY FOR RESERVOIR.

TRACY ET AL. v. CITY OF MT. PLEASANT, IA., ET AL.—While the necessity or convenience of condemnor cannot be considered to compel the award of more than the fair value of the property, the owner may show that it is peculiarly adapted to the particular purpose for which it is sought to be taken. The owner of land condemned is entitled to its market value, as determined from all of the facts naturally affecting its value to purchasers generally, so that, in an action by a city to condemn land for a water supply the owner can show that because of its being part of a basin adapted for reservoir purposes, the land would be regarded more valuable by persons generally than if it were not so located.—Supreme Court of Iowa, N. W. R. 78.

BANKS WILL PAY DESIRED RATE.

Announcement is made by the City Treasurer, Charles H. Slattery, that the First, Merchants and Second National Banks have mutually agreed to pay the 3 per cent rate upon sinking fund deposits of the City of Boston, and in conformity with the demand of Mayor Curley made about three and a half months ago.

ELECTRICITY FROM GARBAGE TO LIGHT STREETS.

The New Orleans city commissioners have perfected a plan by which the electricity for lighting the streets and public buildings will be developed by incinerating the waste garbage and refuse. New Orleans has a daily garbage and refuse burden of about five hundred tons, from the disposal of which a total of thirty million kilowatts of electricity can be generated a year. The city now uses only about seven million kilowatts a year, at a cost of $281,000 for lighting the streets and public buildings. That contract expires in September, 1915, and the engineering experts connected with the utility commissioner's office estimate that a plant to dispose of the garbage will cost $750,000.—Municipal Journal.

SALE OF CITY LAND.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 25, 1914.

To the City Council:

I transmit herewith an order making provision for the sale at public auction of a parcel of land on Blue Hill avenue and Brook road, Milton, containing 30,000 square feet, more or less, and also the city's leasehold interest under a lease for 999 years from May 13, 1843, in and to adjoining land on Brook road and Brush Hill road in the town of Milton, containing 64,523 square feet, more or less. This land was formerly used by the Public Works Department. I recommend the passage of this order.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Public Works Department, May 25, 1914.

To the Honorable the City Council:

I respectfully report that this department has no further use for the parcel of land on Blue Hill avenue and Brook road, Milton, containing 30,000 square feet, more or less, and has no objection to its disposal.

Respectfully,

L. K. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be and he hereby is authorized to sell at public auction, at a price not less than twenty-five hundred dollars, a parcel of land on Blue Hill avenue and Brook road in Milton, containing 30,000 square feet, more or less, and also the city's leasehold interest under a lease for nine hundred and ninety-nine years from May 13, 1843, in and to an adjoining parcel of land on Brook road and Brush Hill road in said Milton, containing 64,523 square feet, more or less, and upon such sale his Honor the Mayor is hereby further authorized in the name and behalf of the city, and by an instrument satisfactory to the Law Department, to convey said land to the purchaser or purchasers thereof.

APPOINTMENT OF CONSTABLES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 25, 1914.

To the City Council:

Subject to confirmation by your honorable body, I hereby appoint the following-named persons constables of the City of Boston for the term ending April 30, 1914:

Laid over under the law.

ARTIFICIAL STONE SIDEWALKS.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, May 25, 1914.

To the City Council:

I transmit herewith communication from the Commissioner of Public Works recommending the granting of a loan of $100,000, for the purpose of constructing artificial stone sidewalks, with edgestone.

The expenditure of this sum, with a like sum assessable on property owners, would permit of the construction of approximately thirty miles of sanitary durable sidewalks, the life of which in all probability will be twice as great as the life of the loan necessary for this work. I respectfully recommend, therefore, the adoption of the accompanying order.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,

Public Works Department, May 25, 1914.

To the Honorable the Mayor:

Sir,—I respectfully recommend that a loan of $100,000 be passed for the purpose of constructing artificial stone sidewalks, with edgestone.

Up to this time these sidewalks have been constructed out of the maintenance appropriation of the department. I believe they should be constructed from a loan, because the improvement is a more or less permanent one, half the cost of which is assessed upon the abutters and is returned to the city. In cases where walks are constructed in front of individual estates at the request of the owner, about two-thirds of the cost is assessed on the owner.

Respectfully,

L. K. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

Ordered, That the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) be and hereby is appropriated to be expended under the direction of the Commissioner of Public Works, for the purpose of constructing artificial stone sidewalks with edgestone, and that to meet said appropriation the City Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to issue, from time to time, upon the request of the Mayor, bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the city to said amount.

Referred to Committee on Finance.

CITY LIGHTING.

The following was received:

Boston Finance Commission,
May 25, 1914.

To the Honorable the City Council:

Gentlemen,—The Finance Commission hereby submits its report upon the proposed contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for lighting certain parts of the City of Boston in response to your request of March 23, 1914, which is contained in the following order:

"Ordered, That the Finance Commission be requested to investigate the matter of city lighting, and advise the City Council as to the proposed new contract with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, and the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company."

The commission on May 11, 1914, filed with your honorable body a report on the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

The commission has made an examination of the various electric light contracts since the first was made in February, 1882. This shows a steady decline in the prices charged by the electric lighting companies (including the Edison Electric Illuminating Company) which have had contracts for lighting the streets of Boston. Improved methods for producing electricity have made possible this decrease in prices. The price paid, with one exception, from 1882 to 1890 was $237.25 per arc light per year. From 1890 to 1898 the price was successively reduced until in 1898 a contract for ten years was made at a price of $118.39 per arc light per year. Under the contract of 1909, which is at present in force, the price per arc light per year is $103.54. The price of $103.54 was for an arc light three times the illuminating power of the one previously used.

The proposed contract makes a reduction on arc lights to $87.50 per year. It has been estimated by the engineer of the Finance Commission that the saving for Boston under such a contract will be $62,837 annually. No reduction, however, is made in the proposed contract in the price of incandescent lamps below the price charged in the contract of 1909. Approximately 8,205 electric lights of various kinds illuminate the streets of Boston at the present time, of which 4,541 are arc lights, costing $470,175.14 yearly, and 3,664 low-power incandescent lamps, costing $73,918.99; a total of $544,094.13 yearly.

None of the contracts for electric lighting provided any means for arbitration of the price during the term of the contract, until the ten-year contract of 1898 was made. Acting under the arbitration clause in that contract the Mayor of Boston in 1907 attempted to secure a reduction in the price. The result reached by the arbitrators was that the city was not only not entitled to a reduction in price, but that the city should actually have been charged more than was paid under the terms of the contract. As this latter conclusion was obviously wrong, the method of computing the company's investment was changed by mutual consent of the arbitrators under clause three of the contract. The result then showed that the city was entitled to a reduction. When negotiations for the 1909 contract were being made, it was determined that the arbitration clause of the 1898 contract was too involved in its phraseology and, in order to remedy this defect, the clause was revised to make it practical and workable. The provision for arbitration in the pending contract is the same as that inserted in the contract of 1909. The city, however, has neglected to use the arbitration clause in the contract of 1909 for the purpose of obtaining if possible a reduction in the cost of street lighting.

1. Price.

In the present year 1914, the Edison Company is prepared to make a reduction of $16.04 per arc light from the price of 1909, provided the city authorities are willing to make a ten-year contract.

The price for electric street lighting in other cities form no true comparison for Boston, because, it is claimed, the conditions in these cities in many respects are different. Some of the conditions which make a variance in cost, and which should be compared in a study of the comparative prices charged, are as follows: Equipment, operation, coal, oil used for fuel, use of water power, cost of labor, the degree of illumination furnished, the laws governing electric installation, use of overhead wires or underground construction, variation in character and amount of taxes levied, interest rates on bonds issued, dividends recognized as being proper by the particular public service commission having control, and various other matters. Comparison with other cities has largely therefore had to be abandoned by the commission, as more than a general guide to determine whether or not the price of $87.50 is a fair one.

2. Service.

Comparison of the quality of the service with that of other cities in the country is possible and the commission is satisfied upon the evidence submitted to it that Boston is as well lighted as any other city in the country, with three exceptions.

3. Form and Term of Contract.

The contract in form is substantially a copy of the contract of 1909. Apart from the price, the important questions involved in the contract are the advisability of a ten-year term and the proper form of the clause providing for arbitration.

As for the ten-year term, it is more than probable that there will be a considerable improvement in the methods of illumination and some cheapening in the cost of production. It is practically certain that among the improvements in electric lighting soon to be announced is the introduction of the nitrogen filled lamp. The actual demonstration of this lamp as a commercial proposition is yet to be proven.

The clause in the contract providing for arbitration is only adequate to secure for the city reduction in the cost of street lighting through future savings of the company. But the arbitration clause should not be confined to future reductions, it should take into consideration the question of what was a fair price at the beginning of the contract. The arbitration should also be changed so that if any one of the arbitrators provided for in the contract should have expressed officially an opinion on the reasonableness of the contract price he should be excluded from serving. Furthermore, as arbitration is useless unless the city takes advantage of it, there should be a provision in the contract that arbitration should be compulsory at least once in three years.

If the City of Boston had requested arbitration of the price paid under the 1909 contract a reduction would probably have been made, as the Edison Company has reduced the price to commercial consumers twice since 1909; from 14 to 12, and from 12 to 10 cents per kilowatt hour. The City of Boston, however, has made no effort to obtain a reduction in the price of electric street lighting.

4. Difficulties in the Situation.

It is impossible at present for the city to secure competition for electric street lighting. No company except the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has a franchise to furnish electric street lights to the city. The city itself cannot even lay an electric light wire over or under a street and supply itself with electric current. In the case of gas lighting the city can supply its own fixtures and buy gas, if either the service or the price furnished by private contractors is unsatisfactory, but it is impracticable for the city to purchase and install its own electrical equipment and buy the current. Even the exact figures of the cost of electric lighting are obtainable, if at all, only from the Edison Company. The gas and electric light commissioners have no definite figures covering all the details of production. Furthermore, with an immediate saving of over $62,000 a year available, under the Edison Company's present offer, the city authorities should avoid getting into a predicament similar to that in which the city has been with the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company, which has continued to charge a high price for gas street lighting because the city authorities have been unable to agree on which of the more economical plans suggested shall be adopted.

In his testimony before the Finance Commission, President Edgar gave no valid reason why the Edison Company should not make a five-year contract for electric street lighting, instead of the present ten-year term.

5. Recommendations.

The commission recommends:

1. That the ten-year contract offered by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston be adopted, provided the company agrees to change the arbitration clause, so that arbitration shall be compulsory at least once in three years and so that the question of the fairness of the present or a lower price shall be determined, in addition to the question whether or not the cost of production has been reduced, and if so, how much since the date of the contract.

2. That if the Edison Company will not agree to these changes in the arbitration clause the city insist upon a five-year term at the same price as is now offered by the company for ten years.

3. That if the company will not accept either of these propositions, the pending contract be rejected and arbitration be demanded immediately under the provisions of the contract of 1909 which is now in force.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,

by JOHN R. MURPHY,
Chairman.

Referred to the Executive Committee.

High School certificate to teachers of commercial branches and of manual arts in Boston public high schools, reporting that it is inadvisable to take the step proposed at the present time, because the change would require adjustments, in the end, of the entire salary schedule, as it affects teachers who were appointed from Hyde Park to the Boston service.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NOVA SCOTIA.

United States Consul, Charles M. Freeman of Sydney, Nova Scotia, sends the City Record an interesting summary of trade conditions in the Province. Mr. Freeman states that sleighs were in use as late as May 2.

"Owing to lack of orders, caused by a general depression of the iron business, in the latter part of 1913, two of the Dominion Iron & Steel Company's furnaces were closed down, and other departments of the plant run on short time. This continued into the present year, and, as the city of Sydney has but one major industry, it seriously affected all commercial enterprise. Never since Sydney became a city has so great a stagnation of business been felt. During the first three months of the present year but one building permit was issued.

"At present conditions have improved, and the steel plant is reaching out for a more varied business and a larger field. For the first time since its establishment this company is shipping its products to the United States and is taking advantage of the reduction in the American tariff.

"It has already, within the last two months, shipped to the United States three cargoes of pig iron, which under the tariff of 1909 paid a duty of $2.50 per ton. The putting on the free list of pig iron allows the Dominion Iron & Steel Company to dispose of its products at a profit in a market where formerly it was unable to compete. This outlet for iron and steel products, together with large rail and nail shipments to Australia and New Zealand, in conjunction with the Canadian market, has changed the outlook for the company, and at present the prospects are excellent for the year's business.

"What affects this company is felt throughout the entire community, and good business is expected for the last six months of 1914. However, business which has reached a low point is slow in recovering.

"Another Sydney concern, the Cross Fertilizer Company, has also made its first shipment to the United States by recently sending a carload of basic slag fertilizer, and the manager states that he expects to make further shipments.

"The very late season—sleighs were in use here on the second day of May—has retarded construction work, and outside of the few buildings to be erected for dwellings, it is not known that any is contemplated."

THE PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT.

In former times, when most of the population lived upon farms or was engaged in small and local industries, every man was near his natural job and could generally find work. In the development of civilization there have come to be great enterprises which upset the simple life and often separate a man from his natural labor. Especially when these enterprises are intermittent in character, the problem of keeping the men busy between times, and of getting them shifted from one job to another, is very difficult.

In such enterprises as the recently completed Los Angeles aqueduct, the new Catskill water supply of New York City and the Panama Canal, thousands of men are brought together, organized, trained and made efficient. These include employees ranging from the chief engineer to the laborer and the water boy. The contractors, with their forces, are included, and also, in a way, those who furnish supplies for the work or to the employees. When the work is completed this army is disbanded. It must find its way gradually and clumsily into other organizations and other enterprises. The economic loss of an efficient organization alone is great, but the loss to the men themselves may be greater. The period of uncertainty, the lack of employment, and finally the getting of work not well suited to them are demoralizing.

If the breakup comes in good times, it is hard enough. If it comes in bad times, the case is indeed a sorry one for many a worthy and efficient employee. As a man's job is specialized and higher, it is harder for him to get placed again, and for that reason no class of employees suffer more than the engineers.

Here is food for careful thought. Have we reached the best organization that is possible, and if not, to whom may we look for help in keeping the people busy? Who will take up the splendid material and reorganize it, and work it in on some job that is useful, and that will have been worth doing when it is finished?

Among those thrown out of employment at the completion of any large undertaking there are always some who have capacity, and sometimes great capacity, for finding new jobs. If jobs do not exist, they stir up work not previously contemplated; they create the jobs. The more enterprising contractors and engineers lead in this. The country is canvassed for possibilities of doing things to meet needs not yet felt. The primary idea is to create work. If someone can be got to pay for it, the usefulness of the finished structure, desirable as it may be, is secondary.

In a new country with comparatively undeveloped natural resources, the opportunities for doing useful work are almost unlimited. As long as the money for these enterprises is furnished by private capital, through corporations or otherwise, there is a natural check on the character of the work undertaken, for, in general, money will not be invested unless there is a prospect of profit. For a profit to be earned two conditions are necessary—the business must be a profitable one and the governmental conditions under which the business will be permitted to exist must be favorable. In the past, when great municipal, state or government enterprises have been completed the men whose services were no longer, needed have had chances of employment in various private enterprises. Railroads, electric lines, water power, drainage and irrigation projects were under way. But if the government goes on with larger and larger projects, and if private capital is restricted in its fields and in its methods, until it will no longer be attracted to new projects, the balance wheel furnished by corporate employment will be crippled when it is most needed.

These reflections are none too pleasant for him who believes that the welfare of the country depends upon keeping the people engaged at all times, and in tasks for which they are well fitted. Discussion of the subject is needed, and has not been wanting during the past winter. There seems, however, to be a neglect of the fundamental economic aspects. Thus far the alleviating measures have been confined to labor bureaus by which the man and the job are brought together. That is a phase that needs attention. But unless the general economic situation, the possibility of keeping private capital continuously and profitably employed, is taken into account, the fundamental cause of unemployment will escape those who are working for its elimination.—Engineering Record.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

The editor of the City Record calls the particular attention of Boston contractors to the fact that the Board of Control of Toronto, Canada, have voted to abandon the present city jail, and to immediately construct a police administration building, which will include police, women's and juvenile courts, remand cells, and all police offices. The new building will cost between $350,000 and $500,000.

Boston contractors should address all communications relative to plans and specifications to the Board of Control, City Hall, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The attention of Boston contractors and furniture manufacturers is also called to the fact that the Toronto Board of Education are preparing to spend $500,000 upon new school buildings and equipment, and to build a new school of commerce to cost $250,000. Address all communications relative thereto to the Board of Education, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

WASTEFULNESS IN COMPETITIVE ESTIMATES.

Mr. Leslie H. Allen of The Aberthaw Construction Company of this city has presented a very entertaining brief upon the wastefulness in competitive estimates and the high cost of bidding, incorporated in an address before the American Institute of Architects.

"Contractors," Mr. Allen declares, "are invited not only to guess or calculate how much a structure will cost before it is built, but also to guess or calculate how much material goes into it, and this work is done not by one builder but by eight or a dozen. The labor of all but one is absolutely wasted. It is hard to impress upon the architect or the building owner that this waste is unnecessary or can be eliminated by the quantity system in which bills of quantities are furnished free with the drawings and specifications to all competing bidders.

"The quantity surveyor should be a man who makes it his sole business to take off quantities. He should receive the plans from the architect and compute from them the quantities of material and labor for the building.

"If he is paid a proper fee for his work he is able to have all his figures carefully checked. Contractors cannot give their whole time to estimating, and they have to work so quickly that there is no time for any but the most superficial checking of the quantities, except by the square-foot or cube-foot price of the building — a very unreliable method.

"The quantity surveyor should take off the whole job and not confine himself to those trades which will be executed by the general contractor's own force. A bill of quantities should contain separate schedules for mason work, structural steel, earth work, concrete, structural carpenter work, finished carpentry, hardware, plastering, plumbing, painting, ornamental iron work, and so on. It is the aim of the quantity surveyor to take off and describe the items in just the way that will be of the most service to the contractor. This is a very important matter and on it largely depends the success of the quantity-surveying movement.

"In Milwaukee a bureau of quantity surveying is being organized. This is subscribed to by the chief contracting firms in the local builders' exchange. The organization will be made up of the chief estimators in the city, who will receive fixed salaries for their work. Every member of the exchange will subscribe a sustaining subscription to the bureau and in addition will pay a small fee for the use of each bill of quantities. He will also add to the amount of each bid he makes on quantities furnished by the bureau a percentage, varying from 1 to 2 per cent for these quantities, and if he is successful in getting the job he will pay this fee to the bureau unless the owner pays it direct. At the end of the year any surplus will be divided among the contributing builders.

"It is not easy to set a fee for the services of a quantity surveyor that will apply in every case. In England the maximum fee is usually a percentage of the lowest bid and ranges from $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent on dwelling houses, churches, and other work which contain a very large amount of detail, down to as low as 1 per cent on large plain, simple factory and warehouse work. Although at first sight this fee of 1 per cent on a \$100,000 factory will look large, yet the cost of an estimate on such a factory at the present day is more than this; but the cost is spread around among the community instead of being concentrated in one payment to one party. The only estimating expense incurred by the builder under the quantity system will be the time spent on pricing the estimate, visiting the site and making inquiries from material men. This will take very much less time than any attempt to scale the quantities, so that the contractor's expense of estimating will be practically negligible. It is very important that proper fees should be charged from the start. If fees too low to pay for painstaking, accurate work are established, the work will not be done carefully. It will be extremely difficult to raise them, and the system and the whole movement will suffer.

"One feature of the quantity system as used in England would be looked upon with mixed feeling by contractors here, although welcomed by architects, and that is the settlement of extras. It does not follow that because a bill of quantities has been made the basis for estimate that it must therefore be used as a basis for settlement of extras, unless it is so provided in the contract. A contractor may base his bid upon quantities and may refuse to sign a contract that called for them to be used as a basis for extras. But if he does so agree to use the quantities as a basis of extras, one great bone of contention between architects and builders is removed and better relations are at once established. There is no more thorny and difficult subject that comes between architect, owner and builder than the value of extra work. The quantity system provides a method for the measurement and valuation of most items of extra work or omitted work, for if the contractor puts the unit price of each item in his bill of quantities a definite basis is laid down for the valuing of extras.

"One of the greatest difficulties ahead of the establishment of quantity surveying is the subject of standardization of measurements. It is an unfortunate fact that in no trade is there any agreement between contractors as to how any items should be measured. Take, for instance, doors and windows. There is no method whatever of measuring a door or door frame or trim that is universally used. Most carpenters will look at the plan of an opening and say, 'Yes, that will cost you $20 an opening,' or $30 or $15 as the case may be. When we come to brickwork, some masons measure the net cubical content of the brick, others will measure all corners double, others will not deduct openings, some will deduct half openings, and some will not deduct stone work where stone work is embedded in brick and others will.

"In drawing up a standard of measurement, two guiding principles should govern, although these may conflict with existing practice in many cases. The first rule is this, that all work should be measured net as fixed in the building, no allowance being made in the measurements for waste. The second rule is that material should in no case be measured to pay for extra labor. If a plumber is measuring a hundred feet of 1-inch pipe in which there are ten elbows and three tees, it is wrong in principle for him to count each one of the elbows as 2 feet of pipe.

"The subject of the standardization of measurements will be a very important step toward the establishment of a proper system, and whether a quantity system is ever established or not, there is an urgent need for a proper understanding of the methods of measurement of work in the building and engineering work. This would be a very useful field for the activities of some of our national associations of engineers, contractors and sub-contractors."

INTERNATIONAL CITY PLANNING CONFERENCE.

Mr. John J. Walsh of the Boston City Planning Board, who represented the City of Boston at the recent International City Planning Conference at Toronto, Canada, has with much courtesy prepared for the City Record a most interesting report of the notable gathering of experts upon municipal problems. The communication is as follows:

Boston, June 5, 1914.

Editor City Record:

Sir,—A description of everything that aroused my interest during my recent visit to Toronto, as a delegate from the City of Boston to the Sixth National Conference, which was also the First International Conference on City Planning, would be beyond your official tolerance. But there were some incidents worthy of informal mention which your kindness permits me to record. A few words of prelude:

On the train between Hoboken and Buffalo I met two notable men. One, Dr. E. W. Ryan, who had just escaped death at the hands of Huerta. He was bound home to Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Ryan was a Red Cross physician in Mexico, acting supposedly under truce regulations. He was caught red-handed bearing dispatches from Washington to the Constitutionalists. He was a military spy, but to the people of Scranton he was a hero, and was accorded an ovation when he stepped off the train into the arms of a weeping sister.

The other notable whom I met was George C. Boldt, proprietor of the Ritz-Carlton, the Waldorf-Astoria and other famous hostels. Mr. Boldt is a trustee of Cornell University, and was on his way to attend a meeting there.

Our chat was upon educational matters generally. I asked him about Cornell, and among other things if its endowment was large. Mr. Boldt said that while Cornell had the largest endowment of any college in the country it did not have half enough. He also told me that Cornell had a poor students' fund which made money, because the beneficiaries of it gave back to the university an amount much greater than the withdrawals. I suggested to Mr. Boldt that the great universities might well give an education to any man who desired it, accepting in lieu of tuition fees from those who were poor their obligation to pay the fees after graduation and upon attaining material success. I urged upon him that the very desire for an education was evidence of character in a youth, and that the gratitude of those to whom an education thus acquired brought success would reflect itself in donations, bequests and endowments for college purposes. Mr. Boldt said the suggestion was new to him, but he thought it was practicable. We then discussed types of self-made men, which we both admired. I mentioned the names of two affluent contractors of Boston whose education scarcely extended beyond the writing of their names, yet whose empirical knowledge was the foundation of technical teaching in our scientific schools. He mentioned many such men of constructive genius.

I did not know at this time that George C. Boldt, multi-millionaire by his own skill, and most successful hotel man in the world, began life as a waiter. When George C. Boldt departs this life watch his gifts to Cornell.

En route, I spent a day at busy Buffalo. Some of its parks and streets are excellent, but its downtown district for the most part is not to be admired. The streets are dirty and the sidewalks uneven and dangerous. Indeed, such streets and sidewalks would never be tolerated in Boston. They have "moving" sidewalks, for most of the flagstones are loose. The explanation is that Buffalo is a "gang" city.

Sunday found me at Niagara, where I had all the rapture of a first visit. I took the famous Gorge Route, which gives opportunity of seeing the Falls and rapids from many angles.

Arriving at Toronto, many of the delegates who were fortunate enough to arrange in advance were domiciled in the Toronto University dormitories, and here the accommodations were all that could be desired; indeed very much better than the less fortunate enjoyed in the great Toronto hotels, which at the time by reason of the coincidence of the Queen's birthday, racing week at Woodbine, and the Conference, were overcrowded.

The proceedings began next morning in Convocation Hall of Toronto University. The Conference was opened by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught at twelve o'clock precisely. The duke came to the Conference attended by his military aide and the Hon. Clifford Sifton, Chairman of the Conservation Commission of the Dominion.

His opening address was well written and well read. Indeed he showed such knowledge on the subject of city planning that Hon. George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen of New York City, complimented the duke and told him that he would make an admirable chairman of a city planning board after his less exacting labors as Governor-General had been concluded. This remark was taken with much seriousness by his Grace, who seemed to regard it as a compliment to his ability.

After the opening of the conference luncheon was served to the delegates in Engineering Hall of the university, at which the Province of Ontario was host. Dr. J. W. S. McCullough of the Provincial Board of Health extended the official welcome to the delegates, to which Nelson P. Lewis, Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate of New York City, responded. The greetings of the British Town Planning Institute and the local Government Board of England were conveyed by Mr. Thomas Adams, who, by the way, was one of the most capable men at the convention.

The first conference session was opened in the afternoon with an address of welcome by the Hon. Mr. Sifton. Our Frederick Law Olmsted, one of the most popular men at the conference, responded most appropriately. He was followed by Robert S. Gourlay, chairman of the Toronto Harbor Commissioners, who had for his subject "Basic Principles of Waterfront Development," which he illustrated by showing us the plans of the Toronto Harbor Commissioners.

These plans are on a most comprehensive plane, and call for the expenditure of twenty-five millions. In the discussion which followed Mr. Gourlay's admirable address, I interrogated him as to how he got popular approval for such an ambitious project. He replied that for a year after it was constituted his Board had kept its own counsel and had stood all manner of abuse from the newspapers because of its reticence; then it launched its plans, and popular support was quickly granted. It is easy to see from this incident that forms of government have much to do with community efficiency. The men of this Board were given the power to do things, and could well afford to ignore querulous critics.

This Robert S. Gourlay is a descendant of that Robert F. Gourlay, the Scotchman, who came to Boston in 1844 and told us then what was necessary for Boston to plan, which, as my friend Mr. R. A. Cram has pointed out in the Boston Herald of May 31, we then ignored and are now obliged to consider at a hundred-fold expense.

The Toronto Harbor plans will open up an area of 644 acres for industrial purposes, from which an annual revenue of $700,000 is expected. The harbor will be deepened to admit the largest ocean-going boats; one thousand factories will be accommodated in the new area, providing work for tens of thousands of new workmen. The Harbor Board has also planned for a thirty-mile boulevard following the waterfront and encircling the city.

In the discussion on harbor development Mr. A. J. Lavoie, who has revolutionized the waterfront development of Montreal, took a prominent and instructive part.

The evening session brought forth Andrew Wright Crawford, Esq., of the Philadelphia Bar, who addressed the convention on "Certain Aspects of Municipal Financing and City Planning," a subject of the utmost importance to all city planning bodies. Among other points Mr. Crawford dwelt upon was that no municipality should issue bonds unless the object for which they were issued would be reasonably adequate for the needs of the community on the expiration of the bonds. The financial aspect of all planning will be dealt with by me in a special paper for the City Record.

At this session Mr. G. Trafford Hewitt of London, England, Mr. Thomas Adams of London, and the Hon. George Langley, Minister of Municipal Affairs of the Province of Saskatchewan, enlivened the proceedings by their discussion of English lenders and Canadian borrowers.

Through this discussion the American delegates were given opportunity of noting how Canada draws upon the mother country for the support of great Canadian projects.

Mr. Hewitt during the conference perpetrated a good joke (for an Englishman). He contended that real estate men often stood in the way of community improvement and intimated that very little idealism was to be expected of the average real estate man.

The second day of the conference was marked by two excellent addresses, one on the subject of "Protecting Residential Districts," by Mr. Lawrence Veiller, Secretary and Director, National Housing Association of New York City, and another on "The Size and Distribution of Playgrounds and Similar Recreation Facilities in American Cities," by Mr. Henry V. Hubbard, Assistant Professor of Landscape Architecture, Harvard University. An instructive discussion followed the addresses, in which Alfred Bettman, Esq., of the Cincinnati Bar, Frank B. Williams, Esq., of New York City, Mr. Francis R. North of Brookline, Mass., and Mr. Edward H. Bennett, the city planning expert of Chicago, were leaders. At the close of this session the delegates were taken by trolley to the waterfront and thence across the lake to luncheon at the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Toronto Harbor Commissioners being the hosts of the occasion.

The location, grounds and appointments of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club are not surpassed by anything on our eastern seaboard. After luncheon we were taken for an inspection of the harbor, and then fifty automobiles were provided for a tour of the city. At five o'clock we were carried to the Lambton Golf Club, where we were guests of Mr. Horne-Smith, of the Toronto Harbor Commissioners. Tea was served, according to English custom.

In the evening conference of May 26 the Canadians had their innings, the principal address of the evening being upon "A Canadian Town Planning Act: Consideration of Principles and Procedure," by Dr. Charles Hodgetts, Medical Adviser of the Conservation Commission of Canada.

The meeting of Wednesday, May 27, was rich in suggestion to all city planners, because it dealt with the most vital topic, transportation. Mr. J. V. Davies, Consulting Engineer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, contributed a very valuable paper on "Provision for Future Rapid Transit: Subway, Elevated or Open Cut and their Influence on the City Plan." Mr. Davies showed mastery of his subject, and he gave cost figures of the several means of transportation which were most carefully prepared by him at very great labor. His whole address should be published, and I intend to give the City Record the benefit of my notes of this address. The discussion leader on rapid transit was Edward M. Bassett, Esq., formerly chairman of the Public Service Commission of New York. Mr. Bassett is not only an expert on transportation matters, but he is an amiable and learned gentleman, most companionable and helpful.

Mr. John A. McCollum, Assistant Engineer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of New York City, gave the delegates rare pleasure in his treatment of the subject, "Rapid Transit and the Auto Bus." The extension of our transportation system by supplementary use of the auto bus must soon be considered by our City of Boston, and Mr. McCollum's paper will be very helpful when we come to consider this item.

At luncheon on Wednesday we were guests of the city of Toronto. At this luncheon there were three-minute talks by representatives of cities and city planning commissions of the United States and Canada. This was embraced as opportunity for bragging, but as Boston was acknowledged as leader in municipal planning (I don't know why), I was silent.

At 8 p. m. we were guests at a formal banquet given to us by the Conservation Commission of Canada. This banquet was indeed a treat. The music was good, the service complete, the menu excellent, the decorations tasteful, but most of all the speeches were distinguished by their frankness, optimism and good-fellowship. The toastmaster was the Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Conservation Commission of Canada. The speakers were the Hon. W. J. Hanna, K. C., Secretary of the Province of Ontario; Hon. George McAneny, President Board of Aldermen of New York City; Hon. George Langley, Minister of Municipal Affairs of the Province of Saskatchewan, and the Hon. Mr. McCarthy, Controller of Toronto.

By the way this last name suggests to me that Toronto is not a cosmopolitan city. Eighty-six per cent of its people are British born or of British descent. I use the word "British" in its true historical sense. This reminds me of the story of a visitor who asked a Torontonian what kind of population Toronto had. The Torontonian told him that they were largely English, there were some French, German, Jews, Greeks and Italians, and in fact he named many races. The visitor said:

"Why, have you no Irish?"

"Oh, yes," said the Toronto man, "I forgot. Yes, we have two Irishmen in Toronto."

"And who are they?" asked the visitor. The answer was:

"One is mayor and the other is chief of police!"

Although Massachusetts was not officially so well represented at this conference as were many other American states, it is pleasant to record that the success of the conference was largely due to the intelligence, skill and courtesy of our Frederick Law Olmsted of Brookline, chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Conference on City Planning, Mr. John Nolen, the noted landscape architect of Cambridge, Mass., and Flavel Shurtleff, Esq., of Boston, who is secretary of the conference. The joint efforts of these men directed through many different channels made an unqualified success of the Sixth National Conference on City Planning and the First International Conference.

Such a collection of valuable material as was provided in the addresses and discussions on the subject of city planning could have been obtained in no other way.

I have but one criticism to make of Toronto. Its street car system is deficient. The open cars have double steps, the lower one extending so slightly beyond the upper one that one's legs should be carved like the letter S to insure him a foothold. There is very poor service beyond the main arteries of travel. The conductors are pleasant enough but they do not know Toronto. The cars have but slight indication of their destination.

The people of Toronto are endeavoring to compel municipal ownership but are met with the usual greed of present franchise-holders. Certainly the worst municipal ownership could not be quite so bad as the present Toronto private control.

There is one automobile requirement which should be adopted in Boston. No automobiles may pass a standing street car. Thus a very frequent cause of accident is eliminated. Our Legislature might well consider the inclusion of such a regulation in our automobile laws.

The dominant note of the convention was that wise city planning is an absolute necessity; that it is not a money-spending but rather a money-saving scheme; that contemplated improvements should be paid for in the main by their chief beneficiaries; that the police power should be more frequently drafted into service to eliminate the evils of congestion and unhealthy housing; that the term of bonds issued for improvements should bear a direct relation to the permanence of the improvements; that private building enterprise should be subject to community interest; that transportation facilities should anticipate a little the increase of population; that no city can ever be great while any large number of its people live on the verge of squalor or work daily under unsanitary conditions.

One other highly important factor in the tremendous growth of Canadian cities is the disposition of the provincial government to aid and not impede the progress of the cities.

A word about Toronto itself. It has a population of 525,000, a gain of 138 per cent in ten years; its total valuation is $750,000,000; its assessments and tax rate are reasonable. The big things are done with a fine disdain for partisan politics. Its people are well, yes beautifully housed, the residential districts being models of safe construction. Its industrial workers are well paid and continuously employed. Its streets in the main are well laid out and well kept, although in some of the older business parts there is the characteristic narrowness of all cities due to the unrestrained caprice of private building enterprise. The attitude of the city with regard to fine architecture is demonstrated by the fact that Toronto is availing itself of the best brains of the world; one illustration is that our Ralph Adams Cram is the architect of the new High Church of England Cathedral, which is to be one of the many notable edifices in this handsome city of Toronto.

A recognition of the fact that greatness and skill in art and science exist beyond our municipal boundaries will be salutary for Boston, and I for one will hail the day when the Mayor of Boston may call to his service from the farthest corner of this commonwealth, or indeed from any other commonwealth, men pre-eminent in those arts, trades and sciences and professions, the products of which are necessary to enlarge the ability of our city to completely serve community needs.

Not even New York itself, with its 5,000,000 population, has been found self-sufficient when large municipal projects are planned. Some day we shall realize the value of the English and German methods of calling into community service the best men available regardless of residence.

I congratulate the City of Boston on the change of policy in respect of the scope of the City Record which permits that paper to augment its usefulness by including matters of general interest to its citizens as such. It seems to me that it is very well to have an authoritative publication with disfiguring personal and political factors eliminated which will faithfully record what the country is doing along the lines of municipal welfare.

JOHN J. WALSH.

THE PAGEANT AND MASQUE OF ST. LOUIS.

Mr. Addison L. Winship, civic secretary of the Boston City Club, who was chosen by Mayor Curley to serve as the representative of the City of Boston at the pageant, masque and city conference at St. Louis, presents the following entertaining report of his visit:

BOSTON, MASS., June 4, 1914.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston:

MY DEAR MR. MAYOR,—I have the honor to report to you upon my visit to St. Louis as the representative of the City of Boston.

Immediately upon my arrival I paid my respects to his Honor Mayor Henry W. Kiel, and from that moment every courtesy and hospitality was extended to Boston's representative by his Honor and Col. Martin J. Collins, Chief of the Governor's staff.

The Pageant and Masque of St. Louis was to celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the city, and the spectacle was to illustrate by word and picture that story. History and prophecy for St. Louis were depicted by thousands of volunteer actors. The words for the Pageant and Masque were by Percy Mackaye and the music for the Pageant and Masque by Frederick S. Converse of Boston.

Participating in the production were 7,600 people, and for four nights audiences of 100,000 to 150,000 witnessed the enactment. The stage, 850 feet long, was situated across a lagoon about 50 feet wide at the foot of Art Hill in Forest Park, a natural amphitheater, and the acoustics were so perfect that a spoken word could be heard distinctly at every point. The lagoon was used to good effect, providing methods of approach by Indians in canoes, soldiers in barges and the first steamship to come up the Mississippi to St. Louis.

On the first night of the pageant St. Louis called for the support of her sister cities and envoys from the District of Columbia and twenty-four others of the larger cities responded in costume and mounted on horses and participated in the exercises.

The stage setting, costumes and electrical effects were magnificent, nothing of a tawdry or tinsel nature appearing, and the whole scenery of stage setting and scene shifting from the river as discovered to the later populous city of St. Louis was carried out as if by clockwork.

The various groups or units were ready at their cue, and when it is remembered that over 7,000 persons and scores of horses participated, admiration for the management increases.

Coincident with the pageant and masque and during the afternoons was a conference of cities to discuss municipal problems and special features of public celebrations, city departments, recreation, etc. At these functions your representative was present and participated in the discussion.

During my visit, and under escort of Mayor Kiel, all the public parks, the waterworks, pumping station, filtration plants, etc., were inspected. The City Hall and new public buildings, the work house and reformatory institutions, the methods of prevention of dust in the streets, municipal concerts and the subject of concession of privileges in the parks and public grounds were explained fully by the Mayor.

In conversation with the Chief of Police, he explained that only 215 officers were required to handle the immense audiences assembled, and these included the mounted men and special detail for the automobile traffic. Thousands of automobiles were parked under police direction, and no accident, disorder or theft occurred. There was no confusion during the entire five days of the pageant. The police department deserves great credit for handling what seemed to be one of the largest and most complicated propositions that presented itself to any city.

One of the most inspiring incidents of the pageant or first half of the evening's entertainment was the appearance of the Stars and Stripes supplanting the banners of France and Spain as the different countries controlled the territory. As the flag appeared at the front of the stage the entire audience of 100,000 rose spontaneously and sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and the sound must have carried for miles.

But, Mr. Mayor, even St. Louis with its interesting history and changing story of settlement and progress under its several flags is excelled by Boston, and the remarkable effect upon civic pride and cooperation caused by this pageant may be increased a hundredfold in Boston, with its wealth of history and lore.

The apathy and lack of support by various groups in St. Louis in the early stages of the project faded away after the first performance, and to-day three times the required number of actors would volunteer. Discussion is already active to make permanent the temporary stage for any out-door function of similar nature. His Honor the Mayor is considering recommending an appropriation of $200,000 for such construction.

The St. Louisans have found themselves, by cooperation, in a beautiful spectacle and the pleasant part to us is that the leaders are Boston men.

The City of St. Louis, Mr. Mayor, deserves our appreciation for its very marked tribute to Boston through its Mayor and Colonel Collins for the great hospitality and attention shown your representative, and I believe that the relations existing between the two cities will continue, with mutual respect and cooperation.

There will be forwarded to me, as soon as completed, a group of photographs showing the scenes in Forest Park, and immediately upon their receipt I will lay them before you.

You may be assured, Mr. Mayor, that I neglected no opportunity to place Boston in the right light before the people of St. Louis, both as a summer resort and as the most advantageous manufacturing center in the United States, all of which is

Respectfully submitted,
ADDISON L. WINSHIP.

Calendar Flat Work Ironer, with air compressor and tank, at a cost of $2,800.

The Mayor of Boston:

SIR,—I respectfully request your approval to contract, without advertising, with the Poland Laundry Machinery Company at a price of twenty-eight hundred (2,800) dollars, for one 24 by 120 inch Royal Calendar Flat Work Ironer with air compressor and tank, with direct connected current motor, and two Anderson Steam Traps to take care of condensation—one for each cylinder.

This is a matter to which I have given considerable attention and after conference and receiving prices from several laundry machinery concerns, I believe that this machine is the best suited for our work and the price, as stated above, is the lowest that I have been able to obtain and as it is very necessary that the machine should be installed at once as we are put to a large expense because of lack of machinery caused by the loss by fire last January, are my reasons for requesting that contract may be made at once.

Respectfully,
FRED S. GORE, Commissioner.

LETTER UPON THE PARENTAL SCHOOL.

Mayor Curley, upon the 2d instant, addressed a strong and vigorous letter to the members of the Massachusetts State Senate and House of Representatives, relative to the abolition of the Parental School. The Mayor declared:

CITY OF BOSTON,
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR, June 2, 1914.

DEAR SIR,—I am strongly of the opinion that the action of the House in voting to reject the bill providing for the abolition of the Parental School in Boston was largely due to misinformation supplied by persons unfamiliar with the actual facts in the case. The existence of the institution is due wholly to the fact that little if any thought has been given by those in authority to the possibility of inciting an interest among boys for other lines of study that appeal more strongly to them than strictly education lines.

Chairman Brock of the School Committee at the hearing before the Committee of the Legislature declared that in the event of the passage of the bill the School Board would provide sufficient male truant officers to visit the homes daily of the boys who were accustomed to playing truant from school, and a sufficient number of female visitors to supplement the work of the truant officers and advise with the parents as to the best method of guiding the footsteps of the children, and in addition establish a vocational course that would appeal to the boys.

The weakness of the present system lies in the fact that punishment for truancy is meted out wholly to the boys whose parents are in poor circumstances, and the strongest indictment of the present system lies in the fact that a boy whose parents are wealthy has yet to be committed to this institution.

It has been the observation of persons making a study of the effect upon the character and conduct of boys sent to this institution, that in more than 40 per cent of the cases the boys eventually terminate their career at Concord Reformatory or State Prison. In the great majority of cases the boys committed have been guilty of no crime other than truancy, and that their incarceration for a period of two or more years in an institution with boys older in years and more versed in all that is evil cannot have other than a demoralizing and debasing influence upon these children.

Frequent complaints of immorality have, from time to time, during the past five years been investigated, with the result that a condition has been presented demanding radical action, and at once. The obligation we all owe in common to society not infrequently demands that an individual be protected from himself, to the end that he may be saved for a useful future to his family, to the municipality and to society.

I believe it needless to cite cases where the present system has worked hardship, but, however, I feel it my duty to present at least one case to which my attention has been directed within the past month. The following letter was received by me:

ROXBURY, Mass., April 3, 1914.

Mayor James M. Curley:

HONORABLE SIR,—I beg of you a few moments to read my letter in regards to my son who was sent to the Parental School. He is one of two I have left out of eighteen children, and my heart is broken with the thoughts of his being away from me. He has been there now for four months, and is to be there more than a year longer, and every time I go to see him he is sad and worried, and I fear that the constant melancholy feeling he has will tend to bring on sickness. This coming summer I have a dear boy that is coming home from the Perkins Institution in Watertown, who is totally blind owing to an accident caused by playing with a cartridge three years ago. It would lighten his heart to have his little brother to read and play with him while he is home and around the house, as he has to be guided by some person, and he asked me to appeal to you for his little brother's company.

Hoping some word of cheer, I remain,

Very respectfully yours,

Mrs. D. QUIRK.

53 Langdon Street, Roxbury.

I have endeavored in a brief way to present for your consideration these few facts in the hope that your vote may be cast in favor of reconsidering the rejection of this bill and in favor of its enactment.

It has been stated in the course of debate that the sole purpose prompting the presentation of the measure was to unload on the state some of Boston's responsibilities and burdens, and I beg to assure you that the state will not be called upon to spend a dollar in this connection. It is my purpose in the event of the measure passing, and the boys being restored to their parents and saved for a useful future, to utilize the buildings for the establishment there of an institution for the treatment of whooping cough. This disease last year numbered ninety-seven persons among its victims, a larger number than scarlet fever or smallpox, yet we have no means at present of caring for those afflicted or protecting from its dread ravages fond parents, sisters and brothers, with whom to-day they are compelled to come in contact through the lack of an institution for the treatment of these cases. It will represent a much larger expenditure than the amount now necessary for the maintenance of the Parental School, which has outlived its usefulness, and should in the interests of humanity be abandoned.

Very respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor.

STREET LIGHTING.

The following was received:

New York, June 1, 1914.

To the Honorable the Members of the Boston City Council:

Gentlemen,—In the matter of the approval by the City Council under the charter of the contract dated March 19, 1914, with the city as proposed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company for lighting with gas the public streets, parks and alleys, the Public Lighting Service Corporation begs to call the attention of the City Council particularly to certain provisions of the city charter (Acts 1909, chapter 486), the requirements of which would seem essential to be observed for the protection of the interests of the city and of all parties concerned. We refer especially to the provisions set forth in section 30, in section 8 and section 6, respecting the making of a contract for street lighting and approval thereof conformably to law.

As appears of record in the proceedings of the City Council, March 23, 1914, as printed in the City Record of March 28, on pages 198-202, inclusive, the officer in charge of the Public Works Department, Commissioner L. K. Rourke, on March 19, 1914, purporting to act under section 30 of the city charter, made and executed the contract for gas lighting which is now submitted for approval to your honorable Board under section 6 of the charter.

Public hearings were held on the proposed gas and electric lighting contracts on April 22 and April 28, as appears in the stenographic record of the reports of the hearing by the official stenographer, to which reference is hereby made as if a part hereof.

We beg to call the City Council's attention again to the fact referred to in the report of the Chamber of Commerce Committee submitted at the hearing of April 28, pursuant to the invitation of the order of the City Council of March 28, "that contrary to the usual custom in such matters neither the electric nor the gas contract has been approved as to form by the City Law Department, a custom of submitting these contracts to the Law Department appears to be essential to the protection of the city interests," and that the committee reported that as at present framed "neither of the lighting contracts now before the City Council ought to be approved."

We beg to ask that the lighting contracts be not approved in order that proposals for lighting may be advertised for competitive bidding as prescribed by section 30 of the city charter. We make this request for fair play in order that this company, which was the lowest responsible bidder for street lighting by gas prior to the meeting of the Council on March 23, may have an opportunity to bid for the work in accordance with the prescribed requirements of section 30 of the city charter. If this gas lighting contract is to be given to anybody by private bidding who was prepared to give the usual bond for the faithful performance of any work the city might contract for with it, the city could have awarded the contract to the Public Lighting Service Corporation as the lowest responsible bidder prior to the meeting at 3 p. m., on March 23, of the City Council, at which the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was submitted by the Mayor and the Commissioner of Public Works.

We also beg to call the City Council's attention that the Boston Finance Commission, invited by the City Council by its order of March 23, to investigate the matter of city lighting and advise the Council as to the proposed contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, reported on May 11, 1914, as appears of record in the City Record of May 16, 1914, that "the contract for street lighting by gas now under consideration be rejected."

We make only general reference to the proceedings at the hearings of April 22 and April 28, as the same appear of record in the stenographic report. The reasons why the Boston Finance Commission recommended the rejection of the contract also appear of record in the City Record of May 16, 1914, on pages 468 and 469, to which reference is hereby made the same as if it were a part hereof.

We beg to call the City Council's particular attention that to comply with the recommendations of the Boston Finance Commission and of the Chamber of Commerce in the various important changes in the terms and conditions and form of the proposed contract, which it appears to be generally conceded are necessary to protect the interests of the city and of all parties concerned, an essentially new contract from the contract as proposed is necessary; that section 8 of the city charter in express terms prohibits the City Council, directly or indirectly, from taking part in the making of contracts, and that in view of the grave importance and magnitude of the proposed contracts no negligence or anything else should prevent the city from being protected in its interests as prescribed by section 30 of the city charter. We therefore ask the City Council to reject the contract as proposed in order not to waste in contracts for street lighting hundreds of thousands of dollars which could be saved over the prices now paid for street lighting if the Commissioner of Public Works would obey the law and advertise for proposals for bids for lighting the streets by gas and by electricity as required to do by the provisions of section 30 of the city charter. We believe that under the statute and under the common law the lowest bidder must be recognized in Boston; and that competition to the interests of the gas trust is of great importance to the city and the citizens, especially in view of the low heating power of the gas now used in incandescent mantle street lighting, where, according to the admission of the Street Commissioner, not 40-candle power of the 60-candle power required by the candle power contracts has been furnished, and the city has for many years paid for half again as much light for street lighting by gas as it has received, as appears of record in the reports of the Boston Finance Commission submitted to the City Council May 11, 1914, and in previous reports there referred to for many years.

Respectfully yours,

PUBLIC LIGHTING SERVICE CORPORATION,

by WILLIAM B. LAWRENCE,

Attorney.

Referred to the Executive Committee.

CONFIRMATION OF APPOINTMENTS.

President McDONALD called up unfinished business, No. 1, viz.:

1. Action on appointments submitted by the Mayor May 25, of Joseph J. McWeeney and Isaac Silber to be Constables of the City of Boston.

The question came on confirmation. Committee—Coun. Ballantyne and Watson. Whole number of ballots cast 8, yeas 8, and the appointments were confirmed.

FINANCE.

Coun. BALLANTYNE, for the Committee on Finance, submitted the following:

(1) Report on message of Mayor, communication and order (referred May 25) for loan of $100,000 for construction of artificial stone sidewalks—that the order ought not to pass.

Coun. BALLANTYNE—Mr. President, I move you, sir, that the report of the committee with the order be referred to the Executive Committee.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, may I inquire why that action is desired? That wasn't the understanding, if I remember rightly.

Coun. BALLANTYNE—Mr. President, as I understand there are several members of the Council who dissent from this report, and it was understood that this would be sent to the Executive Committee so that the Commissioner of Public Works could appear before that committee and explain just what sidewalks were meant by that order, and then it could be acted upon in the Executive Committee.

Coun. KENNY—The Committee on Finance this afternoon threshed that matter out, I thought very carefully and very fully. The committee took the position that this meant maintenance, and that therefore the Council would be adverse to passing a loan order for maintenance purposes. And it was on that theory, Mr. President, that we acted, and upon that theory we sent in this report—that this would be a loan for the purpose of raising money, which should properly be on maintenance. That is why I voted against it, and I believe that is why the majority of the members voted against it. Therefore, I do not see why it should be sent to the Executive Committee.

Coun. BALLANTYNE—Mr. President, there was no agreement on the part of the Committee on Finance to have this referred to the Executive Committee. I simply stated after the meeting adjourned that I would so move. If the Council sees fit to act otherwise, all right, but I agreed with several members that I would make that motion.

Coun. WOODS—Mr. President, when this matter was voted on in the committee I dissented, and Coun. Watson dissented, and Coun. McDonald also dissented. It was a question whether this came under maintenance or not, and it was understood that we would withdraw our dissent and have it referred to the Executive Committee. I do not care which you do, whether you refer it to the Executive Committee or kill it here. I want to put myself on record as saying that $100,000 for granolithic sidewalks is much needed. You pass an order for improving the streets that calls for relaying the street and relaying the sidewalks, but there is many an old street in Boston that ought to have granolithic sidewalks, and it isn't fair to say that the abutters in those streets should have to pay two-thirds of the cost. As long as the Mayor is willing to take the responsibility of spending $100,000 I do not care whether it is for maintenance or for permanent improvement, or what it is. I know our condition in Brighton is that we haven't had a granolithic sidewalk put there by the city in years. The other day I showed some members of the Council a street that was put there—granolithic sidewalks and no house at all on either side of the street. That is the way things have been put through here, but while I am a member of the Council I am going to see that certain parts of the city get what is properly belonging to them. I want to say that I am in favor of this $100,000 for the granolithic sidewalks, as sent to us by the Mayor, and if it is going to be referred to the Executive Committee I want to be put down as a dissenter on it. The condition of affairs in my part of the town, I want to say, is such that we need a great deal of sidewalks there. I have to wade up to my knees in mud many a time through certain streets, and children have to wade through the mud also, and I think that $100,000 is not half enough. If the order is going to be referred to the Executive Committee I want to be put down as a dissenter.

Coun. COLLINS—Mr. President, since I have been a member of this Council, going on five years, the money for sidewalks has always come from the maintenance end, or from the Public Works Department. In other words, the money has come from the tax levy. As one member of the Council who has put in a great many orders for sidewalks I can say that I am strongly in favor of artificial stone sidewalks. But the financial policy which we have held to strongly for the past five years is that for current expenses or for expenses of a recurrent nature the money should come from the tax levy. There is a Reserve Fund, money may be transferred from the Reserve Fund, and I am sure that this Council will unanimously go on record in favor of a transfer from the Reserve Fund for granolithic sidewalks. But the money should not be borrowed. There were two members of this Council who were not present at that conference; accordingly I second the motion of the chairman of the committee in order that all the members may have an opportunity to discuss this.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I am going to yield also to the suggestion of the member opposite; so long as anybody desires to discuss it I have no objection to it being discussed. My friend from Brighton refers to being prepared to vote for it whether it comes out of maintenance or whether it comes out of a loan, and harks back to some old days. I suppose he refers to the Board of Aldermen. It may as well be understood that we are not doing business here by the same methods as characterized the old Board of Aldermen of the City of Boston.

Coun. WATSON—Mr. President, I want to put myself on record publicly in this matter, too, as well as the member from Brighton and the other gentlemen of the Council. There is a great deal of doubt in my mind whether or not we should spend $100,000 for thirty miles of granolithic sidewalks, and whether if it is a permanent improvement the future should not take care of it. The life of a granolithic sidewalk is thirty to thirty-five years, I am informed. And I think that when future generations are going to benefit from something they ought to at least pay their share of it. Of course I shall vote to refer it to the Executive Committee, and if the Superintendent of the Public Works Department, Mr. Rourke, will satisfy me that it is a proper loan I shall vote for it finally.

The report of the committee was referred to the Executive Committee.

(2) Report on order (referred April 6) for loan of $500,000 for highways, making of—recommending passage of order in the following new draft:

Ordered, That the sum of four hundred thousand dollars ($400,000) be and hereby is appropriated for Highways, Making of, under the provisions of chapter 393 of the Acts of 1906, and that to meet said appropriation the City Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to issue, from time to time, upon the request of the Mayor, bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the city to said amount.

Report accepted; order given its first reading and passed, yeas 9.

The order will take its final reading not less than two weeks from to-day.

(3) Report on message of Mayor and order (referred April 22) for loan of $800,000 for highways, making of—that the order ought not to pass, without prejudice.

The question came on the report of the committee and the rejection of the order.

Coun. BALLANTYNE—Mr. President, for the Committee on Finance I wish to state that the committee received a communication some time ago from the Finance Commission requesting that the Council postpone action on this order until such time as they could make a report. That report has not yet been forthcoming, and the order running against time, the committee thought that the best way to take care of it was to reject it, without prejudice. If that prevails, I hold in my hand another order for $400,000, which if passed will equal the $800,000 loan.

Report accepted; order rejected, without prejudice.

(4) Report on order (referred 1913) for loan of ten thousand dollars for convenience station, Roxbury Crossing—that the order ought to pass.

Coun. WATSON—Mr. President, just a word. I am satisfied this order will receive the unanimous vote of the Council to-day, but I say these few words in the hope that my Honor the Mayor may perhaps hear of what I said. This is an improvement that Roxbury has been waiting for for many years. It is sadly and seriously needed, and I trust that there will be no veto forthcoming on the proposition.

The report was accepted and the order given its first reading and passed, yeas 9.

The order will take its final reading not less than fourteen days from date.

WIDENING OF WASHINGTON STREET.

Coun. ATTRIDGE offered an order—That the sum of forty-two thousand one hundred dollars ($42,100) be and hereby is appropriated for the widening of Washington street, from Warrington street to Pleasant street, to a uniform width, and that to meet said appropriation the City Treasurer be and hereby is authorized to issue, from time to time, upon the request of the Mayor, bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the city to said amount.

Referred to the Committee on Finance.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE.

Coun. COULTHURST offered the following:

Draft of Proposed Ordinance to Establish the Department of Finance and Improve the Financial Organization of the City.

Be it ordained by the Council of Boston, as follows:

Section 1. The department of finance is hereby established, the head of which shall be known as the city comptroller. He shall receive an annual salary of nine thousand dollars, and shall give bond in the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. He shall have control of the financial affairs of the city and county, subject to the supervision of the mayor. He shall prescribe the form of keeping and rendering all accounts, and establish, so far as possible, a uniform system of accounting in all departments and offices of the city and county, and regulate and supervise the keeping thereof. He shall also establish suitable, and so far as possible, uniform forms for use in preparing detailed estimates for appropriations, and shall advise and assist the mayor in passing upon such estimates, and prepare for his consideration a schedule of expenditure to accompany the annual budget, such schedule to include in specific items the amounts which it is proposed to appropriate for various services and expenditures, and show specifically reductions and increases in the estimates so that an intelligent comparison can be made between the estimates and the corresponding items which it is proposed to appropriate. The appropriation orders submitted by the mayor shall contain such restrictions as are necessary to prevent the use of moneys appropriated for uses other than those for which they are intended. The comptroller shall also render similar services in connection with supplemental budgets, if any. He shall render such further service as will help to coordinate and standardize the work and expenditures of the various departments and offices, with a view to promoting economy and efficiency, and the officers and employees of all departments shall cooperate with him and his assistants to this end. He may establish regulations to be followed by the different departments and offices in making contracts, in keeping accounts, and in expending or authorizing the expenditure of money.

Section 2. At the beginning of each fiscal year the comptroller shall prepare and submit to the mayor for transmission to the city council a statement showing outstanding loans, the borrowing capacity of the city for the current year, and a detailed plan for the expenditure of any money which it is necessary to borrow during the year, including a comparative statement of expenditures from loans in previous years.

Section 3. In the event of the absence, disability or resignation of the comptroller, the mayor may designate the head of some other department to discharge the duties of the office temporarily, and such acting head shall serve without additional compensation.

Section 4. In the department of finance there shall be an auditing division, under the immediate direction of the city auditor; a division for the reception and safekeeping of all moneys paid into the treasury of the city and for the payment of money on warrants drawn by the comptroller and countersigned by the mayor, which division shall be under the immediate direction of the city treasurer, and a division for the collection of revenue, which shall be under the immediate direction of the city collector. Each of said heads of divisions shall be specially fitted by education, training and experience to perform the duties of his office, and shall be appointed solely in the interest of the city, and certificates to that effect shall be signed by the comptroller and filed with the city clerk. The heads of these divisions shall be appointed by the comptroller, and shall receive the compensation now provided by law for similar offices. They shall respectively perform the duties now provided by law or ordinance applicable to the city auditor, the city treasurer and the city collector, subject to the supervision and direction of the comptroller. They shall also perform such additional duties, not inconsistent with law, as the comptroller may, from time to time, prescribe. They shall severally give bond to the comptroller as obligee, with sureties approved by the mayor, as follows: The city auditor, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars; the city treasurer, in the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and the city collector, in the sum of seventy-five thousand dollars.

Section 5. Before submitting the annual budget to the city council, the mayor shall give public hearings thereon, duly advertised, to citizens and taxpayers.

Section 6. No wage or salary increases shall be made during the fiscal year, unless the increase is provided for in the estimates and in the annual budget.

Section 7. No transfers of appropriations shall be made without the written approval of the comptroller, and no such transfers shall be made without a public hearing, duly advertised.

Section 8. It shall be the duty of the head of any department or board or officer having authority to make a contract involving the expenditure of any funds to immediately notify the comptroller of such contract, and it shall be the duty of the city treasurer, under the direction of the comptroller, to at once charge the amount called for by such contract against the funds appropriated for such department, board or office, and not to permit the money so charged to be used for any other purpose so long as the liability under such contract continues.

Section 9. The comptroller shall cause to be made under his supervision a complete inventory of all city property, and shall see that this inventory is kept up to date, so that it shall be at all times a complete inventory of all city property.

Section 10. The employees in the offices of the city auditor, city treasurer and city collector, as heretofore existing, are hereby transferred to the department of finance, but the persons now holding the positions of city auditor, city treasurer and city collector shall cease to hold office upon the taking effect of this ordinance, unless appointed to similar positions hereby created.

Section 11. This ordinance shall take effect on

Coun. COULTHURST—Mr. President, this is the draft of a proposed ordinance to establish a financial department of the city and a segregated budget. It is based upon the very admirable report of the Committee on Municipal and Metropolitan Affairs of the Chamber of Commerce which was sent to this body on February 6, 1914, and it is submitted with the further purpose of bringing the matter of a segregated budget and a new financial system for the city before the attention of the Council and the public at large. In connection with this matter I propose to submit later two orders, one asking the Finance Commission to give us the benefit of its advice upon this whole matter, and the other asking the Chamber of Commerce to report to us upon this particular draft, which is based upon their recommendations. To show to you the importance of getting some other method of appropriating money than the one we use at the present time, let me give you the results that have been accomplished in New York in the last five or six years by the segregated budget system that they have adopted. It would appear, according to the report of this committee of the Chamber of Commerce, that in 1908 the work in New York under a scientific budget was begun. During the previous five years the amount expended for city purposes increased on an annual average 8.38 per cent. From 1908 to 1910 under the operation of the budget system as then applied this percentage of annual increase was reduced to 5.25 per cent. From 1910 to 1913 it fell to 4.23 per cent, and for the year 1913-14 it was 1.83 per cent. The report goes on to state: "We are informed that it is expected that for the year 1914-15 the increase will be reduced to .15 of 1 per cent." If New York has succeeded in adopting a budget scheme whereby they have kept down their expenditures for maintenance, it behooves the City of Boston to try and take advantage of their experience. Here in Boston our annual appropriations for maintenance have increased, I should say, on an average of 10 per cent a year during that period, and we are now facing a further increase in the taxes as a result of our system of spending the public funds. I have therefore introduced this draft of an ordinance, not expecting that it will be accepted in its final form, not knowing what action will be taken as a result of the work that has been put in on this matter, and only hoping that the Committee on Appropriations will have no occasion to sit next year and waste its time passing upon the Mayor's budget. I have been here for three years now, looking like a wise owl, listening to the heads of departments tell us why their appropriations should be increased, whereas we know that our only power is to decrease their appropriations. I consider that we as a factor in determining the amount of money to be expended by the city for maintenance have not accomplished any reforms, any results, and if New York has succeeded in keeping down its expenditures, as this report would seem to show, we certainly ought to try to take advantage of their experience. I ask unanimous consent to have this report printed in connection with the proposed ordinance.

REPORT ON MUNICIPAL BUDGET SYSTEM. (Revised.)

February 6, 1914.

To the Executive Committee and Board of Directors:

Some months ago it was suggested to the Committee on Municipal and Metropolitan Affairs that a study should be made of Boston's present budget system with a view to ascertaining what changes, if any, might be recommended to the city authorities.

Inquiries made in an informal way from his Honor the Mayor and various officials at the City Hall, from members of the City Council, from members of the Boston Finance Commission and from the State Bureau of Labor Statistics served to show the committee that such a study would probably be worth while and that it might point the way to desirable improvements in the present budgetary system without the necessity of any changes in the existing city charter.

Preliminary Studies.

The committee began its work by studying the Boston and New York systems in contrast. Knowing that in recent years the city of New York had been actively engaged in attempting to secure, through the working out of a budget and other allied changes and reforms, remedies for conditions somewhat similar to those at present existing in Boston, and for which a remedy is sought, it was thought advisable to have someone who had been closely identified with the origin and progress of the work in New York come to Boston to give an exposition of the segregated budget and the accounting system there—that is, to explain the system of making up the budget, the appropriating of the money for departmental purposes, and, finally, the method of auditing and accounting. Mr. Henry Bruere, of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, after two interviews with the chairman of a subcommittee in New York, kindly agreed to appear before the committee and also to speak at a small gathering at the City Club. This Bureau has the credit of having introduced the system now used in New York, and has since been in constant touch with the city's officials, in the working out of both the budget and the accounting systems. This organization—a splendid example of unselfish public spirit—has been maintained throughout by private subscription, no public funds having been appropriated toward its support.

Mr. Bruere's address to the committee, as well as his later remarks at the City Club, received the closest possible attention, and, we believe, aroused a very strong interest in the question as related to the City of Boston. We were fortunate in having at the meeting at the City Club several financial officers of the city, a member of the City Council, a representative from the State Bureau of Statistics, and a member of the staff of the Finance Commission. There were also representatives of associations working for civic betterment. At the close of his remarks Mr. Bruere kindly offered to reply to questions, with the result that a very general discussion ensued. In this way much detailed information was brought out, and comparisons were possible between the methods in use in New York and Boston.

The New York Budget System.

In 1908 the work in New York under a scientific budget was begun. During the previous five years the amount expended for city purposes increased on an annual average 8.38 per cent. From 1908 to 1910, under the operation of the budget system as then applied, this per centum of annual increase was reduced to 5.25 per cent. From 1910 to 1913 it fell to 4.23 per cent, and for the year 1913 to 1914 it was 1.83 per cent. We are informed that it is expected that for the year 1914 to 1915 the increase will be reduced to fifteen-hundredths of one per cent.

The New York work was begun under the advice and supervision of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, their recommendations being very ably applied and extended by Mr. Prendergast, the City Comptroller, and, as the work progressed, it was greatly facilitated by the enthusiasm and loyalty of the city staff and body of employees generally, who recognized, no matter what their previous affiliations, that a system had been established where a man's merit and efficiency brought him individual credit and recognition.

Essentials of the New York Plan.

There appear to be six essentials of scientific budget making as applied in the city of New York:

1. Installation of unit cost systems, expense and liability accounting, central financial control, time reports, proper pay roll methods and an effective organization for audit.
2. Adoption of definite and adequate classifications or appropriation titles, making them standard and adhering to their use from year to year.
3. Preparation of budget estimates on uniform schedules which provide for showing in detail all information necessary as a basis for judgment in determining the amounts which should be appropriated for each function or purpose.
4. Preparation of budget estimates sufficiently in advance of the time of adoption of the budget and careful examination thereof by the Comptroller and Finance (or Budget) Committee of the legislative body or their representatives.
5. Adoption and publication of a tentative budget and holding of public hearings thereon.
6. Inclusion in the budget ordinance or resolution of such restrictions as will insure its administration for the functions and purposes for which the appropriations were requested.

The Results in New York.

The following are some of the incidents resulting from the adoption of such a budget in New York: A bureau for the purchase of municipal supplies. An inventory of all city property. Improved accounting methods, so that on the awarding of a contract the amount was immediately charged against the appropriate funds.

Increased promptness and impartiality of payments through better methods of handling the vouchers, with other collateral improvements tending towards greater efficiency and economy.

Owing to the greater accuracy and minuteness of itemization in the budget, critical analysis became possible, and public interest in budget hearings, realizing the possibility of making itself effective, has become a strong and controlling factor.

The Boston Budget System.

Under the Boston charter the annual budget submitted by the Mayor is based primarily upon detailed estimates submitted by the various departments, boards and other officers which expend money for city or county purposes. These estimates are furnished upon forms provided by the Mayor. The Mayor makes such general reductions or increases in these estimates as he sees fit, and submits them to the City Council, together with the form of a proposed order to be adopted by the Council making the appropriations which he recommends. The Council may reduce or reject any item proposed by the Mayor, but cannot increase it without his approval, nor increase the total of the budget, or add any item thereto.

Appropriations Made in Lump Sums.

The estimates which are sent to the Mayor by the heads of the various departments and by the different boards or other officers which have charge of various departments of city or county expenditure are made out in considerable detail. But in no case is the information given in such great detail nor is it so convenient a form for comparison with previous years as are the estimates submitted under the new budget system which is now in vogue in New York City. It has rarely been the custom of the Mayor in Boston to make reductions in the case of individual items. The usual plan has been to make a reduction in the total amount asked for by a department. When these reductions have been made, the list of total appropriations, arranged by departments, has been sent to the City Council along with the itemized estimates already referred to.

The City Council has given, by advertisement in the City Record, due notice of public hearings which may be attended by any citizen. At these hearings the appropriations recommended for each department have been considered one by one. But the notices in the City Record reach a comparatively small number of citizens, and the hearings are attended by relatively few outside the immediate circle of those who are directly interested in some appropriation that is being considered. The City Council, moreover, has not, as a rule, given to the various appropriations the amount of time necessary to analyze the details of each appropriation recommended. In the year 1913-14, for example, as the latest Annual Report of the Boston Finance Commission points out, "the hearing on the question of an appropriation of $4,710,000 for the Public Works Department lasted 27 minutes; the hearing on an appropriation of $131,000 for the Street Laying-Out Department lasted 3 minutes, and the hearing on an appropriation of $50,150 for the Treasury Department lasted 30 seconds."

The Lack of Definite Relation Between the Estimates and Appropriations.

It should be made clear that the trouble does not lie in the fact that the estimates are submitted with insufficient detail. The estimates are, on the whole, very well itemized. Nor yet does the encouragement to wastefulness arise from the fact that the Mayor and City Council share the right to reduce these estimates. The real source of the difficulty lies in the fact that while estimates are submitted in detail, appropriations are made in the lump, and that once an appropriation is made, the estimates have no binding force whatever upon the department which has submitted them as the basis of its request for an appropriation. Within the limits of the total sum appropriated for its use a department can spend the money about as it chooses. The whole situation, as the recent report of the Finance Commission very properly pointed out, gives to the public "the semblance of a desire to economize but leaves the heads of departments and the City Council in a state of confusion," for neither can be sure, in the case of a reduction in the appropriation made, concerning the particular items to which the reduction should apply. In a word, the estimates and the budget should be properly articulated. The latter should be in the same detail as the former. Reductions should be made by items, and each appropriation should go to a department with a clear indication of what the Mayor and Council intend to have done with every dollar.

Examples of the Present Practice.

The very general character of the terms in which appropriations are made in many instances will be indicated by the two examples following, taken from the appropriation order for 1913:

"Overseeing of the Poor Department,"	$180,000
"Public Works Department:
Central Office.....	$80,000
Bridge and Ferry Division.....	580,000
Highway Division.....	3,670,000
Sewer and Water Division, Sewer Service..	380,000

These general appropriations cover all kinds of work embraced within the respective departments and offices to which they pertain, including salaries and wages, and there is practically no limit to the discretion of the head of the department in expending the money, so long as he keeps within the appropriation, and renders accounts and keeps books in the form prescribed by the City Auditor. The auditor has authority to require any person presenting an account or claim against the city or county to make oath thereto, and may disallow any claim on the ground that it is fraudulent or unlawful, in which case he is required to file a written statement of his reasons for refusing to pay the claim.

Under the present practice there is nothing to prevent the head of a department from completely rearranging his work and expending his appropriation in a manner different from that contemplated by his estimates, if he sees fit to do so.

Transfers.

The charter also authorizes the City Auditor, with the approval in each instance of the Mayor, to make transfers at any time from the appropriation for current expenses of one division of a department to the appropriation for current expenses of any other division of the same department, and from the reserve fund to any appropriation for the current expenses of a department; and the auditor may, with like approval, at any time between December 1 and February 1, make transfers from any appropriation to any other appropriation, except that money raised by loan shall not be transferred to any appropriation from income or taxes. The auditor may also, with such approval, apply any of the income and taxes not disposed of in closing the accounts for the financial year in such manner as he may determine.

The Commissioner of Public Works, the City Treasurer and the City Auditor appeared before the committee and furnished much valuable information, with copies of blank forms used in making estimates.

Extent of the Transfer System.

Besides other obvious advantages, segregated or specific appropriations will certainly have a tendency to remove an abuse which exists under the present system, known as the "transfer of appropriations." We have seen that the auditor, with the approval of the Mayor, has very broad powers in making transfers, without being required to pay much if any attention to the purpose of the City Council in making the appropriations, so far as it can be ascertained from the estimates or the general terms of the appropriation orders heretofore adopted. Although the charter specifically provides that no official, except in case of extreme emergency involving the health or safety of the people or their property, shall expend in any fiscal year a sum in excess of the appropriations, it appears from the report of the City Auditor that transfers to the amount of $1,098,713.65 were made during the fiscal year ending January 31, 1913, including $350,373.73 from the Reserve Fund. To the Reserve Fund itself there was charged only $69,295.53, the larger sum of $350,373.73 representing only items transferred to cover deficiencies in other appropriations.

Examples.

Another striking illustration of the looseness of the present method is to be found in the appropriations under the Mayor's Department for "Public Celebrations." For the year ending January 31, 1913, the appropriations for this purpose amounted to $45,000, but $11,606 additional was transferred from the Reserve Fund. In the present year, although $50,000 was appropriated for public celebrations, $12,600 has been transferred to that heading from the Reserve Fund. The total amount available this fiscal year for public celebrations is $63,071.27, of which $59,730.97 had been expended on December 1, two months before the end of the fiscal year.

Wage Increases Not Provided for by Budget.

Another matter having a direct relation to annual expenditure is that of increase in salaries of subordinate employees. Under the existing practice heads of departments and other officials in making their annual estimates include such increases in pay of subordinates as they deem necessary for the year, and the budget and appropriations are supposedly made on this basis. But it has become a frequent practice to make numerous additional increases after the annual appropriation has been made, especially toward the end of the fiscal year, involving largely increased expenditure for the year beyond that contemplated, or at least a diversion of funds intended for other uses. Furthermore, the fact that such increases can be made at any time seriously interferes with the transaction of public business, because public officials are repeatedly prevented from performing their regular duties by applications for increased pay, frequently unmerited. A simple remedy for this recognized evil will be to amend the existing ordinance (chapter 3, page 12, Revised Ordinances of 1898) so as to provide that no increases in compensation shall be made after the adoption of the annual budget. In this connection it is of interest to note that this principle has been adopted by the Boston School Committee, in a regulation which provides that the salaries of all teachers shall be established annually in June for the year beginning September 1, and shall not be changed during the year.

The Need of More Detailed Statements.

The report of the City Auditor contains much valuable and detailed information in regard to expenditures, but if more specific appropriations are made, we think the value of his report for reference will be greatly increased by tabulating the appropriations for the current and preceding year in the same place as the detailed payments, showing also specifically from what source any deficiency has been made up.

Unexpended Balances.

Another matter which seems to require attention is that of unexpended balances of appropriations.

Comparison of the Boston and New York Systems.

A careful study, as outlined above, of the information obtained, shows very clearly the principal points of difference between the segregated budget of New York and the general budget system in use in Boston. These points of difference may be summarized in parallel columns as follows:

New York's estimates for the budget are made up and the necessary appropriations made in the fall for the following municipal year, which begins on January 1.

New York has a segregated budget, appropriations being made for individual items.

New York's budget from its inception is opened to investigation, discussion and criticism by any citizen or taxpayer, through public hearings, and their interest is manifested by a large attendance and careful investigation.

In New York, the budget appropriation must finally receive the sanction of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor. In each of these three stages the appropriations are opened to public inspection, discussion and criticism. The budget is watched carefully by interested citizens and taxpayers throughout its entire course, until the last dollar is appropriated. All suggestions of changes in the estimates are openly made and thoroughly discussed, and increases or reductions in amounts must be made on specific items.

New York's budget shows to any citizen or taxpayer specifically how his money is to be spent.

New York gives to its citizens and taxpayers a budget exhibit. This furnishes in an instructive and intelligent manner a complete history of the city's activities and the return given for every dollar contributed in taxes.

New York's segregated budget comprises a definite system, being in no way dependent upon the personal equation in the city official.

New York's segregated budget is a safeguard and an assistance both to conscientious heads of departments and to the citizens and taxpayers, and it places the responsibility for the proper use of department appropriations on both sides.

What Boston Can Do.

The committee has devoted much time and attention to a consideration of the remarkable financial reforms carried out by the city of New York in recent years, because it is quite obvious that if so much could be accomplished in such a large city, where the municipal administration is necessarily much more complicated than in Boston, it is not too much to expect that similar reforms can be effected in Boston, with the cooperation of the city authorities, in much less time and at comparatively small expense, and that the results to be accomplished here will bring manifold return for the time and outlay involved.

How the State Bureau of Statistics Might Help.

But we should not overlook the work which has already been done and is being done in Massachusetts along similar lines. In 1906 the Legislature passed a law requiring all cities and towns to make tions at the end of the year. Under the present system these balances, unless transferred to some other appropriation, are carried forward to the credit of a similar appropriation for the following year without reappropriation. There can ordinarily be no justification for this unless an actual liability has been incurred involving that balance.

The School Committee's Appropriations.

We have given some study to the system of financial administration of the School Committee, over which the Mayor has no control, and are pleased to find that a much more systematic and thorough method of doing business exists in that department than in many of the city departments. While we have not deemed it necessary or advisable, under these circumstances, to make a more complete study of the financial methods there is much to commend in the work which is being done there.

Extension of the Purchasing Agent System.

The large yearly expenditures by the city for all kinds of supplies and repairs make it quite apparent that this work should be concentrated in the hands of a special bureau of purchases or supplies, so far, at least, as the departments under the supervision of the Mayor are concerned. The functions of the present purchasing agent are much too narrow.

Boston's estimates for the budget are made up in advance of the municipal year, beginning February 1, but the necessary appropriations are voted after the inauguration of the municipal year.

Boston's budget puts practically no restrictions on the action of the departmental heads as to the use of any money within the appropriation for current expenses.

Boston's budget, in its initial stage, is not opened to public investigation and criticism.

In Boston, the estimates are reviewed by the Mayor, and changed by him by increasing or decreasing in lump sums the amounts asked for by the various heads of departments, no reference being made in these changes to specific items and amounts, and the estimates are then sent to the City Council, accompanied by a proposed appropriation order embodying the Mayor's recommendations in very general terms. The entire City Council (sitting as the committee on appropriations) gives public hearings, but little is known of such opportunity for the taxpayers to appear, and little interest is shown by the citizens in these hearings.

The Council has the right only to reduce or reject any item proposed, but cannot increase an item without the Mayor's approval, nor increase the total of the budget or add any item thereto.

Boston's budget allows a free rein to each department head in the expenditure of the total amount appropriated to his department, and any amount within the appropriation can be used for any purpose whatever, though such purpose may not have been mentioned in the original estimates.

Boston has not as yet given a budget exhibit.

Boston's budget, within the departmental appropriations, depends almost entirely on the personal qualities of the official in charge of expenditure for current expenses. What may be a safe practice in one man's hands may easily become criminal misuse of opportunity in another's.

Boston's budget system places responsibility primarily on the Mayor. Citizens and taxpayers can have no knowledge in advance of the exact purpose for which appropriations are made, or of the way expenditures are to be made.

certain financial reports to the State Bureau of Statistics upon uniform schedules. This legislation has been supplemented by other laws, one of which provides that any city or town may petition the Director of the Bureau of Statistics for an audit of its accounts or for the installation of an accounting system to be approved by him, and that upon such application the director shall cause the audit to be made or the accounting system to be installed and that thereafter when requested by a city accounting officer the director shall render such assistance as in his judgment may be necessary, the expense involved being assessed upon the city or town affected. Under these laws, and particularly the act authorizing the Bureau to make audits and install systems of municipal accounting, much has already been done in the direction of standardizing methods of municipal accounting, and several cities and many towns have availed themselves of the provisions of the act. The general use of the uniform schedules for municipal accounts adopted by the Bureau and the installing of accounting systems under its supervision will go far toward establishing an intelligible basis for comparison of municipal revenues and expenses in cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth, and we suggest that the City of Boston seriously consider the advisability of availing itself of the services of the Bureau of Statistics in establishing an improved system of accounting. This should result in better adapting the accounting system of the city to the returns now required to be made to the Bureau, and in securing the expert assistance of trained officials in establishing the new system, at a reasonable cost, besides bringing about many other improvements in present methods.

Importance of the Comptroller's Office in New York.

Under existing law and ordinances, the functions of the City Auditor are practically limited to the purposes already stated. In New York the comptroller has general control over the financial concerns of the city, and recent comptrollers, realizing the responsibility which this duty imposed, have brought about many reforms in correcting defective methods in organization and procedure. The work of preparing the first draft of the budget, to be submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, falls to him. Acting through the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics, he obtained information concerning the cost of administration, operation and maintenance of several of the largest departments, and an analysis and classification of expenditures was made in such a manner as to show the cost of each separate function and activity, this information being used as a basis for budget making, and finally the form of preparing and rendering departmental estimates was prescribed by him, segregating the funds by functions and activities to be supported, and carrying specific appropriations for salaries and wages, showing the number of persons in each salary grade that might be employed. Appropriate restrictions were imposed in the appropriation order or budget, to protect the city against the use of funds for purposes other than those for which granted, to remove conditions which formerly rendered a proper audit impossible, to lay the foundation for the enforcement of the law which limits the incurring of liabilities to the amount authorized, and to prevent the use of money raised from loans for current expenditures, also rendering difficult many other abuses under the old system. These reforms materially aided in bringing about the present remarkable financial condition of the city, to which we have already referred.

Boston Should Have a Comptroller.

In view of the fortunate experience of New York under recent able comptrollers, and as the ordinary duties of the present efficient City Auditor of Boston keep him fully occupied, it seems to your committee that much good might be accomplished by establishing the office of comptroller, whose duties should be defined by ordinance, which should give him as full authority as is practicable under existing law to regulate and control those financial affairs which are not already delegated to the City Auditor and City Treasurer, and provide co-operation with the Mayor and other officials in making estimates and drafting the budget, and in standardizing the methods of accounting and administration in the various departments. This official should be a recognized expert in municipal financial administration, and receive adequate compensation. It seems clear that under the provisions of the existing charter the Mayor and Council may establish such an office and define its duties, and that such an official would relieve the Mayor of a great deal of detail work, and thus enable him to perform more efficiently the administrative functions to which he should largely devote his time. It of course follows that the comptroller would be in an excellent position to cooperate with the State Bureau of Statistics in establishing an improved system of accounting for the city.

General Recommendations.

1. That the Mayor be urged to submit to the City Council a segregated budget based on the estimates of the heads of departments and other officials, showing in detail the specific items for which appropriations are requested.
2. That the Mayor be urged when making reductions or increases in the estimates to state specifically the items and the amounts of such reductions or increases.
3. That the Mayor and Council be urged to give as great publicity as possible to budget making and appropriations therefor, and to provide that the citizens and taxpayers be given every facility for information, investigation and criticism.
4. That the Mayor be urged to provide that the same facilities be given the citizens and taxpayers for consideration of transfers of money for current expenses from one department to another, from one division to another in the same department, and from the reserve or contingent funds to departments.
5. That the Mayor and Council be urged to give serious consideration to the opportunity afforded by existing statutes mentioned above to cooperate with the State Bureau of Statistics in establishing a system of accounting embodying the principles of the segregated budget, and conforming to the forms already established and in use in other cities and towns of the Commonwealth, as furnished by said Bureau.

6. That the Mayor and Council be asked to consider the feasibility of giving one official jurisdiction over financial matters, including the establishing and preparation of a segregated budget, and having an inventory of all city property taken under his supervision, this inventory to be kept up to date so that it shall at all times be the actual inventory of all city property.

7. That attention be called to the economies which might be effected by the creation of a Bureau of Supplies, to purchase supplies for all city departments, such supplies to be standardized throughout the various departments; and having control of the sale of all city personal property.

8. That the Chamber bring to the notice of the Mayor and City Council the desirability of some steps in the direction of standardizing the salaries and wages of city officials and employees, with the possibility of obtaining suggestions in this matter from the Civil Service Commission.

9. That the city authorities be urged to adopt the policy of making no salary or wage increase (save in very exceptional cases) during the fiscal year, except at the time when the annual appropriations for various departments are adopted.

10. That the Mayor and Council be urged to give a city budget exhibit during the year 1914, similar to that of New York and other cities, so that the citizens and taxpayers may come in touch with the system used by the city in making appropriations and carrying on the activities of the various departments, and that citizens and taxpayers may know how nearly an adequate return is received by the city for each dollar spent.

11. That in making the annual estimates the heads of city departments be urged to take a careful survey of work covering a period of years and requiring annual appropriations, to the end that consistency and efficiency in the prosecution of such work be attended.

It is the belief of your committee that all of these recommendations could be carried into effect, either by the Mayor's orders or by ordinance, and that no changes in the present city charter would be necessary to give them effect.

The committee recommends that copies of this report be sent to the Mayor, the members of the City Council, the Finance Commission and the State Bureau of Statistics.

Reports accepted; permits granted on the usual conditions.

(3) Report on report of Committee on Finance (referred to-day) concerning loan of $100,000 for sidewalk construction—that said report be accepted by the City Council and the order rejected, without prejudice.

The question came on the acceptance of the report and the rejection of the order.

Coun. WOODS—Mr. President, I want to be placed right in this matter after its being referred to the Executive Committee. It seems to me that the policy of the members here has been not to borrow any money for maintenance. Now, my claim is that this is not maintenance; this is permanent improvement. According to the commissioner's own words he spent $92,000 last year for building granolithic sidewalks, taken from the maintenance fund. Now, do the people of Boston understand that the Commissioner of Public Works is spending that money that was allotted to him for repairs on streets and other places for building granolithic sidewalks, when 30, 35, 40 or 50 per cent of the money was turned back to the treasury? It is all right for the members of the Council to say that they believe in the pay-as-you-go policy, and that they do not believe in borrowing money for maintenance; but at the same time they do not stop to think that they sat here year after year and passed orders for granolithic sidewalks, taking money from this maintenance fund. They did not hesitate, there was no quibbling about doing that, they did not care how much they took out of the maintenance fund for it. It is no wonder that we have had for the last five or six years complaints of the construction when the maintenance fund was used for granolithic sidewalks and the money turned back into the treasury. I claim this making of sidewalks is a permanent improvement; the life of a granolithic sidewalk is thirty-five or forty years. And there is no reason why, because the commissioner had money enough and he took some money for granolithic sidewalks out of his maintenance fund, that he should be compelled to do it. I think the step in the right direction is to give them this money and build granolithic sidewalks. It is proposed by some members of the committee to have an appropriation taken out of the Reserve Fund. Now, what great difference is that? The Reserve Fund is getting 3 per cent interest; the city has to pay 4 per cent. There is no reason why, in my mind, and I want to say without any hesitation that the Mayor of Boston should be the judge in this question, and I think he is trying to save all the money he can for the City of Boston and would not advocate $100,000 for a loan if this thing was not right. I want to say one word in reply to my brother councilor across the way. I do not wish to have any personalities with any members of the Council, but he referred to the old Board of Aldermen. I want to say without any fear of contradiction that there were just as good men in the old Board of Aldermen as there are in the present Council, and I think any reflection on the old Board of Aldermen is out of place at this time. I was a member of the old Board of Aldermen; so was the present Mayor a member of the old Board of Aldermen, and there are lots of things we have done in the old Board of Aldermen that gave credit to the city. Now, I want to say that I do not wish to be personal or make any reference to anybody, but I hope that this order will pass.

Coun. COULTHURST—Mr. President, the reason why the City of Boston has a net city debt of over $100,000,000, and the equivalent of a 10 per cent blanket mortgage on all the real estate of the city, in part is due to the fact that in the good old days we used to borrow money for repairs of streets on ten, twenty, thirty and forty year loans. Now, the original Finance Commission in their investigation disclosed the fact that the city was using funds that were raised by taxation for repairs and for maintenance. It also disclosed the fact that other cities were using current funds for permanent improvements of a recurrent nature. Now, I do not care whether this granolithic sidewalk business is a matter of maintenance or of permanent improvement. It certainly is an expenditure of a recurrent nature; it comes up every year, and we have been using maintenance funds for the last five or six years for this purpose. Last year there was $92,000 available out of the appropriation of the Commissioner of Public Works for this purpose, and it is due to poor management on the part of somebody—I don't say it is the Commissioner of Public Works, but he has not got $100,000 available now out of his present appropriation, which was there last year, to be used for these purposes. Personally, as one member of the Council, I am not going to go back one step in the policy we adopted of using current funds of the city for permanent improvements of a recurrent nature, and this is one of them.

Coun. COLLINS—Mr. President, as I understand it, presently the President of the City Council is to offer an order requesting his Honor the Mayor, or the Commissioner of Public Works through his Honor the Mayor, to send to the City Council an appropriation order for $100,000. The Commissioner of Public Works, before the Executive Committee this afternoon, stated that never in his experience of four years as Commissioner of Public Works has he ever thought of sending an order to the Council asking that money be borrowed for this purpose. In the letter of his Honor the Mayor to the Council it is clearly set forth that this is work which is to come from the maintenance fund, pure and simple. That being true, there is only one way that money should come, and that is from the tax levy. This Council has unanimously been in favor of orders for granolithic sidewalks, but they do not want to sacrifice their principle even for the purpose of getting these orders through. Now, there is money enough in the Reserve Fund and the Council unanimously, I am informed—in fact, I believe from the utterances which I heard to-day—will pass such an order without division. I hope, sir, that this order will be rejected, the report of the committee considered favorably, and that the order to be presented by the President of the Council will pass unanimously.

Coun. WOODS—Mr. President, I just want to say one word in reply to Coun. Collins' remarks. He says that it is said in the letter that this was work of maintenance. It does not say any such thing. It says this money was taken from the maintenance fund, but it does not say it was maintenance. But I want the public to understand that the commissioner used this money that he had for maintenance in building granolithic sidewalks, and that is the reason that our streets have not been properly cared for.

Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, why should not the commissioner use the money that he has to run his department for the purpose of constructing these sidewalks? That is maintenance. Why should he not do so? He has been doing so for many years, four or five years at least, and very properly. I fail to see the logic of the member from Brighton when he makes that suggestion. Of course it should come out of maintenance and, Mr. President, that has been the policy of this government for the last four or five years. When I referred to the Board of Aldermen of some years ago I was trying to make a comparison, and I think I succeeded in making it. The old Board of Aldermen used to borrow money even to supply office furniture, I am told. I believe that a part of the outfit to-day represents purchases made out of loans. We all know they borrowed money to pave streets. Tremont street to-day, or parts of it, represents construction out of loans. The same is true of School street here. The same is true of L street in South Boston, parts of Broadway and all over the city. Now, Mr. President, I say in all seriousness, when I speak of the old Board of Aldermen, of which my friend was a member—we all have respect for it—that I do not think the citizens of Boston desire to go back to their methods. They have been repudiated by the city. It was bad finance, such as has placed the City of Boston where she is to-day with a debt of over $100,000,000. Now, this is money that properly came out of maintenance, out of the taxpayers' money. When the member talks about this being a permanent improvement, does he forget that Mr. Rourke this afternoon stated that the contractors only guarantee this work for five years? Now, I submit that the gentleman is deceiving himself. I have no doubt he is entirely honest in what he says, but he is deceiving himself when he talks about our taking this money out of the loans. Of course we should not take it out of the loans, Mr. President.

Coun. COLLINS—Mr. President, in the letter which his Honor the Mayor has sent to the Council it is said that these sidewalks have been constructed out of the maintenance appropriation. That being true, Mr. President, I ask this question now of the councilor from Brighton: Why has this money annually been paid out of maintenance; why has this policy of the city for many years back been approved by the citizenship of the city? Every year the City Council receives in its annual appropriation bill a sum for this work from maintenance. The Commissioner of Public Works says that in his experience it has never come otherwise. Now, if that policy has been a sound financial policy, and it has never been questioned, and nobody up to the moment of time that we received this communication questioned the advisability of it, it seems to me the duty of going forward and proving that it is unwise rests on the gentleman from Brighton.

Coun. WOODS—Mr. President, the same man is Commissioner of Public Works who sent this letter and who has been building these granolithic sidewalks for the past four years. You say, why does he do it? Because he has had all the money he wanted before for the last four years. He figured on so many sidewalks. That is the reason. But this year he did not get it; his appropriation was cut way down. He said himself that he did not have a cent to build these granolithic sidewalks out of the $20,000. Still we go heaping orders on top of them. So far as the actions of the old Board of Aldermen were attacked, I want to say to the gentleman across the way that they were vindicated when the people elected James M. Curley as Mayor of Boston.

Coun. WOODS asked for the yeas and nays. The report was accepted and the order rejected, yeas 8, nays 1, Coun. WOODS voting nay.

CARE OF LAND, MAVERICK SQUARE.

RULES CONCERNING CLAIMS.

Coun. KENNY offered an order—That the Rules of the City Council be hereby amended by inserting after Rule 33 the following new rule, to be numbered 34, and by renumbering the present Rule 34 to Rule 35, viz.:

Rule 34. Upon the receipt of a claim against the City of Boston or any department thereof by the Committee on Claims, the same shall be entered upon the docket by the Clerk of Committees, who shall forthwith give notice of such claim to the Corporation Counsel and transmit to him said claim together with all papers relating thereto for investigation and report.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE.

Coun. COULTHURST offered an order—That the Chamber of Commerce be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to consider the draft of proposed ordinance to establish a department of finance to improve the financial organization of the city, as submitted to the City Council to-day, and report upon the advisability of adopting such proposed ordinance or a modified form thereof.

The question came on the passage of the order. Coun. KENNY—Mr. President, I suppose that matter should be referred to the Committee on Ordinances, which will have the matter in charge. It may be that some time during the investigation or the examination into it we might desire to have the assistance of the Finance Commission. We might then pass it. Unless the member presses it, it seems to me we ought not to ask for it at this time. Perhaps later we might have it.

Coun. COULTHURST—Mr. President, there are two orders submitted, one asking the Finance Commission and the other asking the Chamber of Commerce to advise as to the advisability of adopting this scheme as proposed in the ordinance submitted to-day. If the Committee on Ordinances is to meet shortly to consider this matter I have no objection to its reference, but of course it is going to take some time before we get a report from the Finance Commission and from the Chamber of Commerce. That would be my only possible objection to the reference.

Coun. KENNY—I desire to say, as chairman of the Committee on Ordinances, that it is my intention to call a meeting very soon.

The motion was carried and the order referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

RETIREMENT OF FIREMEN.

John Kippenberger, of Engine Company 22 of the Boston Fire Department, has been retired on two-thirds pay. His name will be placed on the pension roll at the rate of $933.33 per year.

Commissioner Grady declares:

"Mr. Kippenberger is thirty-seven years old. He was appointed to this department August 23, 1900. On January 16, 1912, while working at the Revere House fire, he was thrown from a ladder and impaled on a picket of an iron fence. He has been off duty ever since. I give below the opinion of the city physician, Dr. Morton Prince:

"In view of the fact that the history as stated in the accompanying certificate of Dr. William E. Faulkner shows that the applicant has suffered for over two years from chronic empyema and in view of the present condition of the right chest wall and right lung, as stated above, in my opinion it would be extremely unsafe for fireman John Kippenberger to be again exposed to the hazards of service in the Fire Department and for this and other reasons he is permanently incapacitated from further efficient service as a fireman."

Capt. Martin A. Kenealy, of Engine Company 43 of the department, has been retired on half pay. His name will be placed on the pension roll at the rate of $900 the year.

Captain Kenealy was appointed to this department January 7, 1898. He was made a lieutenant January 4, 1907, and captain June 1, 1912. While working at a fire, May 6 1913, he received an injury to his head and has been off duty ever since. He is thirty-nine years old.

The opinion of Dr. Morton Prince, the city physician, is as follows:

"From the above statement and physical examination it is evident that the applicant's disability is for the most part mental and depends largely upon his own statements which are, however, largely supported by the general examination as above described and the alleged loss of weight, as also by the certificate of Dr. Rogers. In my opinion the applicant is suffering from traumatic hysteria.

"I see no reason why he should not eventually recover sufficiently to perform the ordinary duties of life, but I do not believe that he ever will be able to resume the duties of a fireman. Experience has shown that when a fireman develops hysteria of this kind as the result of an injury in the service, he rarely becomes fit for fire service again. I therefore think him permanently incapacitated from further efficient service as a fireman."

CITY TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

The monthly statement of City Treasurer Slattery discloses the fact that the \$2,000,000 temporary money borrowed by the City of Boston in May comprised two loans of \$1,000,000 each, one at 3 per cent interest and the other at 2.92 per cent. The 2.92 per cent rate is the lowest at which state or municipal money has been borrowed this year. It is over $\frac{1}{4}$ per cent less than that paid by the state. On May 31 last the city had a balance of \$3,120,915 cash on hand in its general fund, deposited in seventeen national banks and twenty-one trust companies.

THE COST OF PASTEURIZING MILK AND CREAM.

Mayor Curley is greatly interested in the pasteurization of milk and cream as a safeguard of public health, and has given the subject a most careful study.

Relative to the question of the prevention of disease by the pasteurization process Prof. John T. Bowen, technologist of the Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, and one of the world's greatest experts upon agricultural sanitation, send the City Record a very interesting analysis. He declares:

"In the pasteurization of milk and cream there are two systems in use at the present time, known as the 'holder' and the 'flash' processes. The holder process consists in holding the milk or cream for about 30 minutes after it has been heated to the pasteurizing temperature of 140° to 150° F., either in the same apparatus in which the pasteurization takes place or in separate holding tanks arranged for the purpose, after which it flows to the coolers. In the flash or continuous process the milk or cream flows from the receiving tank to the pasteurizer, where it is heated to a temperature of from 160° to 165° F. in from 30 seconds to 1 minute, and from thence direct to the coolers, where it is cooled.

"It is obvious that there is more heat required to pasteurize a given amount of milk or cream in the latter process than in the former; for example, assuming that the initial temperature of the incoming milk is 60° F. and that in the holder process it is heated to 150° F. and in the flash process to 165° F., then for every 1,000 pounds of milk to be pasteurized by each of these processes the actual number of heat units required to raise the temperature of the milk to the pasteurizing temperature is:

"B. t. u. = $1,000 \times 0.95$ (165-60) = 99,750, flash process.

"It will be noted from the above figures that the flash process of pasteurization requires 16.6 per cent more heat to pasteurize a given amount of milk than the holder process. Furthermore, the milk must be cooled through a correspondingly wider range. These figures, however, deal only with the heat absorbed by the milk, and do not take into consideration that radiated to the air and absorbed by the metal and other materials used in the construction of the apparatus.

"The most searching character of tests were made upon the pasteurizing equipment of five large city milk plants. The equipment in each case consisted of heater, holding tank, regenerator and cooler.

The conclusions drawn from the foregoing tests are as follows:

"1. The flash process of pasteurization requires approximately 17 per cent more heat than the holder process. There is a correspondingly wider range through which the milk or cream must be cooled, both adding extra cost to the pasteurizing cycle.

"2. The proper design and arrangement of the heater, regenerator, cooler, piping and refrigerating apparatus have much to do with the efficient operation of the plant.

"3. With poorly arranged apparatus and leaky piping the loss in heat may reach approximately 30 per cent of that required to pasteurize, which it is practicable to reduce to a negligible amount.

"4. It is practicable to use exhaust steam from the engine and steam-driven auxiliaries, or water heated by exhaust steam, to furnish heat with which to pasteurize both milk and cream.

"5. Usually there is sufficient heat in the exhaust steam which is allowed to waste in milk plants and creameries to do the pasteurizing.

"6. For every 400 pounds of milk pasteurized per hour with exhaust steam, approximately one horse power is taken off the boiler plant.

"7. The average cost of pasteurizing 1 gallon of milk is shown to be $0.00313.

"8. The average cost of pasteurizing 1 gallon of cream is shown to be $0.00634, or $0.0756 per 100 pounds.

"9. It must be understood that the cost of pasteurizing as figured in this paper deals only with the pasteurizing cycle, viz., starting with the initial temperature of the raw milk and raising its temperature to the pasteurizing point, then cooling the milk down to the initial temperature of the raw milk. In other words, it has been attempted to show the additional expense encountered in producing pasteurized milk and cream over the raw product."

PROTECTION OF RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS.

Mr. John J. Walsh of the City Planning Board has very kindly prepared for the City Record a synopsis of several of the entertaining and instructive addresses presented at the recent International City Planning Conference at Toronto. Mr. Walsh declares:

"An interesting paper was by Lawrence Veiller, Esq., Secretary of the National Housing Association of New York. Mr. Veiller took for his subject, 'Protecting Residential Districts.' He made a brilliant analysis of legislation and attempts at legislation on the subject. For the benefit of our citizens I made rather copious notes of Mr. Veiller's address.

"He called attention to the new consciousness of the necessity of protecting our citizens in their right to lead a rational existence and rear families free from the noise and nerve-racking atmosphere which generally appertain to our industrial communities. He praised especially the orderly method of the Germans in establishing the zone principle, now in operation about a generation in that country, and ingenuously inquired of his audience if there was 'such a difference between the characteristics of the Germans and the Americans as to make it a Utopian dream for us to think of the time when we might insure our citizens a peaceful atmosphere.' He pointed out that until recent years the only effort made in America to bring about this happy condition has been through restrictions upon the occupation and use of property, but showed also how the courts very easily dissolve these restrictions when neighborhood conditions have changed. His conclusion was that private agreement as to restrictions has been a failure.

"The next question presented is one of throbbing importance, as he saw it: How far will the police power stretch? Mr. Veiller humorously stated that the only thing we were sure of was that it would not go beyond what the engineers call 'the limits of elasticity.' We know, of course, from our own decisions in Massachusetts that police power does not include æsthetic considerations indispensable to the 'city beautiful,' but we are in much doubt here as elsewhere concerning the outposts of judicial interpretation on this subject.

"As Mr. Veiller points out, it does extend clearly to those things which affect public health, safety, morals or the general welfare, provided that its exercise be reasonable. But the meaning of the term 'general welfare' has never been, nor indeed can it be, decisively fixed by court rulings. As the luxuries of one generation become the necessities of the next, so the merely personal privileges of one generation may become the compelling welfare of the succeeding generation.

"Mr. Veiller pointed out that in the United States, California made the first effort in 1909 to establish residential districts and to exclude therefrom certain industries. This was in the City of Los Angeles. This attempt was followed by Grand Rapids, Michigan, in 1913, and by the States of New York, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois. The speaker pointed out that the difference between the Los Angeles ordinances and the legislation of other cities is that in Los Angeles the establishment of industrial districts is emphasized, while the other cities concern themselves with residential districts. As we know, practically the whole of Los Angeles is divided into residential and industrial districts, of varying shapes and sizes, although for the most part the industrial districts are crowded into one part of the city. In industrial districts, so called, all kinds of business and manufacturing are allowed unrestricted, whereas in the residential districts certain specifically enumerated enterprises are prohibited. Not only does the law of Los Angeles prohibit the creation of forbidden industries in residential districts, but it has made it unlawful to maintain existing industries, even though they have been in operation for many years. It is very doubtful if Massachusetts courts would uphold such retroactive legislation. We have veneration for vested rights in this Commonwealth.

"In Wisconsin there is an act (chapter 743 of the Acts of 1913) authorizing cities of 25,000 or more to set aside exclusive residential districts, and to 'prohibit the erection and maintenance of factories, docks and other similar concerns within such districts.' This Wisconsin law enables cities also to restrain the encroachment of business houses upon purely residential districts, by requiring the consent of the majority of landowners and residents of such districts before allowing such business to enter the district. Under this power Milwaukee has recently established a number of residential districts, but neither the act itself nor the ordinance has as yet passed the ordeal of Supreme Court construction.

"In the State of Illinois an act to empower cities to establish residential districts was vetoed by the governor upon an opinion from the attorney general that it was unconstitutional.

"New York has a housing law for second-class cities which provides for residential districts, and such residential districts may be made as small as one side of a city block. Under this law the cities of Syracuse and Utica have acted, though, as Mr. Veiller points out, many 'sea-lawyers' have given horseback opinions, or perhaps it would be more appropriate to say 'sea-leg' opinions, that such legislation is unconstitutional.

"In this connection let me record that my brief remarks at the Toronto Conference were principally upon the subject of the unconstitutionality of much legislation aiming at ameliorating evil social conditions.

"Hon. George Langley, Minister of Municipalities from the Province of Saskatchewan, made my remarks in part the text of his principal address at the closing banquet given us by the Conservation Commission. Langley was inclined to make a jest of the matter and said:

"I think I have discovered why there are so many divorces in America; it is because the marriages are unconstitutional."

"It is to be noted that the city of New York has authorized the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to establish districts and to regulate the use of buildings. The details of the plan are yet to be worked out.

"Mr. Veiller pointed out that Canada had taken action along restrictive lines as early as 1904 by passing an act authorizing the councils of cities and towns by a two-thirds vote to enforce by-laws to 'prevent, regulate and control the location, erection and use of buildings as laundries, stores and manufactories.' Later the Canadian Parliaments included 'stables for horses for delivery purposes, butcher shops, blacksmith shops, forges, dog kennels, hospitals, or infirmaries for animals.' Toronto is now acting freely under the provisions of this law.

"Mr. Veiller points out that any proposed legislation of this character, for reasons which are obvious to the legal mind, should not include enumeration of objectionable industries except by exclusion.

"In the New York Second-class Cities' Law everything but private dwellings, two-family dwellings and private garages or stables is excluded. It will be noted that the New York law excludes from private residential districts multiple dwellings, such as tenement houses, apartment houses and hotels.

"As Mr. Veiller says, 'A city cannot be a city of home owners where the multiple dwelling flourishes.'

"Toronto has 75,000 individual home owners. What an asset this must be for public spirit and patriotism! Under our new theory of preventive medicine it seems that we in Massachusetts ought to be able to establish within the limits of the police power such regulations as will prohibit those industries which can be shown to be deleterious to health from invading residential districts.

"Mr. Veiller's conclusions are that we should not seek to make restrictive legislation also retroactive. He accepts the idea that once industries are well established in a district it is futile to attempt to convert it to residential purposes. Moreover, our chance of success in the courts is better if such enactments look to the future and do not attempt to interfere with well established use of property for business purposes.

"Another important consideration urged by Mr. Veiller is that restrictions to be valid must have the approval of a substantial majority of the parties in interest and also the approval of the local legislative body. The boundaries of the restricted district must be small, so that there shall be no improper interference with the commercial development of the city.

"Another point of importance is that the restrictions must be removable by as simple a process as that by which they were imposed.

"The recent case of Storer v. Downey, tried in 1913 and reported in 215 Mass. 273, furnishes a clue to the attitude of our courts towards at least one kind of structure which municipalities may control. In that case an ordinance of the city of Cambridge provided that 'No building shall be erected for or converted to use as a garage unless such use is previously authorized by the board of aldermen.' The plaintiff sought a license to run a garage, and the aldermen granted him the authority, but the mayor (Barry) vetoed the order, giving his reason, 'Not because it appears to be necessary for the prevention of fire and the preservation of life,' but because he thought some policy respecting garages in residential districts should be adopted by the city, and because he was opposed to their establishment in residential districts contrary to the sentiment of abutting property owners. The plaintiff's counsel contended that a veto for such reasons was nullity. The Supreme Court overruled the contention and stated that the objections urged by the mayor were not whimsical or absurd, but obviously grounded on what seemed to him a wise municipal policy. This is a little further than our courts in Massachusetts have been willing to go. Certainly there are many establishments as offensive as garages that may be prevented by recourse to the principle of this decision.

"In Goldstein v. Connor, 212 Mass. 57, the Court said in an opinion rendered by Chief Justice Rugg:

'The construction of buildings for mercantile purposes is a lawful use of property. It has no inherent tendency to impair the health or comfort of the people, or to increase unduly the risk of fire. It does not interfere with public peace, morality or safety. It is not a use of property which in the present state of society and of civilization can be absolutely prohibited in the cities and towns of the Commonwealth. . . . The Legislature has ample power to regulate and to authorize cities and towns to regulate by general rules the materials, height, plans, manner of construction, exits, and other essentials of buildings and the uses to which they may be put for the prevention of fires and guarding the safety of those who frequent them.'

REPORT OF STATE LABOR BUREAU.

Superintendent Walter R. Sears of the State Free Employment Bureau, 8 Kneeland street, Boston, declares that the condition of labor market for May was far below normal and in demand for help shows a decrease of about 20 per cent from May one year ago. Demand for building, printing, textile and boot and shoe tradesmen has been slight for this season of the year. Demand for farm help has been good. Director of free employment offices of Kansas can furnish employment to more than 42,000 harvest hands for three months, at $2 per day and upward, with board.

CAPE COD CANAL.

The Cape Cod Canal reduces the length of the outside water route from Boston to New York from 402 miles to 260 miles and has been completed at a cost of about $12,000,000. About 25,000 vessels per year go around Cape Cod and it is expected that they will provide a canal tonnage of 25,000,000 tons per year. The improvements include about 8 miles of canal channels, 100 feet wide on the bottom with a depth of 25 feet to mean low water and side slopes of two to one; 5 miles of approaches with bottom widths of 250 and 300 feet, and 3,000 linear feet of breakwater. Its construction involved an excavation of 17,000,000 yards of material and has been accomplished in about four years.

SAIL FROM BOSTON.

(Current Events.)

The season of vacation travel is here again. New England people, planning a trip abroad, should need no appeal to their loyalty to induce them to sail from Boston. Any one of the several appeals to reason should be convincing enough. Boston is nearer Europe than any other big American port. The trip, therefore, is shorter and cheaper. The steamers operating out of this port are modern and commodious, the service is at a high standard, and the sailings include all the important British, Continental and Mediterranean ports. A New Englander sailing from Boston is more apt to find friends and acquaintances among his fellow passengers than a New Englander sailing from New York. The fogs which are the constant menace to navigation in more northerly routes are at their minimum here. Sail from Boston and you sail by the most logical route.

And yet, there is something in this gospel of loyalty. The fact that more passenger business means more ships in and out of Boston, hinges on to the other fact that more ships mean more encouragement to foreign trade. Just now New England is interested in a new movement to extend and enlarge its foreign trade. It is not alone the exporters and the manufacturers who can help in this movement. All New Englanders who cannot take a trip abroad can at least preach "Sail from Boston" to their neighbors who can. "Sail from Boston," "Sail to Boston," "Ship from Boston," "Ship to Boston." There are reasonable grounds for so doing. But we are emphasizing here the ancient and honorable ground of loyalty. Make Boston your port because it is the New England port.

STATISTICS BOSTON TERMINAL.

Mayor Curley is in receipt of a letter from Hon. Albertus H. Baldwin, Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, stating that the National Association of Port Authorities had appealed to Hon. William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, to collect, compile and disseminate information showing the character of ownership and administration of terminal and other facilities in the United States and their possessions; a description of the physical equipment of the same; the charges upon goods and vessels, if any; the regulations governing the use of port facilities, and requesting the cooperation of the Mayor to secure the same in behalf of the City of Boston.

The research work relative to water terminals will be very complete in detail and will treat under separate heads upon the following subjects: administration; water front; docks and wharves; charges; port equipment; charges; railroad connections; warehouses; improvements; expenditures for both improvement and maintenance.

Mayor Curley has requested Secretary McKibben of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to prepare the statistical tables for Secretary Redfield.

PANAMA PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

The Director General of the Panama Pacific Exposition very kindly sends the City Record the following notes:

The construction period of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco is ending and installation of exhibits has begun. The first exhibit — Diesel engine — was inaugurated in the Palace of Machinery on May 27, with ceremony. The installation will require many weeks and the expenditure of $700,000.

A branch of the United States customs service is being placed on the exposition grounds. Arrangements have been made through Congress and the Treasury Department to exempt from duty all foreign exhibits to be returned to the original shipping point. Exhibits sold during or after the exposition must meet the usual tariffs.

Charles Francis Browne, superintendent of the United States section of the fine arts department of the exposition, is touring the leading American art centers to make a final choice of the most representative American paintings and statuary for the Palace of Fine Arts.

A clearing house for lost children, lost friends, and relatives has been provided for by the exposition officials. This central registration bureau will communicate with scores of telephones over the grounds, as well as the entire San Francisco telephone system.

FINANCE COMMISSION.

BOSTON June 8, 1914.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor:

SIR,—The Finance Commission has been conducting for some time an investigation of parcels of real estate owned by the city which, except in a few cases, are not at present being used for any specific purpose. It presents herewith for your consideration the results of its work.

In conducting this investigation the representatives of the commission made a search of the statistical data on file in City Hall, but were unable to discover any department which had a complete list of all the real estate owned by the city.

The lack of any such information, however, is a violation of the Revised Ordinances of 1898, chapter 39, section 1, which in substance provides that the Street Laying-Out Department shall have control of the real estate not used for a specific purpose and shall keep a record of such. Inquiry at the office of the Street Commissioners elicited the information that the department is not in a position to know what parcels of real estate have been abandoned for use and consequently depends upon a formal note from a department or an order of the City Council transferring the care and control to it. In the opinion of the Finance Commission such a condition should be rectified, and the direction of the ordinance followed, so that the chief executive can be readily informed of those parcels of real estate which the city has abandoned or is not using to advantage. If such a list were kept, it would afford an easy and convenient reference for the departments which contemplate the purchase of land, and might save for the city the needless expense of the purchase of new lands.

An exhaustive research was made of all available records, so that the matter presented herewith probably represents a complete statement of the real estate owned by the city which is now abandoned, or, in a majority of cases, not used for any specific city purpose.

As a result of its investigation the Finance Commission finds that the City of Boston has abandoned or does not use in the majority of cases for specific city purposes one hundred and seventeen parcels of land and buildings, the assessed value of which in 1913 was $1,741,650. If the parcels which are not assessed separately or not assessed at all were included, the total figure would approximate $2,000,000.

Attached to this report are two appendices, marked "A" and "B" (extracts from the report of the representative of the Finance Commission). In Appendix A is given a list of twenty parcels of land and buildings, the assessed value of which is about $265,000, which demand immediate action as to what should be done with them. Appendix B (including parcels in Appendix A) is the total list of the parcels of real estate and buildings abandoned by the City of Boston or not generally used for any specific city purpose. The latter contains the location where each parcel is situated, the area and the assessed value of all the land and buildings.

The commission has not included in the above list the real estate owned and controlled by the Overseers of the Poor. It will make that the subject of a special report.

In many cases buildings are occupied by organizations which pay a nominal rent to the city. If it should be decided to sell the property so occupied, accommodations might be provided for these organizations in other city buildings.
